REBEL PLANES AND SOLDIERS DRIVEN BACK NEAR MADRID

HEAVY FIGHTING ALL ALONG FRONT

11th Day of Offensive That Is Intended to Force Insurgents Out of Central Spain and Lift Siege of Capital.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 16.—Insurgent planes bombed Madrid's suburban airdromes today while the Government army pushed westward in the eleventh day of its offensive to thrust back the insurgent army in Central Spain and lift siege of the capital.

The insurgent raiders were beaten off after inflicting slight damage to the air bases.

The Government's westward thrust resulted in some of the fiercest fighting of the one-year-old war. Gen. Jose Miaja's militia drove against Villafranca-del Castillo, a village near the Coruna road and about 12 miles northwest of Madrid, where the insurgent General, Fransisco Franco, was said to have massed fresh troops, heavy artillery and many planes. Villafranca lies between the Government forces and the insurgent stronghold, Majadahonda.

Counterattacks Fail.

Positions occupied by the Eighteenth Loyalist Force near Villanueva del Pardillo, 18 miles from Madrid at the tip of Miaja's main salient, were bombed and shelled several hours yesterday but the capital's defenders held fast.

Several loud explosions were heard from within Villafranca del Castillo. Huge columns of smoke rose as Government gunners blasted at the already shell-torn city. The artillery was reported to have scored a direct hit on an insurgent powder magazine.

Boadilla del Monte, about 10 miles west of the capital, which seemed to be another concentration point of the insurgents, was bombed yesterday along with railroad stations and airdromes at Aranda de Duero and Talavera de la Reina.

Residents See Air Fight.

Residents of Madrid crowded balconies and other vantage points to watch an air combat yesterday, which ended with the loss of six insurgent and one Government craft—all pursuit ships.

Government pursuit ships, escorting a squadron of bombers home from a raid, clashed with more than a score of insurgent fighters. In the aerial free-for-all a Government pilot escaped by parachute while his plane spiraled earthward.

Occupants of six insurgent planes were killed when Government machine gunners struck them down on the outskirts of the city.

Meanwhile, the Government admitted its siege of Albarracin, west of Teruel on the Aragon front in Eastern Spain, had been broken when insurgents dislodged Government troops from positions near the town.

Another report from the Aragon front said that a Government column had driven to positions 10 miles from Zaragoza and were within range of hills dominating Villa Franco de Ebro, near Zaragoza.

Rebels Report They Beat Loyalists Back at Cuesta de la Reina.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, July 16.—Insurgent headquarters reported today that Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops beat back a Government attack near Cuesta de la Reina, inflicting heavy losses on the attackers.

A Government report mentioned an attack yesterday in that sector, about 25 miles south of Madrid, but said several hours of rifle, machine gun and artillery fire made no change in positions.

Franco's command said his troops were continuing their drive against an already dislodged Government force at Albarracin on the Aragon front in Eastern Spain. The insurgent communique said 1500 had been killed there in the few days.

By the Associated Press.

BOTWOOD, Newfoundland, July 16.—The Pan-American Clipper III landed here today at 7:52 a. m. The Caledonia made the same trip in 15 housr and nine minutes a week ago while the Clipper was flying east.

Today the two boats passed over the mid-Atlantic just as they did when they were flying in opposite directions.

N L R B ACCUSES REPUBLIC STEEL OF 'UNFAIR' ACTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The National Labor Relations Board charged the Republic Steel Corporation today with a long list of "unfair labor practices" before and during the C I O steel strike. The board ordered a hearing here Wednesday. The complaint covered only Republic's Ohio plants.

First item of the complaint is that the company discharged 75 employes for joining the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee. Other workers were threatened with discharge, the complaint says.

The company also is charged with "maintenance of extensive arsenals" at the Youngstown, Niles, Warren, Canton and Cleveland plants "for the purpose of interfering with, restraining and coercing its employes at said plants in the exercise of their right to self organization."

The N L R B says Republic had increased its police forces at the time of the strike "for the purpose of interfering with the rights of its employes peacefully to picket the plants."

The NLRB charges the company with contributing financial support to, and dominating, labor organizations at five of its plants.

"Company officers and agents, including persons specially employed by the company for the purpose, down to the date of the strike, have followed SWOC organizers and have brutally attacked and beate them with the intention of interfering with its employes in the exercise of their right to self organization," the board alleges.

26 HURT AS BURNING GASOLINE FLOODS ATLANTIC CITY BLOCK

Six 10,000-Gallon Tanks Explode; Firemen Unable to Control Flames With Water.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 16.—A series of explosions at the Pure Oil Co. storage plant, including six 10,000-gallon gasoline tanks, flooded a square city block with burning fluid and injured at least 26 persons today.

Beaten back by the heat of the flames and the possibility of more explosions, firemen dragged hose to the roof of the building of the Atlantic City Press-Union newspapers and aimed streams of water onto the streets and in the direction of a coal yard, where gasoline and flames were seeping into the fuel.

The injured, including three firemen, were taken to hospitals.

The plant comprises six tanks, all of which were destroyed.

Because of the futility of fighting the flames with water, the fire chief ordered the firemen to protect surrounding property and "let the fire burn itself out." As the blazing gasoline poured into the streets they removed sewer manhole covers to prevent underground blasts.

COMMONS PASS TAX BILL OF FOUR BILLION DOLLARS

Measure Increasing Levies Goes to House of Lords for Approval.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—The House of Commons today passed the finance bill giving legislative effect to 1937-38 budget estimates and designed to raise £834,000,000 ($4,140,810,000) by taxation, an increase of £15,150,000 (about $75,700,000).

Commons passage on third reading was by vote of 171 to 95. The bill now goes to the House of Lords.

It authorizes taxation for armament purposes expected to yield £198,000,000 (about $990,000,000), as against taxation for armament in 1931 of £109,000,000 (about $545,000,000). Britain's five-year armament program calls for expenditure of $7,500,000,000.

Budget estimates for the fiscal year anticipated expenditures of £862,848,000 (about $4,314,240,000), with anticipated revenue from taxation, borrowing and other sources of £863,100,000 (about $4,315,500,000).

President Sits Near Justice Butler and Opposition Leader Wheeler—Congressmen, Cabinet Members, Diplomats Present.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July. 16.—Haggard and careworn, but with mouth compressed to a grim line, President Roosevelt alternately fixed his gaze on the floor and upon the flower-blanketed casket directly before him, during a 40-minute funeral service held today in the Senate chamber for Majority Leader Joseph Taylor Robinson of Arkansas. Across the aisle from Mr. Roosevelt sat Justice Pierce Butler, as sole representative of the Supreme Court, and just behind the President gleamed the white-clad figure of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, arch enemy of the administration's campaign to remake the Supreme Court. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, dressed from head to foot in unrelieved black, occupied a front row seat in the gallery.

It was a day of truce in political personalities to such a degree of reticence that the name of Senator Robinson was mentioned but once during the rites.

The abolition of party lines created many unexpected groups. The most remarked of these was at the left of the desk of the late Majority Leader. Next to it sat Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, the only woman member of the Senate; and then, in turn, Senator Kenneth D. McKellar of Tennessee, Senator Wheeler and Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, with a gravity of bearing and splendor of formal attire perhaps reflecting his new dignity as the President's nominee for majority leader of the upper House. His leading rival for the position, Senator Pat Harrison, lurked inconspicuous in the background.

Police Guard of Honor.

It was just before 10 a. m. that the casket was wheeled into the Senate chamber, and placed in the well before the Vice-President's dais, there to remain until 8 o'clock tonight, under police guard, when it will be transferred to a train for the journey to Little Rock, Ark., Two patrolmen, capped, shirt-waisted and white-gloved, stood at attention at either end. There was a profusion of flowers, mostly white and tiger lilies, which overflowed to the clerk's bench and even to the Vice-President's desk.

There were scattered individuals in the visitors' gallery as early as 10 o'clock, and a half hour later its capacity of less than 600 seats was exhausted. Tickets of admission had been distributed by members of the Senate and House, mostly, it appeared, to members of their families.

The aspect of the chamber was changed in that all of the Senators' chairs had been removed to make way for a larger number of smaller chairs. The Democratic side was reserved for Senators, and the Republican side for members of the House of Representatives. The first two rows on this side were allotted for the diplomatic corps.

In the well, on three sides of the coffin, stood a semi-circle of chairs in ebony leather. The only one with arms was reserved for the President. It stood directly in front of Senator Robinson's desk, which bore no flowers and differed from the others in the one respect that it had no chair. It was thus made certain that no one would sit in this place.

Arrival of Senators.

By 10:30 o'clock the first Senators to arrive began drifting in and out. They included Walter F. George of Georgia, Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Davis I. Walsh of Massachusetts, John G. Townsend Jr. of Delaware and the Senate minority leader, Charles L. McNary. Formal attire was the exception, most of the Senators clinging to the ducks and linens appropriate to the weather. It was noted that Senator Bilbo of Mississippi had exchanged his customary scarlet cravat for a black one.

The most affecting group, seated at the right of the casket, was led by Mrs. Robinson, dressed in black and very pale, but tearless and of youthful appearance. There were six or eight other relatives, including a small boy and girl, nephew and niece of Senator Robinson.

At five minutes past noon, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, presiding over the Senate in the absence of Vice-President Garner, rapped discreetly with a gavel. Senators on the floor and visitors in the gallery rose to their feet, including Mrs. Roosevelt, who was seen to wipe her eyes with a handkerchief. Speaker Bankhead entered, and was escorted to a place beside Senator Pittman. The Alabama Congressman was followed by the members of the House in a body, in solemn silence. They not only exhausted the chairs allotted for their use, but lined the chamber's walls. Just before the Vice-President's desk stood the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, former St. Louisan and chaplain of the Senate, with the Rev. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the House.

Then followed a series of entrances which, despite all lack of pomp and glitter, took on something of the appearance of a stately ceremonial, rising to a climax. Justice Butler was escorted to his seat by the Marshal of the Supreme Court. Then came a parade of diplomats, led by Sir Ronald Lindsay,

BYRNES ABANDONS RACE FOR SENATE MAJORITY LEADER

South Carolinian Not a Candidate and It Is Understood He Will Support Harrison.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, announced today he was not a candidate for Democratic leader of the Senate. He made the statement after the funeral service for Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the late leader.

Byrnes' statement follows:

"Until the funeral services of Senator Robinson were held I deemed it improper to make any statement with reference to the Democratic leadership of the Senate.

"To every Senator who has spoken to me on the subject, I have stated that at this time I would not want to serve as the Democratic leader of the Senate and, therefore, will not be a candidate."

Harrison and Barkley.

It was understood from colleagues that Byrnes was planning to support Senator Harrison of Mississippi. Both Byrnes and Harrison were invited separately to White House conferences this afternoon.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky is President Roosevelt's candidate for the post. Roosevelt addressed Barkley as "acting Senate Majority Leader" in his letter on the court bill.

Senator Gillette (Dem.), Iowa, expressed frank surprise at the presidential communication sent to Barkley a few hours after Gillette's White House visit.

Gillette expressed a hope today that President Roosevelt would still "see fit" to take some action to forestall resumption of "hostilities" over the court bill.

Gillette was one of four Democratic Senators who urged the President yesterday to sidetrack the court legislation.

New repercussions from the letter in which the President said "the duty of Congress" to act on the judiciary reform legislation at this session, were heard immediately after today's State funeral for Senator Robinson.

Senator Burke (Dem.), Nebraska, a leading opponent of the court bill, said "someone has lost his sense of proportion."

McNary's Comment.

Senator McNary, Republican leader, commenting on the President's charge that the period for mourning Robinson's death was being violated, declared that "it was

ROOSEVELT DEMANDS PARTY PASS COURT BILL

President, Publicly Recognizing Danger of Defeat of His Scheme, Resorts to Pressure in Letter to Senator Barkley.

SHORT FIVE VOTES OF ENOUGH TO WIN

Burke Says Opposition Is 'Ready, Willing and Anxious' for Test—Even If Senate Approves, Success in House Is Doubtful.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—President Roosevelt's unexpected letter to "acting Senate Majority Leader" Barkley of Kentucky last night demanding the enactment of the "objectives" of his judicial reform bill "at this session" was public recognition that his pending proposal to remake the Supreme Court would be defeated unless great political pressure was exerted from the White House.

Even with excited presidential interest the outcome is still in doubt. The measure still must overcome increasing opposition in the House, if it scrapes through the Senate.

Earlier in the day, word came from the White House that the President intended to put the responsibility up to Congress for accepting or rejecting his court plan. If that intimation had been followed the present proposal probably would have been defeated in the Senate.

Opposition Ready to Fight It Out.

Senator Burke of Nebraska, one of the leaders of the opposition, immediately accepted the presidential challenge, asserting that his group was "ready, willing and anxious" to fight it out as an issue within the party.

The presidential letter inflamed the opposition from two angles. In the first place it addressed Barkley as "the acting Majority Leader in the Senate." The opposition, which will support either Senator Harrison of Mississippi or Senator Byrnes of South Carolina as the successor of the late Senator Robinson of Arkansas, insist that Barkley has no parliamentary status. The President's letter definitely marked the Kentuckian as the White House candidate for the Senate leadership.

In the second place, the President specifically charged that the opposition had broken the "armistice" in the court battle brought about by the death of Senator Robinson. The President said that he found with regret that "advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning."

The opposition immediately countered with a charge that the White House had been busy trying to get support for its court bill while the opponents had respected the truce by making "a studied effort to reach no decision and to refrain from public comment, either on the court bill or the vacancy in the leadership."

Anger in Almost Every Paragraph.

Anger was evident in almost every paragraph of the letter. This may have been inspired by Senator Wheeler's statement that the President "is fighting against God." Although the letter was addressed to Barkley, the President took this method of informing Congress and the country that he was taking personal control of the court fight. He might have used a White House press conference to accomplish the same purpose but the usual meeting with reporters scheduled for this morning was canceled, presumably in deference to the memory of the late Senator Robinson.

To emphasize that he had taken personal command, the President late last night called in Senator Barkley, Senator Pittman of Nevada, president pro tem of the Senate; Senator Minton of Indiana and Senator Schwellenbach of Washington.

While White House attaches denied knowledge of the conference, the four Senators discussed legislative and court bill strategy with the President for two hours. Each refused to comment on the meeting when leaving the White House.

Implications of the Letter.

The President's letter implied two points: (1) That Barkley had reported to the President

JEREMIAH INGERSOLL,

REPUBLIC STEEL CORPORATION clerk and organizer fos the C I O testifying at the inquest into the Memorial day "massacre" in which ten strikers were killed in South Chicago.

FIRST-AID DOCTOR GIVES ACCOUNT OF STEEL 'MASSACRE'

'Peaceful Sunday Crowd' of Marchers Suddenly Turned Into 'Screaming, Bleeding' Mass.

TOO MANY INJURED FOR HIM TO CARE FOR Chicago Inquest Jury to See Movie Record of Police Shooting and Clubbing on Memorial Day.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Dr. Lawrence Jacques, associated with the Civic Medical Center, testified today that shortly after he saw a "peaceful, pleasant Sunday crowd" march toward the Republic Steel Corporation plant in South Chicago last Memorial day, he was surrounded by 40 or 50 "screaming, groaning, bleeding men," shot or beaten by policemen.

Dr. Jacques gave his testimony to a Coroner's jury investigating the killing of 10 men in the steel strike "massacre."

The inquest adjourned at noon until Monday morning. The jury, lawyers, officials and newspaper men went to Paramount motion picture offices this afternoon to view newsreel pictures of the rioting. Although released for public showing throughout the country, the pictures have been barred from theaters here by the police censor.

Dr. Jacques had established a first-aid station at strike headquarters three days before Memorial day. He was at this station, he said, when the crowd started to parade to the plant. Suddenly, he said, he heard shots and saw puffs of smoke rising above the crowd.

Too Many for Him to Handle.

Within a few minutes, he testified, 40 or more wounded were in his station. Unable to care for all the cases himself, he continued, ordered all gunshot cases taken to a hospital and later went there to care for them.

He described the marchers as peaceful, dressed in holiday attire and likely to be mistaken for a picnic party, except for their seriousness.

Dr. Jacques said he had done strike medical duty before, and that he treated 17 or 18 strikers for head wounds suffered in a clash with police the Friday before Memorial day.

Under cross-examination by State's Attorney's aids, the doctor said he knew Thurlow Lewis, general counsel for the United Mine Workers, who has been participating in the inquest, and others of union counsel.

Striker Recalled to Stand.

Louis F. Selenik, a member of the strike strategy committee, was recalled to the stand after having been given a transcript of his testimony before the La Follette Senate Civil Liberties Committee to refresh his memory.

He testified at the inquest that a union organizer, Joe Weber, had advised strike marchers to camouflage clubs as picket signs.

Asked by State's Attorney's assistants if he had told that to the Senate Committee, he said he did not, but added he had outlined Weber's remarks in an affidavit to the committee.

Under questioning by a union attorney, Selenik testified his mind had been hazy, and "certain things" had been vague or "blank" to him since he was struck on the head by police in the riot.

"Are you certain about what instructions Weber gave?" he was asked. "I don't think he gave such advice," he replied.

"When did your mind first become hazy?" "When I testified about Weber here."

Denies Provocation.

Testimony that police fired without provocation was given yesterday by Jeremiah Ingersoll, who became an organizer for the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee in 1937 after resigning as a laborer in a Carnegie-Illinois steel plant.

Ingersoll, who said he was graduated from Amherst College in 1933, testified he saw police fire from close range at the crowd of strikers and sympathizers which surged across the prairie toward the steel plant. He said the crowd was intent only on strengthening a picket line.

"Did the police fire without provocation?" asked Coroner Frank Walsh.

"Yes," replied Ingersoll.

Previously two police lieutenants had testified the first shot was fired from the strikers' ranks and that the police detail was showered with a barrage of stones.

Fired on After Retreat.

The witness said the police continued to fire after the demonstrators had retreated 200 yards. He declared strikers did not resist police attempts to drive them back.

"One policeman drew his gun, took aim at an isolated group of the retreating marchers and fired twice just as though he was singling out an individual striker," said Ingersoll. "He did not fire into the air or at the ground. He fired right at them like he desired to get one particular man."

Clubs, iron pipes and other weapons which police said were picked up on the field were shown to the jury after Patrolman Frank J. Barry gave his version.

Barry, who said he did not participate in the clash, related he saw an officer felled by a brick tossed from the crowd. Policemen, he said, were covering their faces to protect themselves when he heard two shots from the rear of the crowd.

"Then," he said, "the police began to fire and their first shots were fired in the air."

MAE WEST MUST PAY COST OF SUIT BROUGHT BY HUSBAND

Vaudeville Dancer to Be Reimbursed for Legal Fees Spent to Bring Out Marriage in 1918.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 16. — The Supereior Court ruled here today that Mae West, wife of Frank Wallace, must pay what it cost him to prove it.

Judge Robert Kenny closed the case, ruling that the "Diamond Lil" of the movies has been Mrs. Frank Wallace ever since 1911.

The sudden decision was none too welcome. The vaudeville dancer's lawyers said the were not ready to end the case, and Miss West's attorneys protested against her paying the costs.

Mae West recently went into hiding after her answer to the Wallace suit, admitted she had married him in 1911 but stated they never lived together.

About this the judge said:

"I don't see that the question of whether the parties consummated the marriage has anything to do with the case. It might be of historical interest, but certanly not of legal nterest."

JULY WHEAT UP 5 7-8 CENTS ON UNFAVORABLE CROP NEWS

September and December Jump Four Cents to Eight-Year Peaks.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—July wheat rose 5⅞ cents above the early low point today, leading an advance of wheat prices in major North America markets that reflected unfavorable crop reports from the Northwest spring wheat belt, particularly in Canada.

September and December wheat, which rose more than 4 cents at one time to $1.29¾ and $1.31½, were at eight-year peaks.

The July contract reached $1.29⅞ before profit taking sales caused a reaction of about 2 cents. All wheat contracts at Winnipeg rose the daily 5-cent per bushel limit at one stage.

Chicago wheat closed with net overnight gains of 2¼ to 3½ cents a bushel.

Judge Leibell ruled that the Canadian company is "prescent in the City of New York" for business purposes and is amenable to the Government's action.

STATE FUNERAL FOR ROBINSON IN SENATE CHAMBER

the British Ambassador. Following entered the commanders of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, in summer uniform. Next, in single file, came Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Woodring, Postmaster-General Farley, Secretary of Commerce Roper, and Attorney-General Cummings.

Entrance of President.

There was a slight pause, and President Roosevelt appeared on the arm of a military aid. Within the chamber itself, Mr. Roosevelt neither nodded nor spoke to anyone. It was remarked that for the first time in public he looked older than his years, and that he was unusually pale.

Senator Pittman directed the gathering with a gesture to resume its chairs. Then, in an utterance fraught with emotion, and with a distinct pause between successive words, he announced that the President and Congress of the United States had gathered to perform "the preliminary funeral rites for our late beloved friend, Joseph Taylor Robinson."

The Brief Service.

The ceremonies were forthwith delivered into the hands of Dr. Phillips. At a nod over his left shoulder, a soprano voice, unsupported by instruments or chorus, floated out from beneath the press gallery. It was that of Miss Helen Howlinson, Washington choir singer, who sang three stanzas of "Lead, Kindly Light."

The Senate chaplain then recited excerpts from the Episcopalian funeral service, and, also from memory, the beginning of the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, starting with the words, "Let not your heart be troubled." This was followed by a prayer, in the course of which the clergyman, without naming the deceased, thanked Providence for "the noble, gracious example of our beloved friend," and besought that in paradise he might find "light, mercy, peace and refreshment." Miss Howlinson sang "Abide With Me," and Chaplain Montgomery ended the services with a brief prayer.

The President raised himself from his chair without assistance, took the aid's arm and departed without a glance to right or left. Then, in reverse order from that of their entrance, the various groups departed, until only the Senators were left. Thereupon Senator Barkley took the initiative in offering a motion to adjourn.

Arkansas Capitol Suspends Business During Funeral.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 16.—Official State business halted today while funeral services were conducted in Washington for Senator Robinson.

Gov. Carl E. Bailey, proclaiming a 30-day period of State mourning from July 14, ordered the Statehouse closed from 9 until 10:30 a. m. On Sunday services for the late Senator will be held here.

Former Gov. J. M. Futrell has proposed that Mrs. Robinson be appointed to her husband's post. Friends of Gov Bailey said he planned no interim appointment. He withheld comment until after the funeral.

Deauville Club Fittings Sold.

Furnishings and equipment of the Deauville Club, formerly the Casino de Paree, at Manchester and Berry roads, were sold at auction yesterday for about $1800 to satisfy a chattel mortgage. After an attempt to sell all the furnishings in one lot failed, the auctioneer offered the items individually or in small groups. Night club operators were the principal bidders.

Boston Hotel Paymaster Robbed.

only at the White House that conferences were held and political activity was observable."

McNary, who has rarely engaged in the court controversy publicly, said "Congress had preserved the dignities of the occasion" caused by Robinson's death and observed the mourning interval "with great respect."

Gillette and the other three Senators were understood to have urged the President to let the court bill go back to committee so a less controversial proposal could be written for consideration next session.

Harrison to White House.

Meanwhile, the President invited Senator Harrison of Mississippi, one of those mentioned for Senate majority leader, to the White House for a conference this afternoon. It was understood that Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, another prospect, also had been invited to the White House.

While there was no intimation of the nature of the conferences, the invitations were regarded by some Senators as designed to offset the advantage given by the President to Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the other candidate, in conferring with him and writing to him last night.

Barkley and Harrison lunched together today and agreed to have a caucus of Senate Democrats on the leadership next Wednesday morning. The call was to be issued immediately by Senator Black of Alabama, secretary of the conference.

Among those commenting on the President's letter were the following:

Wheeler (Dem.), Montana: "I cannot believe the President wrote such a letter. It would not be in character for the man who is the leader of our party, the President of our country and the man other liberals and I triumphed with in 1932 and 1936.

"I cannot believe Mr. Roosevelt could make political capital out of tragedy of this sort. But if it is so, he must have accepted poor counsel in an hour when men who have lost a friend are particularly susceptible.

"When Joe Robinson passed away, I canceled all engagements and forgot the court bill. After Tuesday, I hope we will all take counsel for the good of the country."

Van Nuys (Dem.), Indiana: "We will select our own leader and dispose of the court bill in our own way without dictation from any source whatsoever."

Van Nuys said the Senate was "pretty well fed up on executive dictation" and would "reassert itself aggressively in the next few days."

CHIEF JUSTICE IN MOUNTAINS

Hughes Takes Three-Mile Walk Daily in New Hampshire.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLETON, N. H., July 16. — Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, now an ardent hiker over nearby White Mountain trails, has set himself a three-mile daily stint while resting from the cares of the Supreme Court.

Carefully guarded against autograph hunters and any others who might interrupt the privacy of his vacation, the jurist is living quietly with Mrs. Hughes in an attractive wooden cottage maintained by a local inn on Sugar Hill. Hotel clerks and telephone operators fend off visitors and the curious from his antique-filled residence, known as the "old fashioned cottage." The Chief Justice has been dividing his days between walking, reading and an occasional automobile drive. Several times he has made shopping tours into Littleton. He and Mrs. Hughes go to the hotel dining room for their meals. One night this week he varied his routine by attending an appearance at the Littleton Opera House by Ernest Foss, a scientific commentator.

DEFENDANT ON STAND IN KIDNAPING TRIAL

Harold Crowley Denies He Was Fugitive From Justice After O'Connell Abduction.

By the Associated Press.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 16.—Harold (Red) Crowley, one of eight on trial for the 1933 John J. O'Connell Jr. kidnaping, denied from the witness stand today that he was a fugitive from justice after the abduction as contended by the Government.

The witness told of various New York and Brooklyn addresses where he lived from July, 1933, until he was arrested last February, and of the jobs he had during that period.

Two confessed participants in the crime have testified Crowley was a guard for 48 hours in the Hoboken (N. J.) apartment where O'Connell was purportedly held for 23 days.

Federal officers reported difficulty in finding former heavyweight boxing champion James J. Braddock and other subpenaed witnesses.

The task of serving the subpenaes was left with the Government when most of the defendants certified to a pauper's oath.

Tex Sullivan, secretary to Braddock, said in New York the boxer was "willing" to testify, but "didn't know just when." He said Braddock was in New York.

Braddock's testimony is sought, defense attorneys said, to show George Garguillo, one of the defendants, was not a fugitive from justice after July, 1933, the month O'Connell was kidnaped, but was well known to boxers and available for questioning in the case.

TAMMANY IS TOLD COPELAND AGREES TO RUN FOR MAYOR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—James J. Dooling, leader of Tammany Hall, made public today a telegram from Senator Royal S. Copeland (Dem.), New York, expressing his willingness to run in the Democratic primaries for Mayor of New York City.

Dooling has been trying to get the four other county leaders in New York City to indorse Copeland as the candidate to oppose the Fusion-Republican incumbent, Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia.

"It is up to enrolled Democrats to decide. Do what you think best. I am willing to run," Dooling quoted the Senator's telegram.

Several days ago in Washington, Copeland said that he would run only if all the county leaders asked him to do so.

Hundreds of Planes Fly Without Lights After 'Invaders' Reach Coast.

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 18.—The liner Queen Mary theoretically rested today on the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean south of Ireland, "sunk" by an attacking cruiser in Britain's vast war games.

The steamship, bound for New York, was theoretically shelled by the cruiser Southampton of an attacking "Blue" battle fleet before the "Red" fleet and air squadrons protecting the English Channel located the "invader."

The "attack" came in the closing hours of a fortnight of naval "combat" over an area stretching from the Azores to the English Channel, in connection with land maneuvers that for the last two days kept all Southern England west of a line from London to Bristol in a "state of war."

The demonstration, designed to test Britain's coast defenses, ended early today. Boy Scouts and women who acted as "war casualties" were rushed to hospitals here while Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare looked on. A mysterious "gas" accounted for most of the "casualties" among the women.

Warships and planes of a mythical "Blue Land," 600 miles out in the Atlantic, "attacked" the ports of Southampton, Portsmouth, Portland and Plymouth.

Throughout the last two days, after the "invaders" reached the coast, hundreds of planes were engaged in the action—flying without lights.

The hottest part of the "battle" was from midnight to 2 a. m. today when even the movements of civilians were restricted.

ANOTHER SCOTTSBORO NEGRO TO GO ON TRIAL MONDAY

Formal Sentencing of Clarence Norris to Take Place Probably Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ala., July 16.—Clarence Norris, Negro, convicted in the Scottsboro case, is to be formally sentenced next week, probably Thursday. Norris was found guilty yesterday and the penalty fixed at death in the electric chair.

The trial of Andy Wright, another of the nine Negro youths accused of attacking two white women, is to start Monday. A third Negro's case, that of Charlie Weems, was reset for Thursday because of the illness of Clarence Watts, defense attorney. Originally the Weems trial was to have followed immediately after that of Norris.

GOV. MURPHY SEEKS TO END TRUCK STRIKE

Hopes to Arrange Conference Which He Says Will Result in Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 16.—Gov. Frank Murphy predicted today a quick settlement of a strike that reduced sharply the number of trucks operating between Michigan cities and instructed State police to keep the highways open while the strike is in progress.

The Governor sought an immediate resumption of negotiations that were broken off late Wednesday when the strike was called for midnight. He said he was confident the conference he hoped to arrange would result in a quick settlement.

The wage scale demanded by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers in Detroit would give dockmen 52½ cents an hour, checkers 55 cents, city drivers 60 cents and "double bottom" men, or drivers of trucks with trailers, 65 cents. The wage scale demanded out-State would be slightly lower. A union spokesman said wages now range of upward from $18 a week.

J. L. Heath of Lansing, chairman of the negotiating committee for the truck operators, declared the scale was "far in excess of what we are able to meet" under present freight rates. He said the union gave the companies no opportunity to present counter-proposals, and that "if we were to ask the Public Utilities Commission for increased rates, it would take 30 days to put them into effect, even if there were no objections."

J. M. O'Laughlin, business agent for the Detroit local, said that 125 of the 170 Detroit trucking companies were ready to sign contracts.

Heath said that no more than 12,000 men were participating in the strike. O'Laughlin said that 8000 trucks and close to 50,000 men were idle.

In Detroit, police provided a convoy for 20 trucks of the U. S. Truck Co., Inc., whose employes belong to an independent union.

In three counties, Sheriff's officers and State policemen ordered strike pickets to desist from halting trucks.

Interstate traffic and movement of freight within cities were not affected. Automobiles, gasoline, milk, fruit, other perishable goods, and beer were exempted specifically by the union. At Port Huron, a truck carrying mail and bread was not permitted to leave until the bread was unloaded.

FRANC FALLS TO NEW LOW IN LATE PARIS TRADING

Sells 26.12 to the Dollar; Government Bonds Drop Two to Four Points.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 16.—The franc slumped today to the lowest point since it was set free to find its own level under Premier Camille Chautemps' financial program, dropping to 26.12 francs to the dollar and 129.80 to the pound in unofficial trading after close of the Bourse.

The quotations compared with the official Bourse closing of 25.9 to the dollar, 128.90 to the pound.

The franc fell to 26.06 to the dollar and 128.93 to the pound on July 1, the first day of trading after lifting of the Cabinet decree which had suspended foreign exchange payments during the period after Leon Blum's resignation as Premier.

It has ranged since then below 26 to the dollar and 129 to the pound.

French Government bonds dropped from two and one-half to more than four points today.

Within two days, 3 per cent bonds dropped nearly 4 francs (cents), while the 4½ per cent issue fell 6¼ francs (about cents). Foreign bonds strengthened on the Bourse, indicating that operators were sending money which once backed French bonds back into foreign securities.

McLaughlin.

The warrants charge the two men with failing to turn over to Dr. Adolph F. Dueber, a dentist, $417 paid them to take up a deed of trust he held.

A deficit of $33,549 in accounts of the company was reported in United States District Court last Saturday by C. J. Stattler, trustee in corporate reorganization.

PREACHER ADMITS KILLING WOMAN WITH DUMB-BELL

HE WAIVES HEARING ON ARRAIGNMENT

Says She Became Hysterical and He Hit Her, Then Threw Her Body Into the Mississippi River

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSFIELD, Ill., July 16.—The Rev. Colonel Ellsworth Newton, who confessed last night the brutal murder of his intimate friend and former parishioner, Mrs. Maybelle Kelly of Paris, Mo., waived preliminary hearing today when arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and was held without bond pending his indictment by the grand jury.

Newton, for 30 years a Baptist minister in Northeast Missouri, showed no trace of remorse today as he sipped beer and smoked cigarettes incessantly in the county jail, where he will be held until the law exacts its penalty.

He beat Mrs. Kelly on the head with "a dumb-bell, hammer or something" and pitched her body over the rail of the Mark Twain Bridge at Hannibal into the Mississippi River, some time after midnight Monday. He did it, he said, because she insisted that he accompany her on her flight from her husband, a rural letter carrier, and became hysterical when he told her he had to be back home by morning.

His confession came out after prosecuting authorities had confronted him with the signed statement of Miss Myra Hanan, a member of his household for 14 years, who was known as his adopted daughter, that he had admitted to her he had "done away with Mrs. Kelly."

He Signs 12-Page Confession.

"Did she say that," he asked incredulously, as paragraph after paragraph of Miss Hanan's detailed statement was read to him. When he had heard it all, he began, without further urging, his own confession, which he signed with a steady hand.

Those present when Newton made his confession were State's Attorney Merrill Johnston and Sheriff Wendell Johnson of Pike County, Illinois, and Prosecuting Attorney Walter G. Stillwell and Sheriff William J. Schneider of Marion County, Missouri. Prosecuting Attorney Thomas V. Proctor and Sheriff Russell Wilkes of Monroe County, of which Paris is the seat, had been active earlier in the investigation.

Newton related that he had known of Mrs. Kelly's intention to leave her husband, and had agreed to drive her on the first stage of her journey in his automobile. He knew, too, of the $1950 she took with her, and Monday night, starting for her home, he put a revolver in the pocket of his machine "for protection," along with a pint of whisky he had bought that night "because I was weak and nervous."

Leaving the neat little bungalow in Paris where Mrs. Kelly had lived and raised two sons to young manhood, the minister drove with her over U. S. Highway 36, across the bridge at Hannibal, and a mile and a half into Illinois.

"I Wanted to Turn Back."

"I wanted to turn back—I had to be back home by morning," Newton said in his written confession. "She insisted that I go with her. She became hysterical, to put it mildly.

"I got out of the car and walked to the rear, and she came back. She was making some kind of nervous sound and pleading with me not to leave her—that she had left home and children.

"She said: 'You are not well, you can't go through another year such as this last one, and neither can I. Why not go together?'

"I tried to quiet her and she became even more excited. She halfway screamed that she would never get back in the car unless we were going together. I couldn't shut her up.

"She sort of shoved me back, and then we both fell down. She fell on the pavement and hit her head. It began bleeding, profusely. I picked her up and tried to put her in the car, then we both fell. I spoke to her, but she didn't answer.

Whisky and "I Became Excited."

"I was feeling faint, and I remembered the whisky in the car. I took two or three small ones, and tried to get some in her mouth, but failed. I heard a rattle in her throat as though she was dying.

"I became excited, and I don't recall all that happened. I think I struck her with something, a hammer or dumb-bell, I think."

Newton said he dragged Mrs. Kelly to the automobile, dumped her into it, and turned back to the bridge they had just crossed together. On the bridge he stopped and threw the body into the river. He said he didn't know whether Mrs. Kelly was dead or alive then. It was a 10-pound dumb-bell he used to beat her. The dumbbell and blood-stained clothing of Newton's, were found last night in

It was a 10-pound dumb-bell he had used to beat her. The dumb-bell and blood-stained clothing of Newton's, were found last night in a creek near Paris where he told of throwing them.

The minister, 51 years old, but younger in appearance, was thoroughly collected as he told of the murder. Tall and spare of frame, he has the bronzed, sinewy look of a man much out of doors. His sandy hair is coarse and stringy; and behind his metal rimmed spectacles, blue-gray eyes looked steadily at his questioners. His mouth, thin-lipped, was drawn tightly and drooped at the corners as he paused between sentences.

"Will you plead guilty?" asked State's Attorney Merrill Johnston when the minister had completed his confession.

"I think the confession I have just signed takes care of that sufficiently," Newton replied.

"I would have told you about it last night," he said with a trace of bitterness, "but someone called me an ugly name, and I resented that."

He smiled amiably as photographers' bulbs flashed, and then was led back to his cell. Stretching out on his bunk he turned his face to the wall and soon fell into a deep sleep.

A visitor at the jail today who said he was H. Anderson, trustee of a church at Grassy Creek, near Louisiana, Mo., told reporters his church had intended to offer its pastorate to Newton.

Mrs. Kelly Buried.

Mrs. Kelly, whose body was taken from the Mississippi River near Louisiana Tuesday afternoon, was buried yesterday afternoon from the substantial red brick First Baptist Church in Paris, where Newton was pastor for 13 years, and where she formerly taught Sunday school. Mrs. Kelly was 45 years old.

She had resigned from the Sunday-school staff early last year when Newton's resignation as pastor was forced by a controversy with some of the church members. After his resignation he preached at several small churches in neighboring communities, but continued to live in Paris, in a modest bungalow which he and his wife shared with Miss Hanan.

Newton's Career.

A graduate of La Grange College, formerly at La Grange, Mo., Newton formerly was pastor of the Baptist church at Kahoka, Mo., and while there served a four-year term as Mayor. He became pastor of the church at Paris in 1923. Throughout his pastorate there Mrs. Kelly was one of the most active church members, and in the controversy which led to his resignation she was his most steadfast supporter.

All but $10 of the $1950 Mrs. Kelly had obtained from a bank Monday in preparation for her trip has been recovered. Miss Hanan turned over to the Sheriff of Monroe County at 2 o'clock yesterday morning $1930 she said Newton had given her for safekeeping. A $10 bill which was among those the bank had issued to Mrs. Kelly was taken from Newton's pocket after his arrest.

LEGISLATOR CHARGED WITH RESISTING ARREST

Frank X. Dorsey and Two Women, One Accused of Reckless Driving, Spend Night in Jail.

State Representative Frank X. Dorsey, 920 Wilmington road, was charged with resisting arrest in a warrant issued yesterday by Justice of the Peace Edward L. Wiedeker of Webster Groves on complaint of two deputy constables who arrested Dorsey and two woman companions Wednesday night at Lindbergh boulevard and Watson road, St. Louis County.

Warrants charging careless driving, driving on the wrong side of the road without lights, driving while under the influence of liquor, and resisting arrest were issued against Mrs. Vera Callahan, 3515 Dodier street, former Democratic City Committeewoman for the Nineteenth Ward. The second woman, who said she was Miss Isabelle Mary Schovel, 928 North Grand boulevard, also was charged with resisting arrest.

Mrs. Callahan called the Post-Dispatch today to deny that she was intoxicated when arrested. "I didn't know what I was being arrested for," she said. "The officers didn't tell me."

The three refused to give their names when they were taken to Constable Joe Doran's office by Deputy Constables Edward and Joseph Vegylek. Wiedeker issued blank jail commitments, and they spent the night in County Jail at Clayton. Yesterday they were released on bond pending a hearing in Wiedeker's court Thursday. Dorsey is an insurance salesman, serving his first term in the Legislature.

ROY T. DAVIS MADE PRESIDENT OF WASHINGTON GIRLS' SCHOOL

Columbia (Mo.) Resident Who Was Minister to Panama Will Head National Park Seminary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Mrs. J. C. Ament, acting president of the National Park Seminary, girls' school near Washington, announced today that Dr. Roy T. Davis, vice-president of Stephens College at Columbia, Mo., and former United States Minister to Panama, had been elected president. The appointment is effective immediately. Dr. Davis will remain in Washington to make plans for the next school year.

Under the new administration, the seminary will be in corporated as National Park College and will offer the junior college courses as well as the four-year preparatory courses. Dr. Davis said today he would shortly announce a committee of eight prominent educators to act as advisers on a special curriculum of social sciences and fine arts.

Dr. Davis has been associated with Dr. James M. Wood, president of Stephens College, in the development of the Columbia college during the past few years. He was secretary of Stephens College when he was appointed Minister to Guatemala in 1921 by President Harding. A year later he was named Minister to Costa Rica and in 1930 was promoted as Minister to Panama. While serving as Minister to Panama he was a mediator in the revolution of 1931. In recognition for this service, the Panama Government, by a presidential decree, changed the name of the largest lake in Panama, Great Lake, to Lake Davis. In 1928 he was mediator in the boundary dispute between Guatemala and Honduras. In 1933 he was an American delegate to the International Radio Conference at Mexico, D. F.

Robbed of $183 on Way to Bank.

M. E. Bailey, bookkeeper for the Loop Market, 6675 Delmar boulevard, University City, was robbed of $183 yesterday afternoon as he was walking to the nearby Delmar Bank of University City at 6605 Delmar. A man snatched a bag containing the money from him and ran to an automobile in which a companion was waiting.

INDICTMENTS OF 8 ELECTION CLERKS UPHELD

Judge Griffin Overrules Demurrer — All Accused of Failing to Properly Canvass Precincts.

LEGISLATOR TO ASK FOR FURTHER DELAY

Attorney Maurice Schechter Got These, 13 Other cases Put Off From January and February.

Indictments of eight election clerks, charged with failing to canvass their precincts properly in the supplementary registration of June 18, 1936, were upheld today by Judge James W. Griffin of the Court of Criminal Correction. Judge Griffin overruled a demurrer to the indictments, offered by Maurice Schechter, attorney for the eight and for 13 others similarly, indicted.

Schechter, a member of the Legislature, who used his office, under the lawyer-legislator continuance statute, to get the cases of the 21 clerks put off from last January and February until this month, announced to the court that he would ask for further delay.

Judge Griffin, after overruling the demurrer, set seven of the cases for next Monday—a tentative setting, as soon appeared.

"I hope," Schechter said, "that the Court will not force me to trial too soon. I have not prepared these cases on the facts. Up to this time I have considered only their legal side. I had hoped to get a little respite, after a very busy session of the Legislature. I could not be ready to try one of these cases next Monday, but if forced to do so, I could be ready by Monday, July 26."

Judge Apologizes for Remarks.

Judge Griffin, replying, took a sympathetic tone toward Schechter, and went so far as to apologize to him for having commented unfavorably, last winter, on the applications for continuances. At that time, Judge Griffin said he was "not fooled" as to the purpose of the applications, but saw no way to avoid granting them.

"I am disposed to consider any matter that counsel has to offer as to a continuance," Judge Griffin said. "Counsel has done useful work in the Legislature, and although I originally had the idea that these pleas were made merely as tactics of delay, I have changed my mind since I have seen the work you have done on the case. Your brief (accompanying the demurrer) was an exhaustive piece of work, and I thank you for it. I stand in the position of wishing to apologize for having expressed myself as I did on what I then considered dilatory tactics."

Reply by Schechter.

Schechter replied that the cases had come to him without suggestion that he should obtain continuances through his legislative office. He said other cases were offered to him with the provision that he should get continuances, and he refused them.

Judge Griffin said the request for a continuance would be considered when the first cases are called Monday. The seven defendants whose cases are set for Monday are Earl J. Foley, Anton J. Giljun, R. E. Sutton, N. L. Schnurr, Nathan Sherman, William A. Otten and Russell Leslie. Those in whose behalf the demurrer was filed were Harold Hancock, Thomas Lyons, Frank Jacinski, William L. Davenport, Elmer Nesselhauf, James E. Murphy, Thomas Kilcullen and James G. Lane.

The offense charged in all the cases is a misdemeanor. The election clerks, whose duty it was to canvass their precincts after the supplementary registration, and to strike off names not verified by them, were indicted after persons whose names they left on the lists were not found by later canvassers.

COURT ASKED TO SET ASIDE $20,000 FIRST NATIONAL FEES

Committee of Certificate Holders Files Motion With Circuit Judge Joynt.

Circuit Judge John W. Joynt was asked by a committee representing holders of defaulted mortgage participation certificates of the First National Co. today to set aside an order in which he allowed fees of $20,000 to several attorneys for services in litigation resulting from the default.

A similar motion, filed last month after Judge Joynt had allowed a $30,000 fee to Hyman Stein for his legal services, is still pending before him. The attorneys represented individual clients but Judge Joynt held their work benefited all participation holders and assessed the fees against trustees for the participation holders.

About $9,700,000 of the participation certificates issued by the First National Co., investment affiliate of the First National Bank, are outstanding. Their holders have received payments totaling 52 per cent.

TWO CHICAGO YOUTHS GET 5 YEARS FOR THREE HOLDUPS

Boys Who Came Here "Just to Get Away From School" Plead Guilty.

James Kohler and James Crinion, Chicago high school students who admitted three holdups in St. Louis after they came here "just to get away from school for awhile," pleaded guilty of robbery today and were sentenced to five years in Algoa Reformatory by Circuit Judge William B. Flynn.

They were charged with the $10 holdup of a loan firm at 3520 St. Louis avenue March 19. The following day they were arrested as they attempted to escape in a taxicab after taking $170 from a clothing store at 7622 South Broadway. Kohler, who is 18 years old, was shot in the back by a policeman when he jumped from the cab and ran. He has recovered. Crinion, 17, was captured in the cab. Their third holdup was in a shoe store at 1534 South Broadway, where they got $28.

PARK SERVICE APPRAISERS TO FIX RIVERFRONT VALUES

In Case of Condemnation, Estimates on Jefferson Memorial Sites Will Go to Court Commissioners.

Prices the National Park Service will offer for property in the Jefferson Memorial riverfront area will be determined by appraisals made by representatives of the Park Service, John L. Nagle, project superintendent, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today. Assessed value will not determine the price, but will be considered in the appraisal, he said.

Where property is acquired by condemnation, the procedure, he said, probably will be for the Court to appoint commissioners to fix the price. In those cases, the Park Service appraisals will be submitted to the commissioners, but will not bind them. In case the Park Service and owner should agree on a price it would not be necessary for condemnation commissioners to determine value unless the court considers the agreed price improper.

A. W. Albrecht, head of a business concern in the Memorial area, said today that use of 1936 assessed values would be to the disadvantage of property owners, as assessments have been reduced since 1930.

PAINTERS START ON WRONG HOUSE; LEAVE JOB HALF DONE

Tenants in Richmond Heights Thought Landlord Had Ordered Improvement.

When painters arrived yesterday at 1021 Commodore drive, Richmond Heights, took down the awnings and screens, and began painting the window frames of the brick flat, the two families who live there said nothing. They thought the landlord was having the house painted.

Early in the afternoon, however, the painters went to Mrs. E. G. Heine, who lives upstairs, and told her they were sorry, but they had made a mistake. They had the wrong house and were supposed to be painting one a block over on Claytonia terrace. They moved on, after having painted the window frames on one side of the house, a side door, and the back porch.

BIG WHEAT CROP IN COUNTY

Harvest to Bring $500,000, or Twice as Much as Last Year.

St. Louis County farmers will receive a total of about $500,000 for the wheat crop just harvested, or more than twice as much as last year, County Farm Agent Russell H. Lander told reporters today.

The crop totaled about 450,000 bushels, and would have been even greater except for a hard rain which damaged some of the standing grain just before harvesting. Last year's crop was 225,000 bushels, sold at prices averaging about 25 cents a bushel lower than this year's.

FOREIGN BONDHOLDERS FILE OBJECTION TO RAIL CLAIM

Objections to the $18,335,577 claim of the Southern Pacific Railroad against the Cotton Belt Railroad were filed in United States District Court yesterday by counsel for two foreign corporations holding about $1,891,000 in Cotton Belt bonds.

The foreign corporations asked dismissal of the claim on the ground the Southern Pacific, which controls the Cotton Belt through ownership of shares, discharged its own obligation, in effect, when it bought the claim, secured by Cotton Belt bonds, from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The corporations are the Anglo-Continentale Treuhand, A. G., of the European principality of Liechtenstein and the Mondiale Handels-Und Verwaltungs, A. G., of Paris, France. They pointed out that Southern Pacific owned 97 per cent of the preferred and 77 per cent of the common shares of the Cotton Belt.

WPA OUTLAY, $880,000,00

Hopkins Tells of Expenditures in Last Six Months.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, said today WPA expenditures in the last six months dropped below the billion-dollar mark. They totaled about $880,000,000.

During the first half of 1936, WPA cost $1,049,000,000, and in the last half it was $1,020,000,000. Emergency expenditures for drouth, Hopkins said, prevented a larger reduction during the last six months of 1936.

RIGHTS OF DARDENNE CLUB TO CREEK WATER AFFIRMED

Court of Appeals Sustains Order To Remove Dams That Ended Duck Shooting.

Resumption of duck shooting at the Dardenne Club in St. Charles County next autumn appeared possible today, the St. Louis Court of Appeals having affirmed a Circuit Court order for removal of two dams in Belleau Creek which last year diverted water from Dardenne's two lakes.

With the lakes dry, there was no shooting last year at Dardenne, where for 50 years St. Louisans who belonged to the club had sought their sport in the duck-hunting season.

The Court of Appeals found, as the Circuit Court had, that the two dams, a mile south of the club property, were constructed to divert water to duck ponds on a farm there, and not, as the farmer contended, to protect his acres from overflow waters of the creek.

PARADE FOR RUSSIAN FLYERS IN LOS ANGELES

Public Reception, With City Hall Ceremony, Planned for Aviators.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 16.—The three Russian flyers, who traveled from Moscow to California this week to set a new record for distance flying of 6262 miles, were Los Angeles' guests today.

Mayor Frank L. Shaw announced tentative plans for a public reception, including a downtown parade followed by ceremonies on the City Hall steps. Los Angeles' largest hotel has been engaged for a banquet in honor of the second trio of Soviet air heroes to fly nonstop over the North Pole to the United States within a month. At noon today a luncheon was arranged for them by the Russian-American Institute.

After an indefinite stay in Los Angeles they will go to San Francisco, then to Washington and New York.

The flyers—Pilot Mikhail Gromov, Co-pilot Andrei Yumashev and Navigator Sergei Danilin—were honored at a naval and marine corps' officers luncheon yesterday in San Diego, where they replenished their wardrobes.

A crowd of 3000 met them as they arrived at the station here last night. "The International" was sung and the Communist salute was given by persons in the crowd.

Besieged by autograph hunters and with invitations to charity shows, film studios and a rodeo, the flyers made room on their program for a banquet by Southern California Aircraft Manufacturers tonight.

Stanley Shumovsky, Soviet aviation representative, said he understood the next trans-polar hop would be in a passenger-type plane and with a stop in Alaska for refueling.

En route here, A. Vartanian, flight co-ordinator for the Russian Government, told reporters at Portland, Ore., that still another aerial project might be "around the world by the North and South Poles."

FUNERAL FOR CHILDREN WHO DIED OF DYSENTERY

Norbert and Eleanore Rickert to Be Buried Tomorrow; Six Others in Family Ill.

Funeral services for Norbert Rickert, 6 years old, and his 3-year-old sister, Eleanore, who died of bacillary dysentery in St. Anthony's Hospital, will be held tomorrow from the J. H. Gebken mortuary, 2842 Meramec street. Interment will be in SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery.

The physician in attendance said they may have been infected by the meal which they ate last Friday night with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rickert, and six brothers and sisters at their home, 3735A Oregon avenue. The infection may also have come from the soiled hands of one of the family who handled the food, the physician said.

The children were taken ill Saturday. Norbert died Wednesday morning and his sister yesterday morning. Francis, 13 years, and Thomas, 10 months, are still at St. Anthony's Hospital. William, 19 years; Elsie, 17; Rose Mary, 10, and their mother are ill at home.

STOLEN CAR UPSET IN RUNNING PISTOL FIGHT IN COUNTY

Two Deputy Constables Chase Machine for 8 Miles on Lindbergh Blvd. at High Speed.

Two deputy constables of Clayton Township, William J. Murphy and Edward Bates, pursued a stolen automobile, driven by a Negro, for eight miles on Lindbergh boulevard, shortly after 2 a. m. today, and 15 or more shots were exchanged before the pursued car was overturned, its driver escaping. Two Negroes in another car followed the deputies for a part of the distance, and fired three shots. The deputies and their car were not hit.

Murphy was driving when the two constables saw a sedan standing in front of a closed filling station at the southwest corner of Lindbergh and Manchester road. The deputy turned toward the parked car, and Bates called to its occupant, "Police officers."

The occupant started the car south, and the deputies pursued him to and through Kirkwood, the speed of the chase being 60 to 80 miles an hour. Each time the pursuers came alongside, the fleeing driver would lower his body and, with his left hand still on the wheel, would fire a weapon in his right hand. Bates returned the fire.

The third car, appearing after the pursuit had begun, was the source of at least three more shots, fired at the deputies' car, before it dropped out of the chase.

Both the deputies' weapons, a revolver and an automatic pistol, had been emptied, but they got out and started toward the wreck, when two shots stopped them. The man who had been in the car ran to a barn a short distance away and was not found later.

The overturned car was found to belong to a city constable, Aloysius F. Dolan, 6120 Oakland avenue. Dolan had taken the car to a repair shop last evening, and it was stolen from the shop about midnight. Murphy and Bates believe their pursuit interrupted a plan to use it, and the other car figuring in the chase, in robbing a restaurant at Manchester and Lindbergh. They surmised, from spots in the car, that one of Bates' bullets hit the driver.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Mrs. Althea Ferne Dennis, 45-year-old former teller in the Lake Shore Trust & Savings Bank, pleaded guilty before Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday of embezzlement of almost $16,000 over a period of six years and was sentenced to the Federal penitentiary for one year and a day.

Mrs. Dennis confessed some of the money was lost in betting on horse races, particularly in a North Side handbook, which Assistant District Attorney Thomas B. Hart said, was operated by Pearl Morgan, who, he said, was now in Florida. Mrs. Dennis lost between $5000 and $10,000 in the Morgan place and Hart said he was investigating the possibilities of prosecuting the handbook operators.

Judge Holly said he believed it was "criminal" for banks to employ persons in responsible positions and pay them only $100. Hart told the Judge Mrs. Dennis was receiving $100 a month at the first of the year and only $105 at the time of her arrest three weeks ago.

5 EAST SIDE TAVERN OWNERS ARRESTED IN LICENSE DRIVE

Charged With Failing to Make Third Quarterly Payment of $125.

Five East St. Louis tavern proprietors were arrested today on charges of failing to make the third quarterly payment of $125 for their city retail liquor dealers' licenses. The arrests were part of a drive by John T. Conners, City Finance Commissioner, to force all tavern owners to buy the licenses, which cost $500 a year.

Those arrested and their places of business are as follows: Cyril Seibert, 912 Market avenue; Walter Callahan, 104 South Thirty-fifth street; Nolan Culpepper, 582 North Eighty-second street; Steve Shea, 1600 State street, and William Whiteside, 306 St. Clair avenue. They were released on bond pending a hearing Wednesday before Justice of the Peace Walter W. Hinderberger, who issued the warrants.

A jury in Hinderberger's court yesterday decided that the St. Clair County Citizens' Club, 1309 Missouri avenue, is not a social club, but a tavern and must pay the city the retail liquor dealers' fee.

The Gebhardts set forth that they own $1500 of the stock of the firm, which has an authorized capitalization of $50,000, but that they had received no dividends in recent years.

The petition also said that both Harry Staees, listed as president of the finance concern, and H. D. La Tourette, its secretary, have other occupations and that the firm is therefore suffering from lack of proper management.

The company was ordered to show cause July 22 why a receiver should not be named. Its officers could not be reached.

BAIRD MARKHAM JR.

ABDUCTED, but later released at Sapulpa, Ok., by three escaped Texas convicts.

SON OF OIL MAN FREED BY PRISON FUGITIVES

Seized on Oklahoma Highway —Two of Three Captors Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

SAPULPA, Ok., July 16.—Baird H. Markham Jr., 21 years old, son of a New York oil executive, was released last night four miles west of here by prison fugitives who abducted him earlier in the day. He was unharmed.

Desk Sergt. Charles Anderson of the highway patrol said Markham told him two of three captors were wounded.

Anderson said Markham identified a picture of Roy "Pete" Traxler, Oklahoma desperado and escaped Texas prison farm convict, as the driver of the car. Traxler, he said, was suffering from a wound in the left arm.

Markham, Anderson said, also identified another of the three as Charles Chapman, another Texas prison fugitive.

Traxler was one of nine convicts who escaped amid gunfire from the Eastham prison farm at Huntsville, Tex., a week ago. Four of the convicts were captured, one was killed and a guard was wounded.

The third man, Markham added, was referred to as "Fred." Fred Tindol of Jasper, Ark., was one of the nine who escaped from the prison farm.

The men seized young Markham as officers closed in on them in the Ada area. They had abandoned a car near Steedman and forced Markham to halt as he drove toward an oil well.

Markham was released after eight hours and 15 minutes, during which he said the men criss-crossed through the country, dodging a posse from which they had escaped by abandoning their own car and taking to the woods only shortly before.

"They weren't interested in me," he said. "It was my car they wanted. All said they were escaped convicts from the Texas prison farm.

"They decided at first they couldn't let me go because of the quickness with which I would notify police. Then they decided that if I was with them, the police wouldn't shoot, should they encounter any.

"I directed them through Seminole, then we waited until dark.

"After that we circled toward Bristow and then came toward Sapulpa.

"They said they wouldn't waste any time at all shooting if officers stopped them, although it wasn't quite clear what would happen to me in that event. However, they seemed sure the police wouldn't fire on them with me in the car."

DONNELLY GARMENT CO. SUES UNION FOR $300,000 DAMAGES

U. S. Judge Allows Concern to Include Claim in Its Injunction Action.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 16.—United States District Judge Merrill E. Otis granted the Donnelly Garment Co. permission yesterday to include a claim for $300,000 in its injunction suit against the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and 193 officers and members.

The Donnelly company, manufacturer of women's dresses and operated by Mrs. Nell Donnelly Reed, wife of former Senator James A. Reed, recently filed proceedings to restrain the union from interfering with it.

Judge Otis allowed the company to amend its injunction petition to include the following:

"As a direct result of the wrongful acts of the defendants," the company has "suffered damages to their business, good will, profits and property' in the sum of $100,000.

R. E. Murray, attorney for the concern, said the injunction is sought on the theory the acts charged were in violation of the anti-trust laws. These laws, he said, permit a person whose property has been injured to sue for three-fold damages.

HARLAN CO. CLUB PAID FOR ATTACK ON LA FOLLETTE

Secretary of Young Democrat Clubs Says Kiwanis Committee Put Articles in Party Organ.

The recent publication of the Young Democrat Clubs of America, denouncing the Senate Civil Liberties Committee investigation of anti-union terrorism in Harlan County, Kentucky, was paid for by a committee of the Harlan County Kiwanis Club, Acey Carraway, executive secretary of the Young Democratic Clubs, has written to a St. Louis representative of the organization.

His letter was in response to a protest against the articles from Alfred Fleishman, national committeeman of the clubs for Missouri and Chief Deputy Circuit Clerk here. The articles, as told in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, appeared in the last issue of the "National Young Democrat," organ of the clubs. Fleishman made public today his correspondence with Carraway.

Writing from Washington, Carraway said:

"The last issue of the publication was paid for by the Citizens' Committee of the Kiwanis Club of Harlan County. This Kiwanis group is made up of the principal business and professional men of this county."

Advances Explanation.

He advanced the explanation that the issue devoted to extolling Harlan County was intended to balance adverse criticism, saying:

"Inasmuch as the Democratic administration was a party to bringing out only a bad side of a community of our country, the Democratic organization should be equally anxious, to give credit where credit is due. In accordance therewith, the editor of the 'National Young Democrat' took a trip to Harlan to investigate things at first-hand and his conclusions were printed verbatim. There was no intention to desert the principles of this administration. On the contrary, the article was printed in the spirit of fairness to all concerned."

Fleishman complained about the three full-page advertisements in the issue, signed by the "Harlan Civic Committee," and charged that the editorial matter created the impression that it was a "payoff" for the advertising. Carraway replied that the "Young Democrats" had failed to support their publication by producing advertising.

Fleishman's Protest.

"As a member," Fleishman wrote, "I must protest against the use of the 'National Young Democrat' columns for this sort of thing. It is my definite conviction that ours should be a liberal organization and not devoted to the defense of conditions which a Senate committee has revealed. If the Harlan Countians feel the need of defense, let them do so to the best of their ability, but not by purchase of space in the Young Democrat. There are other and more proper places. I feel, from the expressions I have heard, that I express the views of a great number of our young Democrats in protesting against the use of our columns for espousing the cause of communities or persons who have been under investigation by Senate committees."

In a later letter to Caraway, Fleishman said it would be better to have no paper than one which had to use propaganda to pay its way and described the assertion of the "National Young Democrat" that the Harlan investigation was part of a third-party movement by Senator LaFollette as "pretty small stuff."

that the situation was so critical that a public presidential notice was necessary to point out that party loyalty was expected, and (2) that a second "compromise" is likely to be offered. There have been vague reports that a third court bill, much milder than the pending measure, would be introduced but no Senator will admit that he knows its provisions.

Immediate and drastic White House action was necessary if a court bill was to have a chance at this session. The progressive poll kept of the Senate by the Post-Dispatch indicated that the pending measure would be beaten unless great political pressure was brought to bear on the wavering Senators.

46 Against, 43 For.

The poll today shows 46 Senators against the compromise; 43 for it and six noncommittal. With the death of Robinson, a majority of the Senate is 48, which means that the Roosevelt forces must have five of the six mute Senators who are apparently waiting to see what political advantage they can obtain by going to one side or the other.

These six political brokers are: Brown of New Hampshire, Chavez of New Mexico, Johnson of Colorado, Lewis of Illinois, Lundeen of Minnesota and Russell of Georgia. All except Lundeen, who is a Farmer-Laborite, are Democrats. Efforts to find how they stand on the court bill have proved futile although both sides claim them. The leaders admit in private that they must be put in the doubtful column.

The opposition leaders, Wheeler of Montana, Clark of Missouri and Burke of Nebraska, insist, and apparently with some reason, that they will have four or five more votes on a motion to recommit the bill to the Senate Judiciary Committee "for further study" than they have against the bill itself. This action would have the effect of killing the bill. Lewis, the Democratic whip, has told friends that he would vote to recommit.

This Week-End Crucial.

This week-end will be the crucial test of the President's influence. He has announced that he will forego his usual trip down the Potomac. The stay in Washington will also give him time to talk with Senators and Representatives. He held one conference yesterday with Senators Andrews of Florida, Brown of Michigan, Gillette of Iowa and Johnson of Colorado, and, while they made a formal statement after the meeting that they had no comment, all except Johnson are expected to vote to recommit the bill, and if necessary, to vote against it.

The week-end will also give the President an opportunity to confer on the Senate leadership fight, on which there will be an inconclusive test Tuesday at the Democratic caucus. Before the voting, the court bill opposition is expected to agree to cast their votes en bloc for one of their favorites. All three men have announced for the court plan, but Barkley has led the fight while the other two remained comparatively quiet. If Barkley is selected leader, or if the plan of Senator Pittman of Nevada to postpone action until January is followed the court opposition will suffer another blow. If Byrnes or Harrison is chosen, the opposition will claim a major victory.

Too many factors other than the court fight are involved in the leadership fight for a clean cut conclusion.

Some Would Kill Bill Outright.

The real test will come on the question of whether debate shall be continued or the bill recommitted to the Judiciary Committee. Several Senators, like Bailey of North Carolina, want to kill the bill outright by the vote of the Senate. The more realistic in the opposition would be satisfied with a victory on a motion to recommit. They base this strategy on their prediction of a larger majority on the milder proposition.

Why has sentiment changed since February when the President, Postmaster-General Farley, Attorney-General Cummings and other White House leaders were so confident? Not only is the court plan under water but the President's remaining legislative program, the wages and hours bill, the farm subsidy, executive reorganization, plugging of income tax loopholes and housing legislation are endangered.

The question involves a variety of factors, all cumulative.

The surprise message and the original White House court bill were not well received at the very start, but Roosevelt's prestige as the result of the November election was thought great enough to press it through a reluctant Congress. Senators Wheeler, Clark and Burke, leading the attack in the Senate, received unexpected support from their colleagues and the fortuitous aid of the Supreme Court itself when it upheld the Washington minimum wage law and the Wagner Labor Relations Act. Then Justice Van Devanter retired, giving the President one immediate appointment.

Roosevelt Men's Poor Showing.

Meanwhile, the Roosevelt forces were making a poor showing. Chairman Ashurst of the Judiciary Committee, put in a difficult position because he had ridiculed the idea of "packing the court," had to stultify himself by explaining he was a master of inconsistency. Each day's delay in the Senate Judiciary Committee cut into the Roosevelt support. By the time Robinson was ready to call up for consideration the original bill for the immediate appointment of five new Justices, he had to admit defeat by sponsoring the Logan-Hatch "compromise," which did not change the principle of the original proposal. Robinson was confident that he had 54 sure votes for his substitute. A few days later the estimate was down to 51 and now the administration will have to exert all its influence if it is to get more than a one or two vote majority.

Sumners' Speech.

A devastating blow came this week in the unexpected speech by Chairman Hatton W. Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee.

Sumners, a picturesque Texan and one of the greatest constitutional authorities in Congress, has a personal following in the House on legal proposals comparable to that of Senator Norris of Nebraska on liberal measures. His blunt announcement in the House Tuesday that he would do all in his power to keep the court bill from being reported by his committee put the Roosevelt forces on notice that a petition requiring 218 signatures—a majority of the House—would be required before the House could consider the plan to remake the Supreme Court. This meant that Congress might be in session until September or October.

Senator Robinson had great difficulty during the Senate debate. The fighting spirit and the discipline were on the other side. Party loyalty was having its gravest test, primarily because none of the congressional leaders had been consulted on the original bill or the message which sought to justify it. Some of his closest personal and political friends were leading the attack against him. The fight was splitting the Democratic party wide open, and bitter personalities were frequently dragged into the acrimonious debate.

One of the nice parliamentary points opposition leaders expect to decide in the next few days is whether they will agree to the pairing of the two pro-Roosevelt Senators now on the sick list, Norris and Hayden. Both are counted as voters for the "compromise," but if pairs cannot be arranged their votes will be lost and the Roosevelt plan will lose two important votes, votes which possibly might decide the issue.

Congressmen Want to Get Away.

On top of all this, tropical weather descended on Washington. It is safe to say that a majority of the Senators and Representatives want to get away from Washington as soon as possible. Air-conditioning may be a boon to industry but many Congressmen believe that it is a peril to their health. Their wives have even stronger views on the subject. Senator Norris has already left Washington at the orders of his physician and Senator Hayden of Arizona is in the hospital. Senator Copeland of New York, a doctor, has repeatedly warned his colleagues about the low temperature of the Senate chamber.

It takes a hardy Senator or Representative to alternate between air-cooled departmental buildings and blistering Pennsylvania avenue several times during a morning and then wander in and out of the air-cooled congressional chambers in the afternoon. The immediate effects are breath-taking, chill and suffocation.

Text of President's Letter Calling for Court Bill Passage

WASHINGTON, July 16.

THE text of President Roosevelt's letter to Senator Barkley of Kentucky on the court bill, follows:

My dear Alben:

I am glad you called my attention to certain events of yesterday and today. Lest there be any misunderstanding in regard to judicial reform, please let me clarify the situation.

Since the untimely death of our majority leader, I had hoped with you that at least until his funeral services had been held a decent respect for his memory would have deferred discussion of political and legislative matters.

It is, therefore, with regret that I find that advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning.

Because of this situation, however, I am compelled in the public interest, though against every inclination, to write to you. I do this because you are the acting majority leader in the Senate.

Over four years ago it became apparent to the American people and to the leadership of the new administration of the national government and to the newly elected Congress that grave problems of many kinds called for great reforms. The American people, in an overwhelming majority, recognized the need for bank reform, for agricultural reform, for labor reform, for housing reform and for judicial reform.

I cite the above merely as examples. Other lesser reforms went hand in hand with them as national needs. The Congress and the administration effected during the first four years many of these reforms. The reform of the processes of justice, the need for which was nothing new, was recommended by me on Feb. 5 of this year. The time had come to act.

In my message to Congress I set forth objectives. With these objectives the overwhelming majority of the people of this country were in accord. With these objectives the overwhelming majority of the Congress were in accord.

Proposed tentative legislation was drawn at that time to facilitate discussion of methods in both houses of the Congress and discussion commenced immediately in the Congress and throughout the country.

Let me make clear once more the objectives. They constituted improvements in the process of justice in all Federal courts, from the lowest to the highest. These improvements included systematic addition of younger Judges to all such courts in which there were Judges beyond retirement age who had not taken advantage of retirement privileges—for the dual purpose of helping the older Judges give a maximum of justice in a minimum of time, and of keeping the social viewpoints of the courts abreast of changing conditions. Those improvements also contemplated adequate machinery for supervision by the Supreme Court of the expeditious dispatch of business by the lower courts, and for getting constitutional questions to the Supreme Court without delay.

These were the objectives. At no time have I or any member of my administration insisted that the method or methods originally proposed be sacred or final except to point out that action was of immediate necessity and, therefore, that the process of constitutional amendment was an impossibility if the objective was to be attained within a reasonable time. It is, of course, clear that any determined minority group in the nation could, without great difficulty, block ratification by one means or another in at least 13 states for a long period of time.

Objectives can be obtained by constitutional legislation and both the original bill and Senator Robinson's bill were clearly constitutional.

There was the other reason for action by legislation rather than by constitutional amendment. The situation of the civilized world has been, for several years, at a point of extreme danger. This has been caused by three factors—aggression and armament, economic crisis and major social needs.

The United States is happily free from any thought of aggression, or armament for aggression, but the people of the United States have called for economic security and for major social improvements. National safety demands them.

About a month ago Senator Robinson advised me that some new form or forms of method were called for if the objectives of judicial reform were to be attained. I told him that in my judgment the bill he proposed would be a satisfactory method of attaining such objectives. I told him further what I had told to all others who have asked my opinion—that on the Congress of the United States falls the primary responsibility for the adoption of methods but that on the President falls the responsibility of recommending objectives. This is in accordance with the Constitution.

To abandon any reform of the judicial processes at this session of the Congress means an abandonment of the objectives.

An abandonment of judicial reform, including, of course, all the Federal courts, because of the inability of a majority of Senators or a majority of Representatives to agree on method and reach a vote, places the responsibility squarely on the Congress of the United States.

May I, therefore, tell you very simply once more that the objectives of the President, and, I believe, of the great majority of our citizens, remain the same, and that I believe that it is the duty of the Congress, and especially of the members of the majority party in the Senate and the House of Representatives, to pass legislation at this session to carry out the objectives.

Very sincerely yours,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

President Canvasses Situation With Barkley, Pittman and Others.

By the Associated Press.

The President canvassed the legislative situation last night in a conference with Senators Barkley, Pittman, president pro tempore, Minton (Dem.), Indiana, and Schwellenbach (Dem.), Washington. Afterward they said only that they had reported to the President on the status of all legislation, bill by bill.

AID OF COAST GUARD SOUGHT FOR STRIKE-BOUND ISLANDS

Nantucket and Vineyard Service Up to President; Appeal Sent by Governor.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 16.—Coast Guard headquarters at Washington indicated today that it was up to the White House whether their vessels would supply transportation to the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard. Supplies for the islands have been cut off by a maritime strike.

James T. Moriarty, Massachusetts Commissioner of Labor, announcing resumption of private strike conferences, said he thought an agreement could be reached.

Meanwhile Gov. Charles F. Hurley said he had received no reply to his request for Coast Guard assistance in transporting supplies to the islands.

However, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said at Washington that he did not think the strike justified use of the Coast Guard.

Four men representing themselves to be inspectors for the St. Louis County Health Department, who have called this week on several Meramec River resort owners and asked for a fee of $5 to inspect health conditions on the premises, have no authority from the department, Dr. Theodore R. Meyer, County Health Commissioner, said today.

Inspection of resorts in not required, Dr. Meyer said, but his assistants visit the resorts occasionally to determine whether State health laws are observed. The department does not charge for such examinations.

STOCK OPERATORS MADE 300 PCT.; PUBLIC LOST 40

Witness at S E C Hearing Says $58,000 Outlay Gave Control of $12,000,000 Corporation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Witnesses in the Government's investigation of the $200,000,000 Tri-Continental (Investment) Corporation told the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday of 300 per cent profits for stock operators and 40 per cent losses for the investing public originating from the boom days before 1929.

Testimony was given principally by Richard Maynard of Maynard, Oakley & Lawrence, New York brokers, whom the Securities and Exchange Commission questioned with a view to recommending to Congress tighter control of investment management.

Maynard said the Security Management Co. formed by his firm and a group of bankers and brokers in 1928 was able to control a $12,000,000 corporation on an investment of $58,000.

The "inside" group, he said, obtained two-thirds of the "B" or voting stock of the Capital Administration Co., principal asset of the Security Management Co., for $58,000 while the public invested $12,000,000 in the corporation's non-voting stocks and warrants.

In 1932, he said, the Security Management Co., affiliated itself with the Tri-Continental Corporation to which it sold a two-thirds or controlling interest in the "B" stock and certain other holdings of the sponsoring group for $288,000.

Profits to the group, he said, amounted to 300 per cent on the original investment at a time the public was losing 40 per cent on its $12,000,000 investment in market issues of the Security Management Co.

David Schenker, chief trial counsel for the commission, brought out that transfer of management from the Security Management Co. to the Tri-Continental Corporation was effected without knowledge of the "outside" stockholders. The same condition could obtain today, he said, in the absence of further control legislation.

ST. LOUIS UNIONS RIDDING RANKS OF RACKETEERS

'Pudgie' Dunn Murder Prompts House-Cleaning —'If Locals Won't, Internationals Will'

Union reorganizations to eliminate racketeers and officers whose interest was only mercenary, have resulted from the unsolved assassination of "Pudgie" Dunn, twice-convicted murderer who was business agent for the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union by day and a gambling house bouncer by night.

Purging of the union leadership, police pointed out, will assist them materially in nipping a budding organization of labor racketeers, nurtured by the protective authority of an organizer's or business agent's card and previously under close surveillance by them.

"To Clean House All Around."

"We are going to clean house all around," William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today in discussing the arrest of union officers for questioning in the Dunn murder who were better known to police than to rank-and-file members of the unions in which they held paid jobs.

"Where these fellows came from and how they got in, I don't know," Brandt went on. "The Central Trades and Labor Union won't stand for that sort of thing. We have a good reputation and plan to keep it. It is the problem of the individual union to clean house, but if it doesn't, the international will take a hand. Central Trades will see to that."

"Muscling in" Theory.

Pursuing the theory that Dunn had been too bold in muscling in on the hotel workers' union, formed only last May, police detained several union officers and organizers for questioning. There had been reports that gangsters and former convicts had been attempting to gain a foothold in St. Louis unions, particularly in the five A. F. of L. unions with which hotel and restaurant workers were affiliated.

Among them was John R. (Bab) Moran, formerly financial secretary and manager of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union, who is under indictment for the murder of John C. Johnson, Negro witness for the State in the Kelley kidnaping case, who was machine-gunned to death before defendants were tried.

Moran, who had resigned only last Monday, said he did so because he thought his connection with the union was hurting the organization. He had hired Dunn at $50 a week as an organizer.

Hotel Workers Clean Up.

Miss Kitty Amsler, international representative of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance, took charge of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union at the direction of Edward Flore, national president, who ordered her to do so or disband the organization. She will be acting president and business agent until an election is held.

Joseph Costello, well known to police and once under charges of murder and robbery in St. Clair County which were dropped, was ousted Tuesday as a $50-a-week organizer for Local 20 of the Waiters' Union. He was dropped from membership yesterday on the ground of "false entry," since he never had been a waiter. Herbert Friss, business agent for the Waiters' Union, also announced that seven other "undesirable" members had been ousted from membership but declined to name them. Until he was sentenced to two years in a Federal penitentiary last March for violation of internal revenue laws, Carl Fiorita, Cuckoo gangster, was an organizer for the Waiters' Union at $50 a week.

"Babe" Baldwin Questioned.

Sylvester (Babe) Baldwin, paid organizer for the Bartenders' Union, whose record includes a sentence for burglary, was questioned at length by police. He was paroled on the burglary conviction without serving time and a later robbery conviction was reversed by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Baldwin, Moran, Costello and Lyle Shaw, also ousted from the Waiters Union, were released today after giving $1500 bonds for their appearance July 30 before Judge James W. Griffin of the Court of Criminal Correction to answer any charges that might be preferred.

Two former convicts, Harvey Beavers and Rolla (Blackie) Dean, were released yesterday after questioning by police. They had been arrested last Monday while seated in an automobile in front of a West End hotel after police received information they intended to force their way into a meeting of gasoline service station employes at the hotel and demand jobs. They denied they had such an intention and were released.

Head of Industrial Association Makes Statement.

Commenting on the labor situation disclosed by the "Pudgie" Dunn murder, Albert J. Davis, president of the Industrial Association of St. Louis, said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"The Industrial Association has known for a long time that many labor unions are shot through with gangsterism, terrorism and anarchy. For some time past it has been taking energetic measures to combat this reign of lawlessness and to defend decent, law-abiding sel for the commission, brought out that transfer of management from the Security Management Co. to the Tri-Continental Corporation was effected without knowledge of the "outside" stockholders. The same condition could obtain today, he said, in the absence of further control legislation.

ST. LOUIS UNIONS RIDDING RANKS OF RACKETEERS

Union reorganizations to eliminate racketeers and officers whose interest was only mercenary, have resulted from the unsolved assassination of "Pudgie" Dunn, twice-convicted murderer who was business agent for the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union by day and a gambling house bouncer by night.

Purging of the union leadership, police pointed out, will assist them materially in nipping a budding organization of labor racketeers, nurtured by the protective authority of an organizer's or business agent's card and previously under close surveillance by them.

"To Clean House All Around."

"We are going to clean house all around," William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today in discussing the arrest of union officers for questioning in the Dunn murder who were better known to police than to rank-and-file members of the unions in which they held paid jobs.

"Where these fellows came from and how they got in, I don't know," Brandt went on. "The Central Trades and Labor Union won't stand for that sort of thing. We have a good reputation and plan to keep it. It is the problem of the individual union to clean house, but if it doesn't, the international will take a hand. Central Trades will see to that."

"Muscling in" Theory.

Pursuing the theory that Dunn had been too bold in muscling in on the hotel workers' union, formed only last May, police detained several union officers and organizers for questioning. There had been reports that gangsters and former convicts had been attempting to gain a foothold in St. Louis unions, particularly in the five A. F. of L. unions with which hotel and restaurant workers were affiliated.

Among them was John R. (Bab) Moran, formerly financial secretary and manager of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union, who is under indictment for the murder of John C. Johnson, Negro witness for the State in the Kelley kidnaping case, who was machine-gunned to death before defendants were tried.

Moran, who had resigned only last Monday, said he did so because he thought his connection with the union was hurting the organization. He had hired Dunn at $50 a week as an organizer.

Hotel Workers Clean Up.

Miss Kitty Amsler, international representative of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance, took charge of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union at the direction of Edward Flore, national president, who ordered her to do so or disband the organization. She will be acting president and business agent until an election is held.

Joseph Costello, well known to police and once under charges of murder and robbery in St. Clair County which were dropped, was ousted Tuesday as a $50-a-week organizer for Local 20 of the Waiters' Union. He was dropped from membership yesterday on the ground of "false entry," since he never had been a waiter. Herbert Friss, business agent for the Waiters' Union, also announced that seven other "undesirable" members had been ousted from membership but declined to name them. Until he was sentenced to two years in a Federal penitentiary last March for violation of internal revenue laws, Carl Fiorita, Cuckoo gangster, was an organizer for the Waiters' Union at $50 a week.

"Babe" Baldwin Questioned.

Sylvester (Babe) Baldwin, paid organizer for the Bartenders' Union, whose record includes a sentence for burglary, was questioned at length by police. He was paroled on the burglary conviction without serving time and a later robbery conviction was reversed by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Baldwin, Moran, Costello and Lyle Shaw, also ousted from the Waiters Union, were released today after giving $1500 bonds for their appearance July 30 before Judge James W. Griffin of the Court of Criminal Correction to answer any charges that might be preferred.

Two former convicts, Harvey Beavers and Rolla (Blackie) Dean, were released yesterday after questioning by police. They had been arrested last Monday while seated in an automobile in front of a West End hotel after police received information they intended to force their way into a meeting of gasoline service station employes at the hotel and demand jobs. They denied they had such an intention and were released.

Head of Industrial Association Makes Statement.

Commenting on the labor situation disclosed by the "Pudgie" Dunn murder, Albert J. Davis, president of the Industrial Association of St. Louis, said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"The Industrial Association has known for a long time that many labor unions are shot through with gangsterism, terrorism and anarchy. For some time past it has been taking energetic measures to combat this reign of lawlessness and to defend decent, law-abiding citizens from the depredations of criminals.

"The murder of 'Pudgie' Dunn and the revelations which followed have shocked the public, but the conditions revealed are not news to this association. It is hoped that the conditions so graphically shown by this happening will shock the public into a consciousness of widespread and general conditions.

"Unremitting Opposition."

"In the meantime this association will be unremitting in its opposition to all forms of criminal conduct. When lawless violence is openly advocated by certain types of unions, certainly it is a naive person who believes that hidden criminal conspiracies are not a necessary part of the campaign of terrorism. These criminal conspiracies normally are brought to light only by such climaxes as Dunn's murder."

Davis, who is a broker with offices in the Security Building, said to the reporter that an effort was being made among merchants and manufacturers of the city to form a secret committee to combat "racketeering" labor organizations. This was a "spontaneous movement, pretty much city-wide," he added.

The Industrial Association, comprising chiefly manufacturers, was established last October, succeeding the Manufacturers' & Merchants' Association of St. Louis, which was created in 1921. The latter group languished in the depression. Membership of the Industrial Association was not secret, but it was preferred not to make it public, Davis declared. W. Frank Carter, lawyer, is chairman of the board.

Convicted of Illegal Picketing.

By the Associated Press.

MASON, Mich., July 16.—Lester Washburn, president of the Lansing (Mich.) local of the United Automobile Workers of America, was convicted by a justice court jury yesterday of illegal picketing. Justice William S. Seelye sentenced Washburn to pay costs of $100 by July 26 or serve a maximum of 30 days in jail. Similar charges against Washburn's wife, and Mrs. Vera Christian were dismissed. The union called a general one-day strike in Lansing in protest against the arrests of the pickets.

TESTIMONY FORD CHIEF OPPOSED ANY KIND OF UNION

Reporters Identify Printed Accounts of Harry Bennett's Views on Independent Brotherhood.

MAN NOT TOLD WHY HE WAS FIRED

Witness Active in U A W A Work Says Foreman Told Him He Was Needed But Had to Go.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—Testimony that Harry Bennett, Ford Motor Co. personnel director, said the company did not approve of any organization of its employes, went into the record of a National Labor Relations Board hearing here today.

Paul M. Conrad and John N. Carlisle, Detroit reporters, identified and confirmed newspaper stories quoting Bennett as commenting on the organization of the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., an independent union in the company's River Rouge plant at Dearborn.

The testimony was the first mention of the brotherhood in the NLRB hearing on a complaint charging the Ford Co. with unfair labor practices. The complaint alleged the company supported the solicitation of memberships in this union, and later "permitted it to be announced in the public press that the FBA had been disbanded at the request of the company."

Carlisle identified an article quoting Bennett also as saying Ford employes named as officers of the Workers' Council for Social Justice, Inc., another independent union, had been told to return to work or be discharged.

Before the FBA testimony was heard, George B. Zubick, a discharged metal finisher at the Ford plant, testified he was unable to obtain an explanation for his dismissal and that his foreman had told him: "I need you right now in my department, George, but I can't do anything for you. I don't know what's going on around here."

"Vote of Confidence."

Charges that Ford workers were coerced into signing a "vote of confidence" in Ford labor policies came in for attention when Mack Cinzori, who said he still was a company employe although a member of the UAWA, testified. He said that one day a foreman named Bleau "took me to one of the clerks to the superintendent and the clerk told me to pass around these vote of confidence papers and all those who were satisfied with working conditions and pay were to sign and those who weren't satisfied I was to take their badge number and give it to the foreman."

Cinzori said he was a member of a "vigilante group" in the plant instructed, in event of a sit-down strike, to "pick up a lead pipe and start swinging and get to the place where the trouble is."

Zubick testified yesterday that he was dismissed after he had obtained six members for the United Automobile Workers of America.

He said he had been employed in the body plant and refused to sign a paper headed "A vote of confidence."

He said he collected a union initiation fee from Joseph Guttierez the day before Guttierez was discharged. He added that Guittierez also had refused to sign the Ford "loyalty" pledge.

Daniel E. Devor, who said he was a relief crane operator, told Trial Examiner John L. Lindsay he had signed the "vote of confidence" and had been handed at a plant gate a pamphlet describing the advantages of the Ford Brotherhood of America. The witness said he had not joined the brotherhood.

The Ford management has denied the U A W A's assertion that the Brotherhood was company-inspired.

Pointed Out Ford Statement.

John Schipper testified that three days after the Supreme Court upheld the Wagner Labor Relations Act he was discharged by the Ford company for membership in the U A W A. He was dismissed, he said, 15 minutes after he pointed out to his foreman a newspaper account of Henry Ford's statement that his workers were free to join any union.

Schipper said he told Roy Meyers, the foreman, to read it, and he "just looked at me and gave me a silly grin."

Fifteen minutes later, he continued, he was sent to the superintendent's desk and was informed he was dismissed. Schipper said that when he told them he wouldn't sign his pay slip until he learned the reason for his discharge, a Ford service man named "Pat," replied: "I fired you for loafing."

"I said I knew why I was being fired," Schipper related, "and they asked me why. I said I was being fired because I belonged to the union."

He said he joined the U A W A early in March, but kept "strictly quiet" until the Wagner Act decision was announced.

On cross-examination, Schipper denied his foreman ever complained that he loafed on the job, and that he never told the foreman, "if you don't get me a raise I am all through.

Court Hearing.

In Common Pleas Court, where Judge Ralph W. Liddy continued with the examination of eight of nine men named in an assault warrant issued in connection with the beating of United Automobile Workers of America members at the Ford plant May 26, a witness identified four defendants as having attacked him.

Robert Sentman, C I O organizer for technical employes, pointed out Charles Goodman, Oscar Jones, Samuel Taylor and Wilfred Comment, all Ford employes, as men who beat him when he went to the Dearborn plant with other union workers to try to distribute U A W handbills.

He said he was beaten and kicked when he objected to women being "shoved around."

Testimony at the examination, which will determine whether the men must stand trial in a State court on the charge, followed closely that given before the N L R B trial examiner last week.

Ford Plant Begins Layoff as C I O Opens Organization Drive.

By the Associated Press.

EDGEWATER, N. J., July 16.—Partial shutdown of the Ford assembly plant here was announced today as the United Automobile Workers of America made their first concerted drive to organize the 3700 employes.

A company spokesman said the shutdown was the annual summer curtailment and would last for several weeks.

AUTO THIEVES DISARM DEPUTY

By the Associated Press.

RISON, Ark., July 16.—Two men who stole a new automobile from the Ford agency at Fordyce yesterday and disarmed a deputy escaped from pursuers and apparently parted company last night.

Deputy Harry Darby said one of the men resembled Charles Chapman, desperado who escaped from a Texas prison farm last week.

BANK ROBBER KILLED IN FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

ARLINGTON, Ore., July 12.—A $3500 bank robbery Monday was followed yesterday with the arrest of two men, information that a third suspect was dead and the accidental wounding of an innocent man.

The arrested pair, booked as Floyd Russell, 20 years old, Columbus, O., and Pat Bushman, 28, Pendleton, Ore., were captured by State troopers near Bickleton, Wash. They admitted robbing the Grant County Bank at John Day Monday night, and reported a companion, known to them as Jack David, 35, was injured fatally when their motor car turned over. Reginald Bass, 23-year-old transient from Michigan, riding in a car similar to one used by the robbers, was mistaken for one of the three and shot in the jaw and body. He is in a Hemiston hospital. Officers said all but $421 of the loot was recovered.

MYSTERIOUSLY KILLED

DR. GEORGE W. WEBSTER

DRIVER IN CRASH FINED $150

Ralph Adams, a steel worker, 1149 North Euclid avenue, was fined $150 on a charge of driving when intoxicated by Police Judge James F. Nangle today. His driver's license was suspended for one year.

Adams was arrested June 19 by a policeman who saw his car strike several other machines as he attempted to make a left turn into Olive street from Sixth street. The officer testified Adams was intoxicated. Adams told the Court he had had three glasses of beer, but denied he was drunk.

DOCTOR MURDERED IN HIS HOME AT PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Mysteriously Shot Twice After He Opens Door, He Crawls to Phone and Calls Police.

DIES AFTER SAYING HE WOULD EXPLAIN

Tells Ambulance Driver It Was Robbery But $300 Is Found on Him—Wife Was at Summer Home.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 16.—Fatally wounded in his home by two pistol bullets, Dr. George W. Webster crawled to the telephone and summoned police last midnight. On their arrival he told them: "Don't look for clews now. Get me to a hospital. I'll tell you about the shooting later." Questioned again by a detective, the doctor again replied: "I don't know. Get me to a hospital."

But at the hospital he died an hour later on the operating table without opening his lips.

He was wounded in the stomach and the shoulder. A third shot went wide. Before he left his house, the doctor pointed to his abdomen and remarked coolly: "That one has gone through the liver."

Police said they were without a single tangible clew to the mysterious shooting.

Dr. Ralph Purvine of Rhode Island Hospital, ambulance surgeon, said Dr. Webster, an obstetrician, told him it was an attempted robbery. The police found $300, however, in the physician's clothing.

Detectives theorized that the person who shot Dr. Webster followed him into the front vestibule after the physician had unlocked the door, and that when he heard a noise, the physician turned around. There were no signs of struggle, and apparently the assailant fired at once.

Although Dr. Webster said the man then ran through the house and escaped, there was no sign of disorder in the house, and a back door was shut when police arrived.

Fingerprint experts sought clews but were forced to discard as worthless two empty glasses and a whisky bottle on a kitchen shelf. Neither had been used for some time.

Dr. Webster had been at a consultation in Jamestown, R. I., last night, and before going home visited a drug store near his office.

Two persons with him during the evening were taken into custody for questioning about the doctor's movements.

Dr. Webster's wife and children were at Watch Hill, R. I., at his summer home. The physician was a son of Dr. Samuel Webster, health superintendent at Westerly, and was a past president of the Rhode Island Medical Society. He was 39 years old.

Round Steel Structure, 8 Feet Across and 7 High, to Be Ready at Penitentiary by Jan. 1.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16.—The State purchasing agent has been asked to receive bids for the new steel lethal gas chamber in which condemned Missouri murderers will be executed, Warden J. M. Sanders of the State prison said today. Under a new law which becomes effective Sept. 6, executions will be centralized at the penitentiary here, and lethal gas used.

Both outwardly and inwardly, shape of the new gas chamber—similar to one used at the Wyoming State Prison—will resemble that of a large steel boiler on end. It will have a battleship bulkhead type door to keep the gas in, and windows of bullet-proof glass.

Inside the round chamber, eight feet across and seven feet high, will be two lattice steel chairs—two in case of a double execution, Sanders said. The lattice effect is to permit free circulation of the gas. The chamber proper will be housed in a small brick and stone building which also will contain temporary cells.

The Legislature provided $5000 for carrying out provisions of State Senator Paul Jones' bill abolishing hangings in the counties and placing executions at the prison. Sanders said he planned to have the chamber and its building complete by Jan. 1.

Suit Against Air Line Settled.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—Suit for $306,000 damages by C. Richard Wallace, motion picture director, against Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., was settled out of court yesterday. Terms were not disclosed. Wallace sought damages for injuries suffered in the crash of a transport plane at Atlanta, Mo., two years ago in which Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico was killed.

MEDIATION BOARD ENTERS RAILWAY WAGE NEGOTIATIONS

Calls Meeting When Conference of Nonoperating Unions and Roads Collapses.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Wage negotiations between the railroads and 14 unions of non-operating employes collapsed yesterday and the National Mediation Board stepped in immediately.

The board called representatives of both the unions and the carriers to meet with it today. Separate conferences with each side are to be held later. The non-operating unions include such employes as clerks and shop men. The five operating unions, including the engineers and trainmen, are negotiating a separate agreement.

Both groups have ordered a strike vote but a Federal law prohibits a strike before Federal mediatory efforts have been exhausted. There has been no major railroad strike since 1922, when the shopmen went out in protest against a wage cut.

The non-operating unions ask for a 20-cent an hour wage increase. The operating group has asked for 20 per cent. The railroads answered the non-operating groups' first demand with an offer of 2 cents an hour.

JUDGE DAVIS ORDERS AUDIT OF HOWARD CLEANERS, INC.

Also Cuts Salaries; President to Get $25 a Week Instead of $1000 a Month.

An audit of the business and accounts of Howards Cleaners, Inc., under reorganization in Federal Court, was ordered yesterday by District Judge Charles B. Davis, who named Schuessler, Keller & Co., certified public accountants, to make the audit.

Judge Davis, in consultation with the firm's lawyer, Charles Spoehrer, also revised the company's salary roll downward. J. Arthur Davis, president of the company, instead of $1000 a month salary and $25 a week expenses, will receive $25 a week salary only. The plant manager was cut from $100 to $75 a week, and the plant superintendent from $55 to $45 a week.

The cleaning company, in its petition for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws, stated that its financial difficulties had been brought about by strikes, that competing concerns had fostered and encouraged the strikes, and that the competitors sought to force Howards to raise its prices.

HAMILTON-BROWN 'LOYALTY' DRIVE AND TOWN C. OF C.

Laid-Off Worker Testifies She Was Told Union (Mo.), Civic Organization Sent Out Cards.

NLRB AID CHARGES ANTI-UNION PRESSURE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNION, Mo., July 16.—The Union Chamber of Commerce today was linked with the circulation of "loyalty" pledge cards in the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. plant here by testimony of a witness in a National Labor Relations Board inquiry into charges of unfair labor practices against the company.

This was the first time the Chamber of Commerce had been mentioned. It was also the first intimation of the origin of the cards, which have played a prominent part in testimony of about 40 witnesses in the past week.

The witness, Mrs. Clara Henderson, who said she was laid off April 29, quoted a supervisory employe as saying, "The Chamber of Commerce is sending out some cards, and if you want to go back to work you can sign one of them."

For some reason, questioning on this new line was dropped, but, following cross-examination and after another witness was called, Mrs. Henderson was recalled to the stand by Trial Examiner William Seagle.

More About the Conversation.

The worker said the conversation was held on May 31. The following day, June 1, she returned to the plant, she asserted. While there, she saw Viola Copeland, an assistant floor woman, distributing cards among employes who were working. One woman, Mrs. Henderson declared, shook her head at Miss Copeland, apparently declining to sign one of the cards.

David C. Shaw, NLRB attorney, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he expected to introduce testimony next week that would link the Chamber of Commerce with a campaign of pressure against formation of a union at the plant. He said other witnesses, whose names he refused to disclose, would establish a more definite connection between the chamber and the loyalty cards.

Preference in Hiring.

Mrs. Henderson said she overheard an assistant floorwoman remark that employes who worked while a strike was in progress at Hambro plant were to be given preference in employment.

Miss Myrtle Maness, two of three women who continued work during the strike, kept their jobs when all other workers at their table were dismissed. She said, however, that she and another woman were the only two of 12 at the work table who subsequently had not been recalled. Under cross-examination, Miss Maness admitted discussing organization of the union on company time.

In a hearing punctuated by fiery exchanges by opposing counsel and sharp cross-examination of prosecution witnesses, 13 former employes of the company's plant testified yesterday. For the first time Luke E. Hart, St. Louis, shoe company president, asked a witness if he would join the Commercial Shoe Workers' organization if given employment at Hambro factory.

Complaints allege the organization, an independent union, was sponsored by the company. The firm has a closed shop agreement with the union, and it is a matter of record that about 125 employes were discharged because of refusal to join it.

Objection by Attorney.

David C. Shaw, Labor Board attorney, objected immediately.

"This man," he exclaimed, "already has delegated authority to Local 125 of the United Shoe Workers for purposes of collective bargaining. Mr. Hart is asking him to reverse his choice of delegation."

Trial Examiner William Seagle sustained Shaw's objection. Hart, demanding to know whether such a ruling would apply to similar questions of other witnesses, was informed that would be the case.

The witness, Jess Schafferkoetter, admitted in cross-examination that he had called a non-striking employe a "loghead" and a number of "other names, which I can't remember." He denied calling a woman worker a series of vile names. He denied also that he had participated in mass picketing of the company gates, but added, "I wanted to be there but couldn't make it."

Mrs. Florence French, young mother of four children, said she had been laid off and later reinstated after she had signed a pledge of loyalty to the company. Another series of vigorous objections interrupted the session when Shaw sought and obtained permission to amend his petition in connection with Mrs. French's experience.

The original petition, Shaw said, charged that she had been illegally discharged in the first instance. Instead, the attorney asserted, it was the discrimination in her reinstatement that was illegal.

Mrs. French said she first obtained employment at Hambro plant in 1926, when she was 14 years old. In connection with charges against the firm, she quoted Agnes Ekey, a floor woman, as remarking, "Those men (union organizers) have just got your 50 cents. There never will be a union here." Later she quoted Mrs. Ekey as saying, "I hope everyone who joins that CIO will starve to death."

It was disclosed in re-direct examination of Mrs. French that George E. Duemler, St. Louis attorney for United Shoe Workers, had advised workers to sign the loyalty pledges if the signatures were to be the determining factor in keeping jobs at the plant.

QUITS NEW YORK RELIEF WORK TO BE HEAD OF HULL HOUSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Miss Charlotte E. Carr announced yesterday that she would resign Aug. 1 as executive director of New York City's Emergency Relief Bureau to become head of Hull House, the social settlement founded in Chicago by the late Jane Addams.

A graduate of Vassar College, class of 1915, Miss Carr entered New York relief work immediately following the aldermanic investigation of 1935.

Among her critics have been George U. Harvey, Queens Borough president, who last winter demanded her ouster on the charge that she co-operated with "Reds and Communists" in the distribution of relief, and Alderman Joseph E. Kinsley, Bronx Democrat, who unsuccessfully sought an investigation of the bureau on charges of inefficiency.

On the other hand, Edmond Borgia Butler, secretary of the relief board, praised her work.

Before coming to the relief bureau, Miss Carr was a director of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's Commission on Unemployment Relief. Prior to that she spent 10 years in research work on problems dealing with children, working under Miss Frances Perkins, who then was State Industrial Commissioner.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania made her head of the State Department of Labor, a post she held until he went out of office on Jan. 1, 1935.

Since CIO Suspensions, Says Secretary Morrison.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Frank Morrison, secretary, said today that the American Federation of Labor's membership had increased 652,000 since John L. Lewis' 10 CIO unions were suspended last September.

The Federation's membership, Morrison said, has reached 3,091,000. The increase compared with a loss of about 900,000 memb when the Lewis unions were suspended for insurrection.

AVIATRIX LOST AT SEA PUT UP $11,550 IN GEMS FOR PLANE

NEW YORK, July 16.—Jewelry worth $11,550 was pledged in order to obtain the plane in which Beryl Hart, red-haired aviatrix, and her co-pilot, William MacLaren, disappeared on an attempted trans-Atlantic flight six years ago.

The financial backing of the 27-year-old flyer's ill-starred hop was disclosed yesterday in an action by the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation in Supreme Court, Manhattan, to replevin the gems which have been in a vault of the National City Safe Deposit Co. since 1930. The aircraft company filed papers after the Sheriff was authorized to remove the gems from the vault, hold them for a period required by law, then deliver them "to whom they may belong." The company said the jewelry had been pledged to secure a note for $14,500.

The young woman and her copilot flew the monoplane, Tradewind, from Hampton Road, Va., to Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 7, 1931, on the first leg of a projected flight to Paris. On Jan. 10, they took off from Hamilton for the Azores. They were never seen again.

SENATOR BLACK IN DEBATE ON FEDERAL WAGE CONTROL

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Pa., July 16.—Senator Hugo L. Black (Dem.), Alabama, said last night that millions of "Americans who love their fellow Americans have only just begun to fight" for Government protection of farmers and industrial workers.

Senator Black, debating before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, said farmers are "entitled to have their Government protect them from the bankruptcy produced by low farm prices."

Black debated with James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, on Federal control of wages and hours.

Emery, opposing Federal control, said there should not be substituted for the limited control, which may be exercised by local governments through the police power, any exclusive authority of Congress to regulate wages and hours.

Senator James P. Pope of Idaho, in a speech today said "The struggle between China and Japan is no surprise to anyone who has observed the course of Japan since she withdrew from the Society of Nations." Japan, he alleged, abandoned the course of co-operation and adopted the "law of the fist" "Japan will be engaged in one war after another so long as she pursues her present policy of non-co-operation, and this will be true of Italy, Germany and any other nations that pursue the same course."

KILLER OF EDITOR FOUND SANE

Californian Faces Death Penalty as Result of Verdict.

By the Associated Press.

ALTURAS, Cal., July 16.—A verdict that Harry French was sane when he killed Claude L. McCracken, 36 years old, Alturas editor, was returned by a jury last night.

French, 30, member of a pioneer Modoc County family, faces the death penalty as a result of the sanity verdict. The defense contended French was goaded into insanity by published taunts and slurs in McCracken's newspaper. McCracken was shot fatally March 25 when eating dinner in his home.

Moore, last year with Houston, was with the Cards at their Florida training camp and was sent to Columbus in April. Thomas was signed almost immediately by the Red Sox as a relief pitcher.

BITSY GRANT IS NO. 2 SINGLES PLAYER ON U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—Capt. Walter L. Pate today designed Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta and Don Budge of Oakland, Cal. to play singles for the United States against Germany in the Davis Cup interbone tennis finals at Wimbledon. Budge will team with Gene Mako of Los Angeles for the doubles play.

The little Atlantan, who has not been playing up to his usual game because of a severe cold since he arrived in England, will open the semifinals when he meets Baron Gottfried von Cramm at 7:30 a. m. (St. Louis time) tomorrow.

Budge and Henkel.

Budge will play Heinrich Henkel as soon as the first match is out of the way and on Monday Budge and Mako will meet Von Cramm and Henkel in the doubles.

On Tuesday, Grant and Henkel will lead off in the first of the two final singles matches. Budge and Von Cramm will ring down the curtain on the interzone finals.

The winner in the series will go into the challenge round, meeting Great Britain for possession of the Davis Cup at Wimbledon July 24, 26 and 27.

It had been thought Pate, the non-playing skipper of the American team might name Frankie Parker of Milwaukee for the second singles assignment.

Grant played in the North American zone finals against Australia but was taken ill with a severe cold on his arrival in England and did not play as well as Parker did at Wimbledon. Parker was eliminated in the semifinals by Budge, who trounced Von Cramm in the finals.

Budge teamed with Mako to win the doubles and captured the mixed doubles with Alice Marble. He is rated by English experts as the best American since Bill Tilden.

Germany won the European zone finals four matches to one from Czechoslovakia to get into the interzones.

"It was a hard choice between Grant and Parker," Pate said, "but I obviously thought Grant was playing slightly better tennis and deserved it."

He said that the Atlanta star was still about a pound underweight from his recent illness, but not enough to affect his play.

Pleased With Draw.

The captains of both teams expressed satisfaction with the places won in the draw and Pate added confidently:

"I can't see that it makes much difference either way."

The real meaning of the draw is that if the Germans win the doubles Monday, the final result may hinge on the closing battle between the two old rivals, Budge and Von Cramm.

HARRIS VS. CHAMBERS IN SEMIFINAL OF DENVER TENNIS MEET

DENVER, July 16.—Charles Harris of Miami, Fla., and Tom Chambers of Los Angeles will fight it out today on the Denver Country Club courts for the one remaining place in the semifinal round of the Colorado open tennis tournament's singles championship.

Arthur Hendrix of Miami, John McDiarmid of Fort Worth, Tex., and Bobby Riggs of Los Angeles won their quarterfinal battles Thursday.

YALE GOLFERS LOSE TO ST. ANDREWS, 8-4

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 16.—Yale University's touring golf team suffered its first defeat today, bowing to a team from St. Andrews Golf Club, 8 to 4. They halved the foursomes at two each, but the local club won the singles, 6—2.

Miss Veatch Is Junior Champion Of Western Golf

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Miss Muriel Veatch, Longview, Wash., won the Women's Western Junior golf championship today, defeating Betty Mackemer, Peoria, Ill., 5 up and 3 at Hinsdale Country Club.

Miss Veatch, a slender 16-year-old blonde, won the first two holes to give her a lead that she never lost. Miss Mackemer won only one hole, the third. The Washington miss played the first nine in 40, one over par, to give her a lead of three up. She is the first Far Western girl ever to reach the Western junior finals.

Uncle Sam's No. 2 Singles Player

Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, pint-sized star from Dixie, who was named today No. 2 singles player on the United States Davis Cup team to oppose Germany tomorrow. Grant, the "giant killer," tries for everything and it is not unusual for him to make a return while sprawling on the turf, as shown above.

Gastanaga to Oppose Otis Thomas Tonight In 10-Rounder Here

By W. J. McGoogan.

Isidro Gastanaga, Spanish boxer who has had a gypsy existence in the boxing game, will try to win a St. Louis home for himself tonight by defeating Otis Thomas, Chicago Negro, in a 10-round contest which is the main event of a six-bout program at the Municipal Auditorium, under the direction of Larry Atkins and St. Louis Post No. 4 of the American Legion.

The contests, three of 10 rounds each and three of five rounds each, are scheduled to provide 45 rounds of boxing of a class to compare favorably to the most pretentious programs offered here in some time in the air-cooled building.

Thomas is familiar to St. Louis fans. He made his first appearance here in 1934, when, as an amateur, he competed in the National A. A. U. tournament. He fought in the same event the next year and won an unpopular decision over Irwin Striebel, South St. Louis butcher boy.

Both Thomas and Striebel turned professional and met again at the Coliseum later, in which contest Otis knocked out Striebel in five rounds.

Otis Successful Here.

He has boxed four other bouts here since then and won them all, numbering among his victims Eddie Simms of Cleveland, Eddie's brother, Frankie; Dutch Weimer and Buck Everett.

In contests outside this city, Thomas was defeated by Jack Reddish in Philadelphia and suffered a technical knockout at the hands of Arturo Godoy in New York when his right eye was cut so badly that the fight was stopped.

Otis started out as a southpaw, but changed to the orthodox right-handed style when he became a professional because he found that matches for a lefthander were hard to obtain. Still, his best punch remains his left hand, and opponents are frequently fooled by this fact. They are looking for power in the right hand when in reality it is in his left.

Somebody Gets Hurt.

Gastanaga has proved by his record that he is a fighter who either knocks out his foe or is knocked out himself. His record is obscured in the mists of the past six or seven years when he first burst up America after winning the light-heavyweight championship of Spain.

Still, this much is known about him. He is a big, rough, rugged fellow, weighing about 200 pounds, who has fought many of the best heavyweights in the world, sometimes successfully, sometimes not.

He has won seven victories by knockouts since Christmas last and at one time was matched with Joe Louis in Havana, a contest which failed to materialize because Louis' backers said they feared the political situation in Cuba at that time. Other sources have declared the real trouble was that the money promised the Brown Bomber was not in sight.

In any event there seems little doubt that Gastanaga is a puncher. Also that he is relatively easy to hit. His record is dotted with knockouts of the other fellow, of EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 16.—Jean Bauer defeated Helen Waterhouse, 4 and 3, in an all-Providence (R. I.) 18-hole final today to win the Shennecossett invitation tournament and the Griswold Cup for the second straight year and for the third time in four years.

U. S. INTERSCHOLASTIC TENNIS CHAMPION IS UPSET AT FOREST HILLS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Robert Low of New York, the national interscholastic titleholder, was upset, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, by Joseph Fishbach, another New Yorker, in their semifinal match in the Eastern junior tennis singles championship at Forest Hills today.

Fishbach will meet Harry Heffner of Washington, D. C., for the title tomorrow. Heffner, playing a steadier game, outlasted William Gillespie of Scarborough, N. Y., 6—4, 6—2, to gain the final.

Harris Still With Millers.

MULCAHY ROUTED IN SEVENTH; BROWN POLES HOME RUN

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—Jess Haines, trying for his second victory of the season, pitched for the Cardinals this afternoon in the second game of the doubleheader with the Phillies after Si Johnson won the first game, 10 to 3. Hugh Mulcahy, the only Philly pitcher to defeat the Cards this year, was Haines' opponent.

Johnson held the Phils to eight hits and had the game in hand all the way, thanks to a five-run rally in the first inning and another five-run splurge in the fifth.

The Cardinals bunched 11 of their 14 hits in the two big innings, pounding Bucky Walters out of the box in the first frame and routing Jorgens in the fifth. Medwick and Terry Moore hit home runs in the first inning, Jersey Joe's four-bagger raising his total for the season to 19.

Fans threw pop bottles from the stands in the direction of Umpire Stewart in the first inning of the second game when Terry Moore was given a double on a pop fly which Sharein held momentarily but dropped as he reached for his cap, which was falling off his head. The fans thought the catch should have been allowed.

Moore later scored a run. He moved to third on a infield out and home on Padgett's outfield fly.

Herbert Moore, a southpaw pitcher who couldn't make the grade at Columbus or Knoxville, reported to Manager Frisch this afternoon to bolster the St. Louis pitching staff. He will not be eligible to pitch until Paul Dean or Jim Winford is placed on the voluntary retired list.

The attendance was 15,000, including 8000 paid.

ARGENTINA'S SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS U. S. 9 GOALS TO 1

Center Forward Lafcirara Scores Five Goals Against Trenton Highlanders, U. S. Amateur Champions.

DALLAS, Tex., July 16.—Kicked around by the Argentina soccer team in the opening event, the United States looked for a quick comeback tonight in the track and field preliminaries of the Pan-American Games.

Sprint and hurdle stars of six nations are entered in trial heats of the 60-meter dash, 65-meter hurdles and 200-meter sprint, only track events on a second night program which will close with a soccer game between the United States and Canada.

Four Yankee dash stars who packed away points from the recent National A. A. U. meet—Perrin Walker, Ben Johnson, Ray Dean and Jack Weierhauser—will oppose the top-ranking stars of Central and South America.

Wiry Bento Assis of Brazil, the "Jesse Owens of South America," was entered in both the 60-meter and 200-meter events. Nineteen-year-old Lonnie Hill, Dallas schoolboy dash sensation, gets his first taste of the big-time in the 200-meter event.

Strong in Hurdles.

Three Americans are heavily backed in the 65-meter hurdles, Allan Tolmich, the Wayne University star who won the A. A. U. event; Roy Staley of Southern California Sportsmen Club, and Jack Patterson, the Rice Institute flyer who took the A. A. U. 400-meter hurdle event.

Ten thousand fans were present when the Argentina soccer eleven, a bunch of athletes all under 21 years of age, started cautiously, warmed up and then toyed with the Highlanders of Trenton, N. J., national amateur champions, in a 9—1 victory.

Angel Lafcirara, peppery Argentina center forward, roved all over the Cotton Bowl premises with a dazzling display of foot and headwork to score five goals.

Lafcirara scored the first goal 13 minutes after the game started, coasted until midway in the second half, and then burst forth with four consecutive goals in the dying minutes of play. Twice, within 40 seconds, he jockeyed the ball downfield and scored goals with his head.

The American fans cheered the Argentines' clever ball-handling. First it was Lafcirara, and then Maime Sarlauga, L. Carniglia or Pedro Agostini who dribbled through the Yankees.

Olympic Atmosphere.

Before the soccer game the flag-bedecked Cotton Bowl was a mass of color as athletes of Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Peru, Chile, Canada, Colombia, Cuba, Venezuela and the United States stood at attention while Neil McIntosh, Chilean broad jumper, took the Pan-American oath.

SPOKANE NEGRO WINS ON KNOCKOUT BEFORE 7500 AT 'GARDEN'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Tiger Jack Fox, Negro light-heavyweight from Spokane, Wash., moved a step nearer a bout with Champion John Henry Lewis by knocking out 'Deacon' Leo Kelly, Los Angeles Negro, in the sixth round of their 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden last night. Fox weighed 174 and Kelly 175.

Kelly was out on his feet when Referee Johnny Marto stopped the bout after 1:16 of the sixth. A crowd of 7500 fans saw Fox wallop Kelly with long hooks throughout the third, fourth and fifth rounds.

Fox, whose ring style resembles a porter carrying two heavy suitcases, stalked Kelly from the second round on, when the loser made his last scoring flurry with two or three stiff jabs to Fox's face.

In the third, the winner started to spray Kelly with long lefts and had him in trouble midway through the round. Kelly managed to clinch and weathered the round. He was stronger in the fourth, but Fox again walloped him with a long right hook and had him groggy.

In the fifth, Kelly staggered around the ring as Fox pummeled him merrily on the body and around the head with his roundhouse swings. The bout was stopped in the sixth after Fox had slammed home four straight lefts and two tremendous rights.

'RED DEVIL' NOT VERY SATANIC IN DEBUT HERE

By Robert Morrison

John Q. Sleuth, the famous detective, went to a rasslin' show at the Coliseum last night. Mysteries always intrigue Mr. Sleuth. He dotes on them. When he learned a mystery rassler was on the program he was immensely titillated.

You might say, in fact, his bloodhound instincts were aroused. Before the evening was over he had solved the identity of the Red Devil, the hooded rassler who was beaten in the featured match by the St. Louisan, Warren Bockwinkel.

Ah, These Mysteries!

"These mystery men of sports," observed Sleuth, peering over his shoulder to see if he was being followed, "may not be all they seem to be. Remember the Montague case that caused such a stir in golfing circles?"

So saying, Sleuth put his ear to the ground, listened to the grapevine telegraph and made a few discreet inquiries.

The Red Devil, Sleuth discovered, travels under the name of Sam Curry. An amazing revelation, this. Sleuth was very proud of his work until someone asked him who the who is Sam Curry.

Red Devil or Sam Curry, the mystery rassler, failed to awe Bockwinkel, who won after 18 minutes 20 seconds with a series of crotch and body lifts and slams.

After Bockwinkel pinned the black-hooded Curry, the crowd of 1490 demanded the mystery man take off his mask. But Curry was shy and the public was denied the pleasure of seeing his physiognomy.

He took off the hood when under the dressing-room shower, but slipped it back on when reporters visited him.

With a foreign accent, he said he is a Syrian and had been in this country 16 months. Wrestling's publicity man had declared him to be a University of Washington football player, who had been wrestling on the Pacific Coast recently.

The Red Devil said he had been wrestling in Ohio recently.

The Red Devil said among the leading rasslers he has met is Henri DeGlane, one of the world championship claimants, whom he held to a draw in London before coming to this country.

Can This Be True?

The Red Devil didn't want to talk much about himself. It was said the reason is that he is a pro football player and is not supposed to be risking his neck on the mat.

His neck was safe in the match last night. Just before Bockwinkel won, the Red Devil was having some fun socking Bockwinkel on the jaw. That made the Red Devil the villain, and you know what usually happens to villains in wrestling matches.

It was the first show since the State Athletic Commission's edict against rasslers fighting outside the ring. This had become a usual occurrence at the Coliseum and its absence was noticeable.

Team of Blind Bowlers to Roll in Matches on Classic League Schedule Next Season

By Clem Glaub.

St. Louis will have its first organized blind man's bowling team next season when a group of St. Louisans, headed by Edward F. Endicott, librarian for the blind at the Public Library, will appear on the Classic Bowling League programs the coming season, scheduled to open late in August.

The team has been practicing at Feuser's Del-Mar Recreation the past month under the guidance of Hugo Levin, manager of the Del-Mar alleys, and E. C. Gillett, secretary of the Classic League, which is sponsoring the team.

At present the team has only four bowlers, but Endicott expects to have a fifth man before the season begins. The members besides Endicott are Frank Hughes, cigar stand operator in the Clayton Courthouse; Ed Goltermann, who operates a cigar stand in the Civil Courts Building, and Art Schroeer, news vender.

The bowlers who started practicing only six weeks ago, have shown a liking for the game, which, in Endicott's opinion, is the best sport for blind men, inasmuch as the motions of delivery and the follow through cause the muscles in the body to respond.

Hike on Railroad Tracks.

The only other exercise for the blind men comes in weekly hikes on Sundays and holidays. The hikes are from 30 to 40 miles, and are held on railroad tracks. They held 49 hikes last year.

Despite the fact that they have been bowling only a month and a half, the men have turned in some good scores. In a recent game, Endicott came through with a 127-game, finishing with three straight strikes and a spare.

During the early part of their practice sessions, the bowlers had trouble keeping the ball on the right side of the alley. This, Endicott stated, was due to the flexible wrist a blind man has as a result of swinging his cane to his left to avoid obstacles in his path.

With Levin showing them how to hold a ball and getting a straight downward motion of delivery, the men now keep their shots on the alley, and it is surprising the number of times they hit the headpin for good counts.

How They Do It.

When the men started bowling, their first 10 games were below the 65 mark, but since then they have increased their average to as high as 100. Hughes tops the team with 112, with Endicott next with 101. Goltermann and Schroeer each have 90.

The bowlers use a stooping delivery and, after locating the center of the alleys by placing their left foot on the edge of the gutter and taking a short step to the center, they are ready for delivery. After the ball hits the pins, Levin tells them what pins are left standing and they then roll for the spares.

Endicott became interested in bowling after hearing of the success of the Light House Association, a New York institution for the blind, which bowls in regular league play. These teams are composed of blind men who have a slight percentage of sight and can see the alley bed, but not the pins.

Endicott's team as a whole is totally blind, the only one having an edge on his teammates being Hughes, who can recognize the light reflecting upon the alley. The other members can only distinguish light from dark.

It was voted at a meeting of the Classic League to sponsor the team and Gillett stated that the league would furnish the men with shirts and appoint several instructors.

$23 Top Price For Louis-Farr Fight Tickets

Farr is due to arrive here on the liner Berengaria next Tuesday. He will begin training Wednesday or Thursday.

Louis, who will pitch his camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., will arrive July 26 and start training at once.

Promoter Jacobs also announced the scale of ticket prices for the fight ranging from $2.50 to a $23 top, including all taxes.

The ticket prices will be:

General admission, $2.50; reserved, $3.50, $5.75, $11.50, $16.50 and $23.

MICHIGAN HEAVY SCORES 38TH KAYOE

By the Associated Press.

SAGINAW, Mich., July 16.—Jimmy Adamick, Michigan's mauler, slugged his way to his thirty-eighth knockout victory here last night over the only rival who ever defeated him as a professional heavyweight fighter.

Adamick, weighing in at 183, was awarded a technical knockout after a minute of the third round over Reuben Saunders, Saginaw Negro, who weighed 180. Boos from the crowd of 6000 persons greeted Referee Elmer McClelland's decision.

After an uninteresting first round Adamick loosed a series of left hooks in the second which felled Saunders, who sprang up again without a count. The rest of the match, however, was Adamick's.

Sutter in Final Round of Tourney At Spring Lake

By the Associated Press.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 16.—Ernest Sutter of New Orleans, national intercollegiate singles champion, gained the final round of the fifth annual invitation tournament of the bathing and tennis club today by defeating J. Gilbert Hall, veteran New Yorker, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, 6—1.

Sutter's victory pitted him against the winner of tomorrow's semifinals match between Wilmer L. Allison of Austin, Tex., former national singles champion, and Robert Harman of Berkeley, Cal.

If Allison's legs survive the strain of five-set play, the Texas veteran who won the national tennis singles crown two years ago, stands a good chance of succeeding Frankie Parker, American's No. 2 player, as keeper of the Clifford Hemphill bowl.

Allison, top seeded in the tourney here, reached the semifinals yesterday by disposing of Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, but aggravated an old leg injury in a spill on the slippery clay.

CEDAR RAPIDS MAN TENNIS TOURNEY STAR

OMAHA, Neb., July 16.—Charles Fleming of Cedar Rapids, Ia., gave one of the best exhibitions to date in the annual Midwest tennis tournament here, to turn back Johnny Huston, Lincoln, Neb., junior, 6—1, 2—6, 8—6, in the men's singles race.

Morey Lewis of Gambier, O., prime favorite on the basis of early showings, made short work of John Hartigan of St. Joseph, Mo., 6—0, 6—0. Lewis was a ranking U. S. junior last year.

The Team That Almost Won.

WIN, and you make the record books. Lose, even by a hairline, and you're forgotten overnight. Usually, that's what happens; but not always. Tomorrow St. Louis will note an exception; and a team that lost a pennant by one game will be honored at Sportsman's Park.

That club was the Browns of 1922. It came within an ace of capturing the pennant from the Yankees' powerful organization and of giving St. Louis its first and only American League pennant.

What that meant to baseball fanatics of that year present-day fans can hardly picture. The Browns, in 22 years under American League auspices, had only twice made a bid for the pennant. Their first effort came in 1902, the year they joined the league. That season they finished second to the Athletics, three or four games behind.

Again in 1908 the club for three-fourths of the campaign gave the pulses of local baseball followers a few faster beats by challenging the leaders. As late as August the club was in first place—then it slumped.

First Chance in 14 Years.

THE 1922 club gave the fans their first thrill in 14 years, and did they respond! In the latter half of the season the home club played to packed houses. George Sisler was setting the pace and he reached the peak of all time that year by batting .420, beating Ty Cobb's previous record by a fraction. He also led in stolen bases.

Backing up Sisler on that team were our own Johnny Tobin, who came to the Browns from the Federal League; Kenneth Williams, he of the mighty bat; "Baby Doll" Jacobson, rated the greatest outfielder next to Tris Speaker and a pretty good hitter as well; Marty McManus, the spark plug at second base; Walter Gerber, a shortstop who could really stop them; Pat Collins and Hank Severeid, dependable catchers and long range hitters; Urban Shocker, Lefty Davis, Hub Pruett, Billy Bayne and other pitchers, besides Gene Robertson, Frank Ellerbe and Eddie Foster, infielders.

It wasn't a great team as far as individual stars went. With the exception of Shocker and Sisler, there were few names able to crash the Hall of Fame. But it was a fine unit and was working well under Lee Fohl, when that great, big thrilling Yankee series came up, Sept. 16.

There was hardly space to be had in the baseball park for any of the three games. And such was the interest in the Browns and the possibility of winning the flag, that the club's home-game boxes and most of the reservations were all booked not only for the series, but for the remainder of the season.

World Series Checks Arrive.

TRAVELING men who were able routed themselves through St. Louis for the "crucial" games with the Yanks. Delegations from the Southwest poured into St. Louis for the first game on Saturday, Sept. 16. Business houses here bought tickets en bloc for clients in the Southwestern states, and the secretary's office at the Browns already was running a temperature trying to find out what to do about world's series checks, that were pouring in anticipating a victory for the Brownies.

• • •

The "Deciding" Series.

ALTOGETHER too much emphasis was placed on the outcome of these three games. Although the Browns still had nine games to play, after the New York series, fans believed that the team which won the Yankee-Brown setto would win the pennant—an opinion out of line with previous baseball history.

As matters turned out this belief had a tremendous influence on local fans and players. The emphasis placed on the need of winning the odd game had a psychological effect on fans and players that contributed greatly to the team's failure to win the pennant.

With the Browns half a game behind, Shocker pitched the first game for the Browns and Shawkey for the Yanks. Shawkey had the better of a pitching duel and the Yanks won the opener 2-1 and had a game and one-half lead over their rivals.

The second game, before a huge crowd, Hub Pruett, two years out of Missouri University, held the Yanks to five hits, while Sisler, Williams and Co. hammered out 12 safeties and five runs, to one tally for the Yanks.

The team standings were just as they were before the series began.

• • •

The Bubble Bursts.

THEN came the third and final game. Up to the eighth inning it appeared as though the Browns were certain to score a close victory, with Dixie Davis holding the hard-hitting Yankees to two hits in seven innings.

The score at the start of the eighth was 2 to 0 for the Browns. With one out Dugan of the Yanks doubled. Pipp scratched a single off Davis' glove and Dugan hiked to third. McManus recovered the ball on this play and threw past Sisler, Dugan scoring the Yanks first run of the game. Davis retired the side without further scoring, fanning Meusel.

That left the Browns still one run to the good, at the start of the ninth, after Joe Bush had held the St. Louis hitters helpless in the eighth.

This ninth inning was a heartbreaker. It saw the Browns go down to defeat and started a debate that still rages among the old-timers. Even the players of the Brownies then and thereafter were divided on the question, "Did Fohl pull a tactical boner when he removed Davis?"

It happened this way: Schang opened for the Yanks with another lucky hit off Davis' glove. Manager Miller Huggins of the Yanks then sent out Elmer Smith, a slugging lefthand hitter, to bat for Ward. Davis' first pitch got away from Severeid and Schang went to second. It was scored as a passed ball.

• • •

Pruett Replaces Davis.

AT this point Fohl halted the game. A conference took place on the mound. Davis shook his head and put on a storm. It was evident he did not want to leave the mound. He had pitched a fine game and felt that the Yanks could not beat him, despite misplays behind him.

But Fohl stood pat. Hub Pruett, the man who had struck out Babe Ruth 10 times in [illegible] tries, was sent in, although he worked only the day before.

But two can play the game of moving pawns around on the diamond. Huggins withdrew Smith and sent in Mike McNally to finish the time at bat.

McNally pulled another shock. He bunted in front of the plate. Severeid rushed out. He had a good chance to make the play at third and retire Schang. But his throw was low and the error set up the game for the Yanks. Man on first, man on third, nobody down, one run needed to tie and two to win. Pruett then walked Scott and the bases were full.

In came Shocker. Bush hit to McManus who threw Schang out at the plate. The bases still were full and a double play would end the side, give the Browns the lead in the series. As events turned out, the Browns would have tied for the pennant.

But—Whitey Witt singled, scoring McNally and Scott. Those two runs were enough to win. The Browns faded out in the ninth.

They also faded out for the remainder of the season, or the better part of it. You'd have thought that series ended the race. The players seemed dejected. Fans, too, lost interest. Reservations for future games by the hundreds and even thousands were canceled. Business Manager Bob Quinn tore his hair, or what was left of it, in despair, at the way the public deserted the club.

"I have always thought that had the fans encouraged the team The players would have had more success in the season's remaining games," Quinn once told this writer.

Whatever the cause, it was not until several days later that, the Yanks losing and the Browns winning a couple, our players again revived hope of victory. But it was too late, the Yanks had enough left to finish strong.

And, to help out the situation, the Red Sox, owned by the late Harry Frazee (who had borrowed some $300,000 of Jake Ruppert, the Yanks' owner) put in a rookie pitcher, Ferguson, to start the semifinal game of the season against the Yanks.

The New York club needed that victory. The campaign otherwise would have ended in a tie between the Browns and the Yanks.

Ferguson was started despite the fact that the great Red Sox pitcher, Pennock, was available and fresh. What happened is history. The Yanks blasted some four runs off Ferguson in the first inning and with none out, the rookie was taken out and Pennock was sent in. The Yanks failed to make a run off of him during the remaining eight innings.

That game was the straw that broke the camel's back and really kept the Browns from the seats of the mighty.

The Crucial Game.

FINALISTS IN CHICAGO EVENT BOTH REGARDED AS 'OUTSIDERS'

Bert McDowell Defeats Notre Dame Freshman, Donohue, to Reach Final —Holmstrom Eliminates Cochrane.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Bert McDowell, a Louisiana State University freshman from Kansas City, and Johnny Holmstrom of Rockford, Ill., neither of whom rated more than an outside chance before the tournament started, were matched today in the championship round of the twenty-fourth annual Western golf championship battle.

McDowell fought his way into the finals yesterday at the Cherry Hill Club by coming from behind to conquer Phil Donohue, the Notre Dame yearling from Sioux City, Ia., 2 and 1, and following up with a 4 and 3 triumph over Art Andrews Jr., son of a Peoria (Ill.) pro.

Holmstrom had an even tougher time of it, being forced to go 19 holes before eliminating Irving Cochrane of Chicago, one up, and squeezing out a one up decision over Joe Franco, another Chicago youngster who bowed to Sid Richardson of Creston, Ia., and Northwestern University, in last year's final.

Andrews reached the semifinals yesterday morning by defeating Ken Krakauer of Kansas City, one up, while Franco overcame little Dave Kober of Ludington, Mich., one up in 19 holes.

McDowell and Holmstrom met over the 36-hole route today.

out Babe Ruth 10 times in 14 tries, was sent in, although he worked only the day before.

McNally pulled another shock. He bunted in front of the plate. Severeid rushed out. He had a good chance to make the play at third and retire Schang. But his throw was low and the error set up the game for the Yanks. Man on first, man on third, nobody down, one run needed to tie and two to win. Pruett then walked Scott and the bases were full.

In came Shocker. Bush hit to McManus who threw Schang out at the plate. The bases still were full and a double play would end the side, give the Browns the lead in the series. As events turned out, the Browns would have tied for the pennant.

But—Whitey Witt singled, scoring McNally and Scott. Those two runs were enough to win. The Browns faded out in the ninth.

They also faded out for the remainder of the season, or the better part of it. You'd have thought that series ended the race. The players seemed dejected. Fans, too, lost interest. Reservations for future games by the hundreds and even thousands were canceled. Business Manager Bob Quinn tore his hair, or what was left of it, in despair, at the way the public deserted the club.

"I have always thought that had the fans encouraged the team The players would have had more success in the season's remaining games," Quinn once told this writer.

Wrigley Plans No Change In Pilot-House of Cubs

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Ailing or not, Charlie Grimm is still the manager of the Chicago Cubs, and owner Phil K. Wrigley has no intention of making a change.

To head off rumors that Leo (Gabby) Hartnett, who was in charge of the National League leaders when Grimm was forced to remain in bed yesterday because of recurrence of his chronic back ailment, would be pilot, Wrigley said the situation merely proved the Cubs have reserves in all departments.

"Hartnett's filling in for Grimm simply shows the Cubs have reserve strength," Wrigley said. "As captain, he was next in line when Charlies had to give up because of his ailment. If anything happens to Hartnett, someone else will fill in for him."

"As I see it," he elaborated, "the situation adds up to the same thing as if Stanley Hack were injured or ill, and Linus Frey took over third base. That's the spirit in which the club is being run."

A Burning Shame.

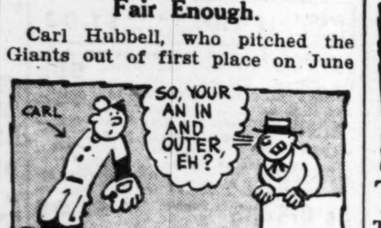
When the horses fail to burn up the track in Marseilles, France, the bettors get mad and do it themselves.

TEN thousand gallant Frenchmen thought
That they could beat the game,
But when their efforts came to naught
It was a burning shame.

So when they failed to beat the race
They muttered "sacre bleu!"
And then set fire to the place—
What else was there to do.

Fair Enough.

Carl Hubbell, who pitched the Giants out of first place on June 15, pitched them back into the lead on July 15.



CARL
SO, YOUR AN IN AND OUTER, EH?

As a consequence of the Texas League's non-interference policy when players are disposed to settle their arguments as man to man, there is very little fighting among the ball players in that tight little organization. The T. L. seems to have something there.

Bill Terry was recently put out of the game for the first time in his career. But it took Bill Klem, one of the best umpires in organized ball, to do it.

Lou Fette, Alma's (Mo.) gift to major league baseball, is being rated the prize rookie of the year. And that's no "con."

And in this corner, we have Mike Jacobs, who has a corner on every worth while glove slinger in the business.

The Duke Rides Again.

The Duke of Kent had a thrill last night driving to a dinner at the Salter's Hall, St. Swithin's Lane, E. C. Another car traveling West pulled out from behind a van at the corner of Walbrook and Cannon Street, E. C. The Duke applied his brakes hard, and brought his car almost to a standstill.—Daily Mirror (London).

THE Duke of Kent, he drove hell bent
To dine at Salter's Hall,
When from a guy just passing by
He had the closest call.

But in his plight the Duke sat tight
As he applied the brakes;
He didn't swerve or lose his nerve—
The Duke had what it takes!

Nor did the Duke that guy rebuke
And bawl him out amain;
That noble sport just pulled up short,
Then drove right on again.

After playing through nearly half the season without being shut out the Gas House Gang went overboard in a big way and were blanked in a doubleheader by the Reds.

Gastanaga Will Meet Otis Thomas Tonight

His history indicates that he is 31 years of age, although he declares that he is three years younger and explains the discrepancy on the basis that he had to advance his age to get bouts when he came to this country.

Must Hit the Target Early.

As to the probable winner of the contest, watchers of workouts in the past week have felt that unless Gastanaga gets to Thomas early, Otis, with his better boxing ability and straighter punching, should win. Gastanaga has shown all the earmarks of a real puncher but he is a wild swinger who usually leaves himself wide open when he misses. If that is the way he fights Thomas, boxing followers believe it will be just too bad for Isidro.

In the second 10-rounder, Atkins has provided another mixed match of merit in Harry Thomas, Chicago, and Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro.

This Thomas is a hard punching heavyweight who recently knocked out Jorge Brescia, Argentine boxer. That was on the championship Joe Louis-Braddock card in Chicago. Joe Louis holds a knockout over Brescia in three rounds.

Jones, a number of years ago, was a fine light-heavyweight, but apparently has not cut much figure since he has entered the heavyweight ranks, although he has been credited with a number of victories.

Simington's Tough Job.

The third 10-rounder brings together Leo Rodak, Chicago, who holds the distinction of having won the Catholic Youth Organization championship and the Golden Gloves title in the featherweight ranks, and Young Simington of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Rodak fought here once before, winning a decision over Kid Irish of Alton. Rodak showed at that time that he is a clever boxer and while he easily won over Irish, did not impress as being an interesting boxer.

Simington, as St. Louis fans know, is a rugged club fighter who likes to mix it and he may make a better fight with Rodak than did Irish.

There also will be three preliminary contests at five rounds each.

SEVEN MILLERS ON ASSOCIATION ALL-STAR TEAM

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., July 16.—Seven members of the Minneapolis Millers will lead a picked team of the American Association against the Columbus Redbirds in the league's annual all-star game here the night of July 27.

The Redbirds, who won the honor of staging the game by being in first place the morning of July 15, will be the first Eastern team to entertain since the game was instituted four years ago. The 1934 and 1935 games went to Minneapolis and the 1936 tilt to Milwaukee.

Five Columbus players chosen on the official all-star squad selected by members of the American Association Chapter of Baseball Writers of America must be replaced because they will play with the Redbirds.

Johnny Rizzo and Enos Slaughter will be replaced in the outfield by "Dusty" Cooke of Minneapolis and Goodwin Rosen of Louisville. Dick Siebert will give way to Harry Taylor of the Millers at first base, and Pitchers Max Macon and Bill McGee will be replaced by a pair of Toledo southpaws, Joe Sullivan and Alta Cohen.

The all-star squad announced today consisted of Outfielders Carl Reynolds of Minneapolis, Henry Steinbacher of St. Paul, Cooke and Rosen; Taylor at first base, Andy Cohen of Minneapolis at second; his teammate, "Red" Kress at short, Charley English of Kansas City at third, John Riddle of Indianapolis, John Peacock of Minneapolis and John Pasek of St. Paul, catchers, and Charley Wagner of the Millers, Forest Pressnell of Milwaukee, Sullivan and Cohen, pitchers.

Two more players will be named by Manager Al Sothoron to complete the squad and another manager will be named as Spthoron's assistant.

STEELE'S SPAR MATE INJURED IN WORKOUT

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Freddie Steele, middleweight boxing champion, who will meet Hobo Williams, Tuesday night in a title bout, hunted new sparring partners today.

FLY-WHEEL ACTION GIVES NEW GOLF BALL REMARKABLE CONTROLLABILITY

New Hol-Hi K-28 Only Ball to Offer Roto-Action

● Never in the history of golf has a ball recorded such an amazing series of consistent wins as has the new Hol-Hi K-28. Following its sensational preview in 1936 it has clinched its claim to uncanny accuracy in the scoring zone* by capturing the most important tournaments of 1937. Chief among them are:

Metropolitan Open, May 16th, won by Jimmy Hines playing the new Hol-Hi K-28 and Wilson clubs.

P. G. A. Championship, won for the second time by Denny Shute; Jug McSpaden runner-up. Both played the new Hol-Hi K-28 and Wilson clubs.

1937 British Open and Amateur Championships, both won by players using Wilson golf equipment.

HOW NEW HOL-HI K-28 SAVES STROKES

The reason is weight placement away from center that causes fly-wheel action. This gives Hol-Hi K-28 greater over-spin for truer rolling putts, and makes it possible to put on greater backspin for green-holding pitch shots—greater distance from the tee and on fairway shots, too. Spin the new Hol-Hi K-28 Demonstrator at your professional's or at the Wilson dealer's to prove its ability to lower your score.

*Scoring zone—that vital area extending 125 yards out from the pin. It's the place where birdies are made and championships won.

SUNPORT MAKES UP 10 LENGTHS TO WIN EMPIRE CITY SPRINT

By the Associated Press.

EMPIRE CITY RACE TRACK, N. Y., July 16.—A. D. B. Pratt's Sunport, a colt that seems to have found himself at the Yonkers track, made it two victories in as many local starts by leading home a field of fleet sprinters in the Bronxville handicap here today.

The Sun Briar four-year-old was about 10 lengths out of it after a bad start that saw the Arcturus Stable's Isaiah beating the field away from the gate by daylight, but Sunport caught Isaiah in the last furlong and easily drew off to beat that veteran by a length and a half. The Howe Stable's North Riding, beaten three lengths for the place, lasted to nose out Rainland for the show.

Sunport negotiated the distance of about six furlongs in 1:10 4-5 over a heavy track. With Johnny Longden up, he paid 2 to 1.

42 PLANES MAKE ANOTHER FUTILE EARHART HUNT

FLYERS SIGHT MANY WHALES AND SHARKS

Aviatrix and Navigator Now Have Been Missing 14 Days and Navy About Abandons Hope.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, July 16.—Forty-two planes again left the decks of the aircraft carrier Lexington yesterday for their third sweep of the Equatorial seas about Howland Island in search of Amelia Earhart and Frederick J. Noonan, but after three and one-half hours returned, empty-handed as usual, to the Lexington.

The left flank of the fleet reported encountering impenetrable rain squalls. Searchers said the area it was supposed to have covered would be gone over again today.

Sharks were numerous in the area, several were caught from the Lexington's decks and the flyers reported sighting many whales.

Missing for 14 Days.

Fourteen days have now elapsed since Miss Earhart and Noonan disappeared, presumably near Howland, while attempting to fly 2570 miles from New Guinea to the tiny American insular outpost near the Equator.

Ships and fighting planes covered more than 200,000 square miles of the remote area without finding a trace of the plane in which the famous aviatrix and Noonan were flying around the world "just for fun."

Aboard the Lexington, searchers began talking about the end of the disheartening job. It was said the carrier probably would hold a rendezvous with the Coast Guard cutter Itasca and the mine sweeper Swan Saturday if the search remained fruitless by then.

Authorities here believed the Lexington would not be able to continue the hunt much longer than Saturday. Her gasoline and fuel supplies were deemed good for four days of full-strength operation. Yesterday was her third day of less-than-maximum operations.

Throughout the night the carrier cruised slowly, playing powerful searchlights into the black tropic skies. Special watches patrolled her decks.

Search yesterday involved the scanning of both sides of the 180th meridian from a point 80 miles north of the Equator and extending 160 miles northward.

The Lexington began its search operations Tuesday by sending all but three of its 63 planes into the hunt. The pace proved too fast for her 1200 men, unaccustomed to the tropical heat and the operating air fleet was cut to 42 thereafter.

Cutter Itasca Heads Back.

The Coast Guard cutter Itasca headed back toward Howland Island today, after searching the Gilbert Islands group for three days without success.

Out of the search, the battleship Colorado headed toward Honolulu after having covered more than 38,000 miles with its three catapult planes about the Phoenix Islands, southeast of Howland.

The Itasca received the last authentic message from the Earhart plane July 2. At that time the "flying laboratory" supposedly was near Howland, but Miss Earhart reported her gasoline was running low and she could see no land. Her message said:

"We are on the line of position 157-337. Will repeat this message on 6210 kilocycles. We are now running north and south."

From that final message there was no telling where the plane was—except that it was somewhere along a line running approximately northwest and southeast through Howland Island.

It was the only definite clew ever received, although numerous "carrier wave" signals heard the next two days led searchers for a time to believe they might have come from the plane and that it might be down on an island or a coral reef. None of the unidentified messages was finally accepted as really from the Earhart plane.

Five Areas Have Been Scanned.

On the strength of the "carrier wave" signals the hunt swung toward south and west of Howland while the Lexington spread its search north and east.

A "last chance" theory was that the Earhart plane might have fallen short of Howland and drifted back toward the Gilbert group. The Itasca did not report on the extent of its hunt in that area. It supposedly had fuel enough to last only until Sunday.

In Washington, Secretary of State Hull sent messages of appreciation to the Japanese and New Zealand governments for their offers of assistance in the search. The Japanese aircraft carrier and the Japanese survey ship Kooshuu hunted for a time about the Marshall Islands, 600 miles northwest of Howland.

Despite the hopeless aspect of the whole search, George Palmer Putnam, Miss Earhart's husband, kept up his radio vigil in Los Angeles. He said: "She'll come through."

Only One Rescue in Pacific.

No transoceanic land plane ever fell into the Pacific and came through. The only instance of rescue for Pacific flyers in distress was that of Commander John Rodgers and his crew of four, who were picked up after floating nine and one-half days off Hawaii. But they were in a flying boat. Miss Earhart scorned the use of pontoons for the sake of speed.

In 1927, five land planes competed for $35,000 cash prizes in a race from California to Honolulu. Two of them reached their goal. The others vanished.

In 1934, Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm, George Littlejohn and J. L. Skilling left Oakland in a land plane for Australia. They, too, never came back.

UNSEATED DELEGATES ABANDON PLAN TO QUIT GLASS UNION

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 16. — Unseated delegates at the National Convention of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers abandoned plans to secede today and awaited action on the threatened ouster of President Glen W. McCabe.

"The Federation is our union, if there is any withdrawing to be done it will not be done by us," said Orval Davis of Clarksburg, W. Va. secretary of a rump session of unseated delegates.

The regular delegates retracted last night their ruling that only news reporters who were paid up members of the American Newspaper Guild could attend the convention sessions. The three daily Pittsburgh newspapers had withdrawn their reporters after the order was issued.

John O'Shea of the main convention group gave the following explanation: "The insistence of paid-up guild cards as a basis for admission to our sessions is withdrawn because of the mistaken impression it has conveyed. The action was not intended as a means of muzzling the press. We invite and welcome unbiased reporting of the entire proceedings. We were only making a gesture of fellowship as from one union to another."

C I O DENIED INJUNCTION AGAINST TEXTILE COMPANY

ROANOKE, Va., July 16.—United States District Judge John Paul refused today to grant the Textile Workers Organizing Committee of the C I O an injunction to restrain alleged coercion in the Covington industrial rayon plant election.

He held that the T W O C was asking the Court "to take over the functions of the Labor Relations Board . . . created for the very purpose of conducting fair elections.

In a bill of complaint the T W O C charged the company was "coercing and intimidating" employes and was aiding in the formation of a company union in violation of the Wagner Labor Relations Act. An election to determine the collective bargaining agent at the plant is to be held tomorrow.

J. M. Perry of Staunton, for the Rayon Corporation, told the Court that the granting of an injunction prior to the election would be "one of the greatest publicity stunts that could be used by the C I O."

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 16.—Charles Quicksall, former convict, was sentenced to life in Southern Michigan prison today for the murder July 2 of Mrs. Grace Parker, former Columbus (O.) resident. Quicksall, who was paroled to Mrs. Parker from the London (O.) prison farm, pleaded guilty. He admitted he shot the woman and wounded himself after her husband had ordered him from the Parker home.

PRISONERS TELL OF BUYING FREEDOM; 3 DEPUTIES FIRED

Two Other Sheriff's Officers Suspended at Kansas City; Investigation Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 16.—Sheriff James L. Williams discharged three deputies and placed two others under suspension today in the midst of an investigation into a release scheme by which three county jail prisoners recently were turned loose before serving their sentences. The Sheriff said two of the men told him they had paid $81 for their freedom.

Sheriff Williams said Walter D. White, six times a convict, told of paying $33, divided among three deputies. The Sheriff said Charles Wester, the other prisoner, who with White was returned to jail after their unauthorized release was learned, told of giving $48 to two deputies.

The jail books disclosed a third prisoner had been freed without proper authority. Edward L. Leslie of Kansas City, Kan., served less than two months of a six-month sentence.

The Sheriff said the deputies discharged are Frank Ridenour, Grover C. McIllian and Harry I. Smith, and those under suspension, John Lanagan, chief deputy, and William Harrison.

ILLINOIS BANKERS APPROVE PENSION PLAN FOR EMPLOYES

CHICAGO, July 16.—The Council of Administration of the Illinois Bankers' Association approved unanimously Thursday a bank employes' pension plan and recommended its adoption by the 815 member banks in the State.

Retirement of bank employes at the age of 65 on an annuity equaling from 40 to 45 per cent of salary at retirement was the principal provision of the plan J. F. Schmidt of Waterloo, president of the association, predicted wide adoption of the plan, which he said would be placed in operation after Nov. 1 under the supervision of a corporation to be set up within the association. The council also selected May 23 and 24 as the 1938 State convention dates. The convention city will be chosen later.

Details of the pension plan were announced by James E. Mitchell, president of the First National Bank, Carbondale. He said participating employes under 35 years of age would pay 4 per cent of their salary toward the annuity and that the banks would contribute the same amount. Contributions would increase to a maximum of 6 per cent in the upper age brackets.

JACK DOYLE SEEKS DIVORCE

Actor-Boxer Leaves for Reno; Wife Is Judith Allen.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Jack Doyle, Irish actor-boxer, left by plane yesterday for Reno to obtain a "quick divorce" from Judith Allen, film actress, so he may remarry. He declined to disclose the name of his bride-to-be.

Doyle said Miss Allen obtained an interlocutory divorce recently, but he did not want to wait until it became final.

William S. Hart Award Reversed.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The Appellate division of the State Court reversed an $86,759.11 breach of contract award to William S. Hart, famous two-gun hero of silent cinema days, and ordered a retrial of the suit against United Artists Corporation. Hart charged the corporation did not do its best to get a maximum return on "Tumbleweeds," a 1925 movie it distributed for the actor. The court unanimously reversed the jury's verdict awarding the damages which was entered April 24, 1936 in favor of Hart, and ordered a retrial on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Jewelry Stolen From Auto.

NEW YORK, July 16. — Mr. and Mrs. William V. C. Ruxton of Dorchester, England, reported to police last night the theft of jewels valued at $15,000 from a parked automobile outside the hotel at which they were dining. The jewelry belonged to Mrs. Ruxton, a daughter of Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard of New York, and had been left in a green calfskin bag in the car, the report to police said.

NEW PAY SCHEDULE POSTED AT PICKETED OFFICE BUILDING

Management of the Fullerton Building, Seventh and Pine streets, where most of the service employes went on strike Wednesday because a contract with the new Building Service Employes' Union was rejected, has posted a notice fixing working time and pay for three classes of help.

The notice, dated yesterday and signed by Claude I. Bakewell, manager, also provided for a week's annual vacation with pay for those employed one year or more. It declared employes were free to join any union or refrain from joining and promised there would be no discrimination between members and non-members.

Bakewell, in response to inquiry by a Post-Dispatch reporter, said he did not wish to state previous working time and rates of pay. A union spokesman asserted that the announcement represented an improvement over past conditions. It set a 48-hour week for elevator operators and porters and a 30-hour week for cleaning women, with pay of $80 a month for elevator operators, $75 for porters and $45 for cleaning women, plus a bonus of $2 a month for women working regularly.

SLUGGED WHILE CARRYING SIGN FOR SEATTLE GUILD

SEATTLE, July 16. Carlyle Emge, newsboy, was treated at City Hospital yesterday after he complained to police that a man slugged him as he was carrying a sign advertising an American newspaper guild mass meeting for tonight.

The guild is on strike against the Seattle Star, a member of the Scripps league of newspapers, following a jurisdictional dispute with the teamsters' union over guild membership of circulation department employes.

Charles Irvine, San Francisco, international representative of the guild, issued a statement saying "there have been repeated threats of violence to members of our union" since the strike started July 3 and that the guild demands "the full protection of the law for its members."

Regional counsel for the National Labor Relations Board served a complaint on the Star yesterday, charging it with unfair practices. The guild complains that the Star discharged 19 circulation men because they would not drop membership in the guild and join the teamsters' union.

TO RECEIVE FIRST AID TRAINING

2000 Illinois Miners to Be Given Cause by Government Agencies.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 16.—Two thousand employes of the Peabody Coal Co. in the Midland Field will be given first-aid training, beginning Sept. 1, by the State Department of Mines and Minerals and the United States Bureau of Mines, James McSherry, department director, announced today. First-aid classes will be opened in Peabody mines No. 7, 8, 9 and 58 in Christian County. Day and night classes will be held.

Classes in advanced mine rescue and recovery operations for all supervisory officials of the Peabody mines in the same area will be started next Monday, July 19.

CIO STRIKE CALLED OFF

Organizer and Six Pickets Arrested at Worcester, Mass.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 16. — Soon after Mary Donovan Hapgood, C I O organizer, was arrested with six others in the picket line at the Reed & Prince Manufacturing Co. plant yesterday, Organizer Martin J. Walsh ended the seven-week strike.

Mrs. Hapgood's husband, also an organizer, was released two weeks ago from jail in Maine pending a review by the Supreme Court of his conviction of contempt of an injunction issued during a shoe workers' strike.

BODIES OF 20 MEN RECOVERED FROM MINE IN INDIANA

By the Associated Press.

SULLIVAN, Ind., July 16.—Bodies of 20 men killed in an explosion in the Glendora Coal Co.'s Baker mine yesterday were removed from the gas-filled mine to local mortuaries late in the day. There, relatives, friends and company officers joined in identifying the dead. Carbon monoxide fumes hampered rescue workers in their attempts to remove the bodies.

Nine other miners were injured, three of them so critically they may die. One hundred and seventy-four miners escaped injury.

"I got out alive but I don't know how," said Wesley Bond, one of those working in the area of the explosion. "There was one big blast that mashed me against the wall. It was followed by a big wind. It beat against my ears until it felt like railroad spikes were being driven into my head."

Thrown Against Walls.

"The explosion picked me and my buddies up and rolled us like footballs," said Jerry Cox, who suffered head injuries. "Some of my buddies were thrown against the wall and they didn't have a chance."

The mine, 18 years old, is five miles northeast of Sullivan. Its shafts extend two and one-half miles toward Sullivan. Harry Keenan, superintendent, said the explosion occurred about one and three-fourths miles from the entrance. Cause of the explosion had not been determined.

Keenan said only 25 or 30 men were working in the area of the blast. Two or three slight explosions followed the big blast, he said, and there was a flash of fire. The 20 killed were crushed against the walls, he said.

Little Hope for 3 Others.

Dr. Harvey Crowder, mine surgeon, said he had little hope for recovery of Charles Secreace, Arch Anderson and Arnold Roberts, all of Sullivan.

Cox said he was in the explosion at the City Coal Mine, on the outskirts of Sullivan, Feb. 21, 1925, in which 41 men were killed.

On Jan. 29, 1931, an explosion in the Little Betty Mine near Dugger took 29 lives. In December, 1926, 36 men were killed in an explosion in the Francisco Mine near Princeton, about 50 miles south of Sullivan.

C. W. Templeton, a part owner of the mine, expressed belief there were two explosions. He said he believed they were caused by gas pockets set off by a miner's open carbide lamp.

Templeton criticised the United Mine Workers for opposing the use of electric lamps, declaring, "Had these lamps been used, this tragedy would not have occurred." Miners oppose electric "bug lights," because, they say, the lamps are too heavy and acid from the batteries damages their clothing.

Other mine executives said a spark from the electric trolley of the mine train might have ignited the gas.

BIG GERMAN GUNS REPORTED PLACED BEHIND GIBRALTAR

London Paper Says New Fortifications Have Been Built in Spanish Insurgent Territory.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—The Daily Herald said today new fortifications have been built in Spanish insurgent territory behind Gibraltar.

A correspondent for the laborite newspaper, wrote that heavy guns emplaced under supervision of German technical experts now stretch for 15 miles along the coast from Algeciras toward Tarifa. He said all the work of building emplacements was carried out by political prisoners from the Algeciras jail.

The Herald reported the first shipment of guns was landed from the German pocket battleship Deutschland Feb. 2 and included about a dozen 12-inch guns. It said in the second consignment, arriving March 20, were 16-inch guns, transported by another vessel, which also landed the first contingent of German artillery experts.

The paper stated that also in March the German tanker Max Albrecht reached Algeciras, and discharged a cargo of machine guns and anti-aircraft guns.

F. ENGELHORN WILL UPHELD

Settlement Is Arranged With First Wife and Son.

The will of Fred Engelhorn, a paperhanger, who died in 1934, disposing of an estate now valued at about $25,000, was upheld at a formal hearing in Circuit Court today after a settlement had been arranged with his first wife, Mrs. Marie Martin, and their son, Henry Engelhorn, who had been cut off with $1 each under the will.

Under the settlement one-third of the estate will go to Henry Engelhorn, one-third to the second wife, Mrs. Lottie Engelhorn, 7111 South Broadway, who would have got $40 a month under the will, and her daughter, Mrs. Eva Sass, and one-third to three nieces and a nephew of Engelhorn, who would have received the residue under the will. In 1934 the estate was valued at $40,000.

WAGNER NIGHT WORKERS VOTE ON CONTRACT TODAY

Day Employes of Electric Concern Already Have Approved Proposed Agreement.

Night workers of the Wagner Electric Corporation will meet this afternoon at 6310A Easton avenue, Wellston, to vote on a contract proposal negotiated by the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America.

About 1500 day employes, members of the union, last night accepted the proposal, which is a modification of the original contract offered by the company but rejected by employes. The new agreement provides a wage increase of four cents an hour for time workers and piecework increases which will yield about the same amount. Minimum wages of 32 cents an hour for beginners and 35 cents for those with four months' experience or more, and time and a half for overtime are provided.

The proposal establishes a differential of 5 per cent for workers on the first night shift over day employes and 16 per cent for those on the second night shift. One week annual vacation with pay and the five-day, 40-hour week are granted. The union, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, is recognized as the sole bargaining agent.

It is proposed that the wage increases be retroactive to July 5. About 3600 employes are affected.

JAPANESE GENERAL DIES ON EVE OF PEIPING CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, July 16.—The Domei (Japanese) News Agency announced today the death of Lieutenant-General Kanichiro Tashiro, former commander of the Japanese North China garrison.

Gen. Tashiro had been suffering from heart disease. His illness coincided with the outbreak of Sino-Japanese hostilities west of Peiping last week, and while he lay in a Japanese military hospital here, Tokio ordered Lieutenant-General Kiyoshi Katsuki to fly to China to direct what would have been the largest operation of Gen. Tashiro's career.

Gen. Tashiro was 56 years old. Most of his career had been connected with Japanese military policy regarding China, where he served as military attache and in other capacities. He was an adviser on Chinese problems to the Japanese delegation at the Washington Conference of 1921-22. Ten years later he was chief of the Japanese army's punitive expedition to Shanghai.

In 1933, he directed the military police in Manchuria. Two years later he commanded the Eleventh Division. Last year, he received his highest command, that of the greatly augmented North China garrison.

RE-OPENING OF CAHOKIA DOG TRACK PLANNED NEXT WEEK

A. Harry Sodini Financing Repairs; Two Trucks of Greyhounds Arrive.

The old Cahokia dog track on Illinois State Highway No. 3 five miles south of East St. Louis is being repaired and reconditioned and an attempt will be made next week, probably Monday night, to re-open the track. Dog racing is still prohibited by law in Illinois.

A. Harry Sodini, who formerly operated some hotels in St. Louis and now lives in Peoria, is financing and supervising the repairs. Sodini told a Post-Dispatch reporter he might use the track for dogs, horses, or midget autos, but one of the first things to be repaired was the rail for the electric rabbit and yesterday two truck loads of dogs arrived at the track. The kennels were not ready yet and the dogs were quartered with farmers in the neighborhood.

Sodini said he leased the track from John J. Keeley of East St. Louis and the H. H. Hall Construction Co. of East St. Louis, who acquired ownership of it several years ago as holders of a mechanics' lien at a foreclosure. Tony Foley, St. Louis County gambler, was on the grounds yesterday helping with the repairs and Sodini said he had employed Foley as adviser.

CZECH GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

Dispute Over Farm Price Regulation Upsets Premier Hodza.

By the Associated Press.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, July 16.—The Government of Premier Milan Hodza resignned today. It was formed June 3, 1935. The resignation arose from a conflict between the powerful Agrarian faction and Finance Minister Josef Kalfus over regulation of grain prices.

To insure farmers "adequate profits," the Agrarians demanded a State subsidy of 60,000,000 crowns (about $1,800,000) which Kalfus refused. Socialist Cabinet members declared their support of Kalfus and resignation of the Cabinet followed.

UNION ACCUSES HERSHEY CORP.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The United Chocolate Workers' Union, Local No. 2, filed formal charges with the National Labor Relations Board today accusing the Hershey Chocolate Corporation of violating the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

Stanley Root, regional director of the board, said the union, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, charged the company with discrimination, intimidation and fostering a company union, of the type prohibited by the Wagner Labor Act.

JAMES ROOSEVELT MAKES JOBS APPEAL

Asks Massachusetts Editors to Join in Getting Industry to Hire Ex-W P A Men.

BOSTON, July 16.—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, called on Massachusetts editors and publishers today to support a campaign to place 35,000 former Works Progress Administration workers in private industry.

Addressing a conference, to which he had invited 229 editors and publishers, Roosevelt, who acts as one of his father's secretaries, asked that space in advertising and news columns be contributed to the campaign.

Before the meeting, Roosevelt disclaimed that he had political aspirations now. Recurring rumors have implied he might seek political office in Massachusetts, but he waved the suggestion aside by declasing he was su busy in Washington he had "no time for any immediate political ambitions."

"Publishers and Editors."

"The first load will have to fall upon the publishers and the editors," he told the gathering, in discussing his employment plan. "Your 'positions wanted' columns have always been the chief medium—they still are the best medium—to bring jobs and workers together, but at the present time many workers have neither the money nor the knowledge of your usefulness to take the initiative with you. For that reason it has been suggested that you take the initiative for them.

"W P A officials will furnish you full lists of those who have been dropped from W P A rolls and elementary data as to what they can do, if you publishers and editors see the wisdom of undertaking to put that information in the form of simple 'position wanted' advertisements, and to run them free of charge in an appropriate manner and for appropriate periods in your papers.

"To some of you, this will be a considerable financial contribution; to others it will be a very small one. The distribution of the burden can, I believe, be equitably adjusted and certainly all can co-operate fully through the news columns of the public press.

Will Reach All Parts of U. S.

"Through this method every part of the commonwealth will be fully informed of the names and type of work wanted by men and women without employment in their community and in the commonwealth."

Roosevelt suggested the advertising plan be supplemented by clearing houses which would furnish an employer additional data regarding a prospective employe. State and Federal agencies, he said, should co-operate in establishing such sources of information.

Roosevelt also sought to enlist the radio in the employment campaign, and their turning to representatives "of that group who hold the entire key to the problem in their hands, the group who manage the business life of our commonwealth," he asked Albert N. Murra yof the Associated Industries of Massachusetts to "give us the benefit of advice from an employers' point of view."

"Frankly," he said, "in the first place I did not feel that this should in any way become a political meeting, but a citizens meeting in the old New England tradition.' He then invited "free and frank" discussion, asserting that "we must recognize that the success of this program is entirely dependent upon the complete co-operation of the respective lines of endeavor which make up the commonwealth."

Plans to Organize Bootblacks.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Montie Patterson of Los Angeles, Cal., president of the American Shoe Cleaners, Dyers & Tonsorial Porters' Union, announced last night a campaign would be started immediately to organize the nation's 500,000 bootblacks. He said the union has applied for a charter in the American Federation of Labor.

NEW CO-DEFENDANT NAMED IN SUIT FOR COCA-COLA STOCK

Mrs. A. C. Hilmer Includes Mother of Late Husband in Amended Petition.

An amended petition was filed today in Circuit Court by Mrs. Josephine P. Hilmer in her suit to recover 2400 shares of stock of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of St. Louis. The original suit named Mrs. William C. Hilmer, 4456 Westminster place, as defendant, alleging that the title stood in her name, the stock having been delivered to her by the late Arthur C. Hilmer, a broker, who was the husband of plaintiff.

The amended petition also includes Arthur Hilmer's mother, Mrs. Laura Hilmer, 6132 Pershing avenue, as a co-defendant, alleging that she claims the stock, worth $94,000, as a gift from her son. Samuel H. Lieberman, attorney for the plaintiff, said the new defendant's claim was disclosed at the taking of her deposition a few days ago.

In her suit Mrs. Josephine Hilmer says that her husband, in 1932, coerced her into delivering the stock to him to obtain a loan, but instead of pledging it as collateral, as he said he would do, he had the title placed in the name of Mrs. William C. Hilmer, his sister-in-law, who then indorsed the stock certificates to him.

FARMER, WIFE, EMPLOYE FOUND KILLED NEAR HANNIBAL

By the Associated Press.

HANNIBAL, Mo., July 16.—The death of a farmer, his wife and an employe south of Hannibal were investigated today by Ralls County authorities.

Prosecuting Attorney Onie D. Newlon said the bodies of Mrs. Bud Foster and Albert McEwen, 16 years old, who had been shot to death, were found lying on the dining room floor at their home last night. Later the body of Foster, his throat cut, was discovered in a driveway at a neighboring farm.

Newlon said the Fosters had been having family trouble and that Foster had gone away from home. Mrs. Foster then employed McEwen to help her on the farm.

The prosecutor quoted Miss Carrie Hooten, Mrs. Foster's sister, as saying Foster entered the house as they were eating the evening meal and fired two shots from a gun he was carrying. She said she ran to a neighbor's home for help but that Mrs. Foster and McEwen were dead when they returned.

Judge Frank Kelly in Circuit Court at Benton tomorrow is expected to fix the date for his new trial. John Manor, third man arrested in connection with the robbery and killing escaped jail at Benton soon after his arrest and has not been found.

PETITION IN CONGRESS FOR FARM LEGISLATION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Five petitions were circulated today among members of Congress asking for early enactment of farm legislation embracing the ever-normal granary plan and crop control.

The petitions expressed alarm over the possibility next year's farm surpluses will bring disastrously low prices. Several administration leaders signed them.

The request for action at this session followed final congressional approval yesterday of a modified farm tenancy program and the introduction of a proposed "A A A of 1937" by Senator Pope (Dem.), Idaho.

Chairman Jones of the House Agriculture Committee said Pope's measure was impractical and said he would have one of his own ready within a few days.

The suggested "A A A of 1937" contains the "ever-normal" granary plan. It was sponsored by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and indorsed in principle by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

"The 'ever-normal' granary contemplates the storage of crops during years there are surpluses, and their release for consumption during years of short yields.

The tenancy measure sent to the White House provides for the spending of $10,000,000 the first year, $25,000,000 the next and $50,000,000 each subsequent year.

It also authorizes the expenditures of $10,000,000 the first year and $20,000,000 each of the next two years to retire crop lands not worth cultivating.

Chairman Jones said the program was "only a drop in the bucket" compared with what is needed for the nation's farm tenants. He estimated the first year's appropriation would help between 2500 and 3000 acquire farms. Tenancy has been increasing, he added, at the rate of 40,000 a year.

27 POWERS ADOPT EDEN'S PLAN AS BASIS FOR PARLEY

WANTS FOREIGNERS OUT OF WAR ZONE

France, Wary of "Paper Promises," Insists on Progress Before Franco Gets Belligerent Rights.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—The British compromise plan for keeping European hands off Spain was reported unanimously accepted as a "basis for discussion" today, an hour after the committee of 27 Powers resumed afternoon deliberations.

A sub-committee was expected to meet Tuesday to consider details of agreement.

The conference had been recessed for several hours when Charles Corbin, French Ambassador to London, said he needed time to get further instructions.

A French Cabinet meeting, it was learned, has instructed Corbin to approve the plan "in principle" only.

The Ministers, meeting with President Albert Lebrun, decided France would insist on "substantial progress" in establising control of Spain's ports and the withdrawal of foreign fighters before according insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco a belligerent's status.

They said they needed guarantees that the control of ports and evacuation of troops would be more than "paper promises."

The Earl of Plymouth, British chairman of the Neutrality Committee, formally submitted the plan to the non-intervention group today.

British official opinion described reception of the proposals as "highly satisfactory" when many representatives of smaller Powers accepted the plan in principle or for discussion.

Germany and Italy, who have recognized the insurgent junta as the de facto Government of Spain, it was thought would want belligerent rights accorded immediately, with the volunteer question deferred as long as possible.

Eden's proposal stipulated that recognition of belligerent rights by the 27 non-interventionist nations would become effective when their representatives on the Neutrality Committee decided that "arrangements for withdrawal of foreign nationals was working satisfactorily and that this withdrawal had made substantial progress."

The views of the two warring forces in Spain—not themselves represented in the neutrality group—may also present unexpected difficulties if practical application of the foreign volunteers provision, or even reconstruction of international control is attempted.

The Eden plan called for dissolution of the naval cordon around Spain, from which Italy and Germany withdrew last month; it would also establishe a vast system of observers on supply ships entering Spanish waters and at seaports and other points in and around Spain.

French Communists Protest Against Accepting "In Principle."

PARIS, July 16.—The Communist wing of Premier Camille Chautemps' People's Front protested today against the Government decision to accept "in principle" the British-sponsored plan to enforce non-intervention in Spain.

The Communist Executive Committee contended that the decision, in effect, was a step toward recognizing Spanish insurgents as belligerents. The Communist party in France has urged direct aid to the Madrid-Valencia Government.

Total Would Be Billion More Than in 1936 Had Not $2,237,000,000 Been Voted Then for Soldiers' Bonus.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Congress has appropriated more than $7,500,000,000 this year for Federal expenditures, committee records showed today. This includes an estimated $133,298,999 for the Interior Department, which the House may cut to some extent before giving final approval next week.

The Budget Bureau recommended general expenditures of $7,834,036,159.59, while the comparable appropriations for last year were $8,703,324,108.52.

Although an economy campaign resulted in holding funds some $300,000,000 under the Budget Bureau's recommendations, this year's appropriations would be more than one billion dollars ahead of last year's had not Congress voted $2,237,000,000 in 1936 to pay the soldiers' bonus.

Including miscellaneous appropriations, such as those to pay claims against the Government, permanent and indefinite appropriations, the grand total approved by Congress last year was $10,336,399,272.65.

Not until the present session ends will the total of this year's miscellaneous appropriations be known. A third deficiency appropriation for unanticipated expenditures must yet be passed.

Using the estimate for the Interior Department, appropriations for regular Federal activities have aggregated $4,547,047,903.63 this year, compared with budget estimates of $4,885,513,517.25 and last year's total of $5,959,673,869.05. The latter included the bonus payment but not the entire appropriation for farm activities.

UNITED STATES ASKED TO INTERCEDE IN CHINA

14 Other Adherents of Nine-Power Pact Invited to 'Take Action.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador, said today he had discussed with Secretary of State Hull the plea of China that the United States and other nine-Power treaty signatories take action in the present Chinese-Japanese situation.

"We want the various treaty signatories to take action," Dr. Wang said. 'I went over the situation."

It was learned authoritatively that the Ambassador left with Hull a memorandum setting forth China's view of the situation and a plea that it be accorded assistance.

A similar memorandum, it was learned, was presented to the foreign offices of the 14 other Powers which are signatories or adherents of the nine Power treaty.

Officials declined to express an opinion as to whether presenting the case to the 14 nations, who now guarantee China's integrity through adherence to the pact, constituted invocation of the pact.

Officials explained that the Chinese Government's action might be interpreted as an informal invocation but they declined to express an opinion pending careful study of the memorandum by Hull and higher officials.

The Chinese Government led up to today's memorandum with a series of conferences between the Ambassador and State Department officials.

Hull has discussed the situation with Hirosi Saito, the Japanese Ambassador, and the Chinese Ambassador on several occasions.

After one such conference, the State Department issued a formal statement saying that Secretary Hull had given the envoys a friendly warning that conflict in the Far East would threaten the peace of the world.

The United States, however, has taken no official action, other than the friendly exchanges of opinion. It was said today that this Government has not yet made any commitments concerning the Nine-Power Pact.

Yakichiro Suma, Charge d'Affaires of the Japanese Embassy, had an engagement with Hull this afternoon. The Japanese Ambassador is in Detroit and Suma presumably will act for him in discussions with State Department officials.

China's London Envoy Gives Eden Notes on Peiping Status.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—The Chinese Ambassador to London, Quo Taichi, presented today to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden a memorandum setting forth the "status and circumstances of the present threat from Japan in North China."

The Chinese Embassy said a similar communication had been made to all other signatories of the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922, except Japan, and also to Russia and Germany.

The Embassy estimated more than 100 Japanese airplanes and 20,000 Japanese troops already had been concentrated in the Peiping-Tientsin area, where fighting broke out on July 7, and that they were "ready to precipitate a major clash at any moment."

The nine-Power convention pledge the signatories to a "hands off China" policy to permit China to develop a unified nation.

"While China is obliged to employ all means at her disposal to defend her territory and national honor to the end of her existence," the Embassy statement said, "she, nevertheless, holds herself in readiness to settle her differences with Japan by any of the pacific means known to international law and treaties."

"Ever since the original outbreaks, Chinese authorities, anxious to reach a peaceful settlement, have used their best efforts to arrange for cessation of hostilities by mutual withdrawal of troops.

"But almost immediately after each successive arrangement was made, it was nullified by resumption of their attack by Japanese forces.

"It need hardly be pointed out that the sudden attack on Loukouchiao (captured by Japan) and the invasion of North China by a large Japanese military force constitute a clear violation of China's sovereignty, contrary to the letter and spirit of the nine-Power treaty, in the Paris peace pact and the Covenant of the League of Nations."

The nine-Power signatories are the United States, Britain, Japan, China, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Portugal. The United States called attention to the treaty during the Chinese-Japanese disturbances in 1932.

"TROTSKY GANG" ACCUSED OF SPOILING WORKERS' FOOD

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 16.—Soviet newspapers reported yesterday that enemies of collective farming have burned wheat fields in the Ukraine and Crimea and that a "Trotsky gang" spoiled hundreds of tons of food for railroad workers.

The newspaper Izvestia said collective farmers have extinguished many wheat field fires in recent weeks but that 150 acres of unreaped wheat were burned in Ordjonikidze Province and that large fields were destroyed in other districts.

Farm managers were criticised for failure to prevent the fires, and tractor station heads were blamed for failure to provide combines with extinguishers.

The newspaper Gudok, organ of the Commissariat of Communications, accused V. Dovnoko, manager of the Makhachkala works of the Ordjonikidze railroad, and seven others of being members of a "Trotsky" gang. The newspaper said they protected saboteurs who destroyed food for railroad workers by pouring kerosene on potatoes and mixing salt with sugar. The eight men will be tried, the newspaper said.

DR. JEAN PICCARD MAKES READY FOR BALLOON TEST

Hopes for Favorable Weather Tomorrow to Try Aircraft Employing 80 Bags.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Minn., July 16.—Dr. Jean Piccard issued stand-by orders for his ground crew today, after being informed that weather conditions might be favorable tomorrow for his test flight in a multi-balloon aircraft.

Mrs. Piccard, who is working with her husband, said, however, light winds forecast for this area might necessitate further delay unless Rochester's valley location provided sufficient shelter.

Eighty four-foot balloons will provide lifting power. Dr. Piccard hopes to rise about two miles in an open gondola to test the abilities of a multi-balloon craft compared to a single balloon. If successful, the flight will be the forerunner of a stratosphere attempt.

RABBIS ASK FOR REVISION OF PALESTINE PARTITION PLAN

Express Confidence British Will Not Curtail Holy Land Promised to Jews in Bible.

NEW YORK, July 16. — The Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada appealed last night to Great Britain to revise the plan for the partition of Palestine.

The conference adopted expressing faith in the "justice of British people, who are known as admirers of the Bible, not to curtail the boundaries of the Holy land as promised to the Jewish people in the Bible."

CHINESE DIVISION SENT BY NANKING REACHES PEIPING

100,000 JAPANESE REPORTED ENROUTE

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, July 16.—The first troops from the Nanking Government, high foreign sources said tonight, have reached the North China battle area and presumably are ready for action to oppose Japanese efforts to dominate Hopeh and Chahar Provinces.

Fighting which began on July 7 has been between Japanese troops and soldiers of Hopeh and Chahar.

Now the Government troops have reached Pao Ting-fu, foreign informants said here, 90 miles southwest of Peiping.

The number of troops was unspecified, but it was placed at more than one division (a division is 12,000 to 16,000 men).

The danger of conflict was further heightened by reports from Tientsin that Tangshan, 70 miles northeast of Tientsin, was being prepared to receive a full Japanese army corps from Korea.

Won't Recognize Local Pact.

Japanese military leaders have been negotiating a peace with local officials, but Nanking has avowed it will recognize no local agreement. Chinese leaders asserted that the nation was ready to act, if necessary to halt what they believe is a Japanese effort to detach the two provinces from China proper.

Japanese officials declared today that renewed Chinese-Japanese fighting south and southeast of Peiping had increased the total of Japanese losses to 20 killed and 60 wounded and compelled the Japanese Army "to take adequate measures."

Latest scene of conflict was Anping, 28 miles southeast of here. According to Japanese military reports, Chinese troops behind the town walls fired on a Japanese column. The Japanese returned the fire, disarmed 100 Chinese and routed the rest.

(Anping, meaning tranquil peace, lies on the route probably taken by Japanese Infantry marching from Tientsin to Peiping, where Chinese and Japanese first clashed nine days ago.)

Maj. Takeo Imai, assistant Military Attache at the Japanese embassy here, said a Chinese force and a small Japanese detachment garrisoned at Huang-tsun Station, eight miles south of Fengtai on the Peiping-Tientsin railroad, fought yesterday.

One Japanese soldier was shot, Maj. Imai said, and another was beaten to death with the broad blade of a Chinese sword. He decladed that heavy casualties since the first clash at Marco Polo Bridge, west of Peiping, 10 days ago, compelled Japan to "take proper measures."

Chinese reports said the Japanese Army had taken advantage of the lull in fighting to rush work on the line of entrenchments that would cut off Peiping and a division of the Twenty-ninth army from the rest of China.

Soldiers Entrenching.

Throughout yesterday and last night soldiers were throwing up fortifications along the semi-circle stretching from Tung-chow, 12 miles east of here, to the vicinity of Marco Polo bridge where the original clash occurred July 7. The bridge across the Yung-ting River is 11 miles southwest of Peiping.

The work of entrenching the road from Tung-chow, capital of the Japanese-influenced East Hopeh regime, was said to have been completed by the Japanese garrison there and the East Hopeh militia.

Japanese soldiers stripped the area on the north edge of the walled Japanese Embassy quarter of trees and brush. This section faces the Chinese city and the Japanese apparently feared the cover would provide protection for a Chinese attack.

The city was practically empty of Japanese civilians. All trains were jammed with them fleeing to Tientsin, the headquarters of the Japanese North China garrison, 60 miles southeast.

More Compromise Talk.

Additional reports of a local compromise between Chinecs and Japanese authorities were heard from Tientsin where negotiations lasted throughout last night.

A reliable source said the basis

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 16.—Harvard astronomers said today that the newly-discovered Finsler comet, racing earthward, probably would first become visible to observers, without telescopes, about Aug. 1.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple said that although the comet would reach normally visible magnitude about July 18, the brilliance of the moon during the coming two weeks would interfere with amateur observation.

During the first days of August, according to Harvard computations, the comet should be seen at about 7 or 8 p. m. (St. Louis time), between the North Star, or Pole Star, and the horizon. It will still be faint, astronomers said, but should increase in brightness until Aug. 10, when it reaches third magnitude. It will appear as a somewhat hazy star. At that time it will be near the second star in the handle of the Big Dipper.

The comet, discovered nearly two weeks ago by Dr. P. Finsler, a Swiss astronomer, now has developed a tail half a degree in length, Dr. Whipple said. The tail, however, is long and slender, he said, and may not become visible to the observer without a telescope because the comet itself never will become very bright.

Definite computations of the orbit have not yet become possible, but, Dr. Whipple said, it appears that the comet swings about the sun in a great ellipse, probably returning only at intervals of hundreds of years. On this visit astronomers expect it to approach about half as close to the earth as the sun, probably passing within 50,000,000 miles.

ORTHODOX CHURCH OPPOSES YUGOSLAV-VATICAN PACT

Holy Synod Decrees Punishment for Members Who Support Concordat in Parliament.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 16.—Tension between the Serbian Orthodox and Catholic churches in Yugoslavia increased today as a result of the concordat between Yugoslavia and the Vatican.

The Orthodox Holy Synod decreed punishment for every member of its church who voted for the concordat now before Parliament for ratification.

Ratification by Parliament was delayed because the Serbian Church authorities maintained it "granted unequally high power to the Catholic Church in the field of education and politics."

Premier Milan Stoyadinovitch, however, told the Chamber of Deputies recently that the concordat was "a great contribution toward religious equality and peace in the country."

The chamber's Judicial Committee yesterday approved the bill for ratification.

BRAZIL TO BUY GOLD FROM UNITED STATES

Under Agreement Purchases Will Be Used to Stabilize Currency.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16. — The United States Treasury brought Brazil yesterday into the growing group of nations with which it has made curency stabilizing agreements.

A new accord, announced by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Arthur de Souza Costa, Brazilian Finance Minister, provides that the United States shall sell up to $60,000,000 in gold to the South American republic.

The agreement, following by less than a week a similar understanding with China, provides that Brazil shall use gold acquired here for currency stabilization purposes.

Payment in Dollars.

The gold will be paid for with American dollars, acquired by Brazil in foreign exchange markets or through trade operations. The metal, which will come from the Treasury's $12,400,000,000 store, will be left in this country. Against it, the Treasury may advance dollars to Brazil for stabilizing operations.

Brazilian spokesmen said the agreement was intended to brake fluctuations between their milreis, now quoted at about 6.6 cents, and the United States dollar.

Treasury authorities said the two currencies would not be linked rigidly.

Federal Reserve Board reports show that Brazilian gold reserves now total less than $50,000,000.

The agreement provides that the Treasury shall render any technical assistance Brazil may request in establishing a new central reserve bank.

The accord increases to seven the list of nations with which the Treasury has currency understandings. Besides China, the others are Great Britain and France, original adherents to the tri-Power monetary pact last fall, and Belgium, Switzerland, and the Netherlands.

Trade Pact Amendments.

Souza Costa and Secretary of State Hull also made public an agreement to bulwark the Brazilian-American trade treaty with "minor complementary measures."

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Notes on Hogs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I UNDERSTAND that several Congressmen got a bad case of chiggers at that Jefferson Island jamboree. I have often wondered what on earth was eating 'em and now we know. At any rate, some of them are still scratching their heads, undecided how to vote on the court-packing issue, free beer and barbecue notwithstanding. And speaking of barbecue, it is now becoming painfully apparent that Jim (It's-in-the-Bag) Farley used poor culinary strategy in having such lavish portions of the porcine delicacy served gratis at the island fiesta. The bleaching bones of the piece de resistance will prove to be the bones of contention to the harassed taxpayers, inasmuch as they will be reminded that they're paying stratosphere prices for grunt venison.

For the unearthly crowding going on around the old trough isn't being done by any little piggies, which were liquidated, to use a Sovietism, back in 1933, so that now the species has become almost extinct and meat is being imported from Europe. Chicago is no longer hog butcher to the world, as Carl Sandburg once sang on his rusty mandolin.

The hog runs are as empty as a ball park on Monday. Fancy prices are being offered for porkers. But the porkers exist in fancy only. Olfactorily, Packingtown now is almost like any other community, so curtailed have become its activities, what with the hog population as depleted as the Treasury. Too many pens are empty today because the Government emptied too many pens signing those checks back in 1933.

BEDLAMUS.

Those Soft Muny Opera Cushions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT's my privilege and pleasure to attend the Municipal Opera practically each week, and I want to add a word of commendation for the comfortable chair cushions that are supplied at such a nominal charge. The cushions this year are new and afford much comfort in the enjoyment of the wonderful productions at this theater.

Recently some friends were here to attend a ball game one Sunday afternoon, and the difference between the cushions at the ball park and at the Muny Theater is so obvious these friends wondered why the ball park owners did not supply the same kind as at the theater.

A Criticism of the President.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN 1932, and again in 1936, farmers, business men, laborers, financiers, the common people, in fact, all classes, were applauding and praising President Roosevelt. Scarcely a discordant voice could be heard in the land. Even his opponents, though they had their misgivings, were willing to give him the benefit of the doubt. How terrifically all this has changed!

Now, in all walks of life, we hear him and his many foolish and unwise actions criticised and denounced in terms most bitter.

His court bill, his extravagances, his dictatorial policies, his unbusiness-like schemes, his lack of courage in political and labor wars, his attitude on interference with the mail and his flagrant repudiation of his party platform, render his administration subject to criticism.

His Vice-President has turned his back on him and gone home in disgust. The really great leaders of his party, including able members of the Judiciary Committee, and scores and scores of others are sick at heart at his now apparent dismal failure.

A Toast to the Milles Statue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR cartoon and editorial razzing the chairman of the Municipal Art Commission of St. Louis delighted me no end. I have made a study of sculpture for seven years and have found St. Louis most lacking in stimulation, due to a public lassitude concerning art matters, especially sculpture.

Here's to the Milles fountain—may St. Louis have the good fortune to have it. It would stimulate appreciation for really good art.

ELLA JENS.

Complains of Gas Bill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

EVIDENTLY the Laclede Gas Light Co. has a new scheme.

My bills, April 7 to May 6 and May 6 to June 14, recorded the same amount of gas used for each month, but for the later period I was charged a 15 per cent increase.

Laclede's explanation for the increase was I did use the same amount of gas, but over a longer period; one and one-third month, so their bill read.

Who created this longer period but they themselves? And does a gas meter register at just what part of a period gas is used, whether during a regular month or after?

My premises were available for meter reading at any time during the month in question.

I bitterly resent this unjust practice and think the company would do well to include this with the others they contemplate adjusting and eliminating.

DOWN WITH THE LABOR RACKETEER!

Labor unions, like Caesar's wife, must be above suspicion. When they begin admitting known criminals to their ranks and into union offices, they damage the whole labor movement. With gangsters in executive and organizing positions, gangster methods come into use. The result: public sympathy is alienated, and the cause of obtaining justice for the worker is acutely endangered.

That a sweeping clean-up in St. Louis organizations is mandatory has been made plain by the facts brought out in the murder of John J. (Pudgie) Dunn and its aftermath. Dunn had served prison terms in Illinois and Michigan for two murders; he was last employed as a "bouncer" at an East St. Louis gambling resort. In his pockets, after he was shot to death early Wednesday at the entrance of the apartment building where he lived, were found credentials designating him as a delegate to the Central Trades and Labor Union from the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Local Union. He also carried a card naming him as a union organizer.

The police round-up of suspects disclosed a group of other unsavory characters with labor union connections. Among those under questioning were:

John R. (Bab) Moran, under indictment in the murder of John C. Johnson, Negro State's witness in the Kelley kidnaping case; until recently manager of the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union, and the man who hired Dunn as an organizer at $50 a week.

Sylvester (Babe) Baldwin, who has served a reformatory sentence for burglary and a prison term for a holdup and who was tried for the murder of a bank cashier; now an organizer for the Bartenders' Union.

Joe Costello, with a record of many arrests, once charged with robbery and murder in St. Clair County; an organizer for the Waiters' Union until his ouster this week.

Harvey Beavers and Rolla (Blackie) Dean, ex-convicts, who recently, according to police, tried to get jobs with the Gasoline Workers' Union.

Are men of this stripe to have a guiding hand in the labor movement? If they are, loss of public confidence in the integrity of the movement will inevitably follow.

The opportunities for racketeers if they can worm their way into the ranks of labor are tempting. There are not only handsome salaries, in many instances, but access to union treasuries and easy chances for shakedowns. Union members, non-members and employers are all prey for this shady gentry. They scorn the legitimate methods of negotiation and use of economic weapons. Instead, they resort to intimidation, to beatings and bombings. They care nothing about the welfare of labor; they seek only to line their own pockets.

There are honest labor leaders in abundance, to be sure, but, as the old proverb has it, one rotten apple will spoil the whole barrel. Nothing so quickly alienates public sympathy for labor as resort to gangster tactics, just as the use of such tactics by employers brings them into disrepute. The labor thug is a despicable form of animal, to be shunned just as rigorously by the worker as by the employer. It is a dangerous symptom when the rogues' gallery gets into union headquarters.

In the present case, the Miscellaneous Hotel Workers' Union has taken prompt steps to clean house. Miss Kitty Amsler, international union representative, has acted on instructions from headquarters and declared all offices vacant, pending an election. This is commendable, but it is belated action. Efforts of gangsters to "muscle in" need to be stopped at the outset.

The interests of labor require a thorough purge of all suspected labor units in St. Louis—and all over the nation. Rooting out the gangsters and keeping them out will mean the virtual end of bombing, window-smashing and assaults in labor disputes. It will mean that the law-abiding rank and file get full value for their dues. It will mean a fairer hearing of workers' demands by employers, many of whom have had good reason to doubt the honesty of labor delegates. It will mean new confidence by the public, and a stronger workers' movement with a greater record of achievement.

INDORSED BY BOTH PARTIES.

St. Louis County's proposed $800,000 bond issue, to be voted on Aug. 17, has received the approval of a joint meeting of members of the Republican and Democratic County Central Committees.

As we pointed out a few days ago, the bond issue, designed to pay off old debts and prepare the way for efficient handling of the county's affairs in the future, is purely a business proposition.

Indorsement by both parties makes this fact abundantly clear.

OUR OWN AFFAIR.

Another use has been discovered for W P A men—their employment as traffic guides in large cities. It is reported that Chicago has 5000 such guides. Now St. Louis wants some of the gravy and is asking Harry Hopkins to let us have 1000 men at a total cost of $355,200. It is explained that the guides will have no power to make arrests, but, by aiding pedestrians at crosswalks near schools, playgrounds, churches, etc., will help to reduce traffic accidents.

What in the world has the Federal Government got to do with helping people to cross city streets? If such assistance is needed, it is up to the city to provide the money and the men. Of course, the Federal Government, in providing W P A funds for all kinds of purely municipal projects, such as building sewers, has set a precedent which city officials are eager to capitalize, since it helps them make a better financial showing from local tax money.

There is a limit to this sort of thing, however, and we should say this traffic guide business is it. Has the idea taken root that the money for W P A employes is magically produced at Washington? Apparently so. For often the persons who carp at mounting Federal expenditures are the same ones who cry the loudest for Government money for local projects.

Regulating the traffic of St. Louis is the city's own affair and the cost of it should come from the proceeds of local taxes.

TAXES ON TAXES.

When a man buys a 15-cent package of cigarettes in Missouri, he pays the 6-cent excise tax levied by the Federal Government. He also pays a 2 per cent sales tax, or 3 mills, to the State Government. That is, in the second tax he is compelled to pay not only on the real cost of the cigarettes, but also on the tax paid to the Federal Government. The same is true of motor oil, since State Auditor Smith holds that the 2 per cent sales tax should be computed on the total selling price, including any excise levied by the Federal Government on the manufacturing of the product. Theoretically, the manufacturer pays the first tax, but actually it is passed on to the consumer.

Levying sales taxes upon other taxes is, we should say, about the last word in piling it on the consumer.

A NEW CHINA FACES JAPAN.

Continued fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops near Peiping, with both sides now sending in reinforcements, makes it possible that the long-awaited military showdown between the two nations is imminent. Japan's appetite for dominance of all Eastern Asia is unsatiated, and this moment may have been chosen, before Chinese militarization is complete and while troubles beset the Russian Army, to attempt pushing the conquest further.

If so, however, this will prove to be the most difficult step in Japan's long course of aggression, which ranges back to 1894. China is more effectively united economically, in morale and in military preparation than ever before in modern history. The meek submission of former tests at arms will not be repeated.

It is apparent that the Japanese people are not going to war on their own volition, if it is to be war, but are being pushed. The military clique, not the civil Government, has charge of the situation. The crisis arose, not after negotiations and ultimatums between the two capitals, but as the result of a stroke by Generals in the field. It may well be a desperate gesture by the militarists in the face of growing opposition at home to their aggressive course. The last election, followed by the forcing out of Hayashi's reactionary Cabinet, showed that popular support of military expansion is of the weakest.

China, on the other hand, is rapidly becoming a nation solidly dedicated to fierce resistance against the invader. Chiang Kai-shek has strengthened and united his people. He has not only ended his long war against the Chinese Communists, but has acceded to their demands for a stronger stand against Japan. An army estimated as large as 2,000,000 soldiers is available for the nation's defense, with the world's greatest source of manpower to draw upon.

Early victories in a war may go to Japan, but the Chinese are a patient and persistent people. The Dragon, roused at last from his long slumbers, would be a formidable opponent. Perhaps pressure at home will serve to dissuade the Japanese military from a reckless adventure that could only reduce the nation's slender resources to bankruptcy, no matter what the fortunes of war.

75 PER CENT OFF, BUT FEW TAKERS.

Don't St. Louisans know a good bargain when they see it? The question is prompted by the fact that, although 75 per cent of penalties is now being waived, only $35,735 in delinquent taxes has been paid since July 1. This is the biggest bargain that tax debtors can expect to get, since the period for full waiver of penalties has expired. Almost $4,000,000 was collected while that offer was in effect, but about $11,000,000 remains outstanding. Will the persons who owe it miss their opportunity to clean the slate at a great saving?

If they don't take advantage of the offer, they or their heirs will ultimately have to pay anyway or lose the property. And if the money doesn't come in faster, there is a good chance that the four nuisance taxes voted by the Board of Aldermen, held up during the back-tax campaign, will be put into effect. It seems incredible that neither the inducement nor the threat has brought in more persons to take advantage of the City Hall's bargain offer of 75 per cent off.

CONGRESS MOVES BACKWARD.

The compromise farm tenancy bill, sent to the President by the Senate yesterday, fails to include a provision that all employes of the proposed agency be placed under civil service, despite Mr. Roosevelt's reiterated recommendations for broadening the merit system's application in the Federal Government. Furthermore, both parties in the last campaign pledged extension of civil service.

This particular omission, in defiance of presidential urging, party pledges and public opinion, is quite in keeping with the attitude Congress has taken toward the merit system at the present session. The civil service provision was omitted from the recently signed Independent Offices Appropriation Act. Patronage appointments of civilian employes of the C C C are continued. The railroad retirement agency does not come under civil service. Most amazing of all is the fact that the pending reorganization bill, widely touted as designed to bring new order and efficiency into the Federal establishment, actually broadens the right of presidential appointment rather than moving to "extend the merit system upward, outward and downward," as Mr. Roosevelt urged in his message of last January.

While Congress has been moving backward in this respect, the League of Women Voters points out, the much-criticised state Legislatures have been making progress. In contrast with Federal inactivity, four states (Arkansas, Connecticut, Maine and Tennessee) have adopted new merit system laws within a year. In nine states already having such systems, legislation to extend them was passed. Fifteen other states considered their adoption, and the legislation was passed by one house of the Legislature in eight of these.

The state Legislatures are notorious for their backwardness and unresponsiveness to public opinion. When they are found to rank ahead of Congress in so vital a cause as rooting out the spoils system, it is a drastic indictment of shiftless law-making at Washington.

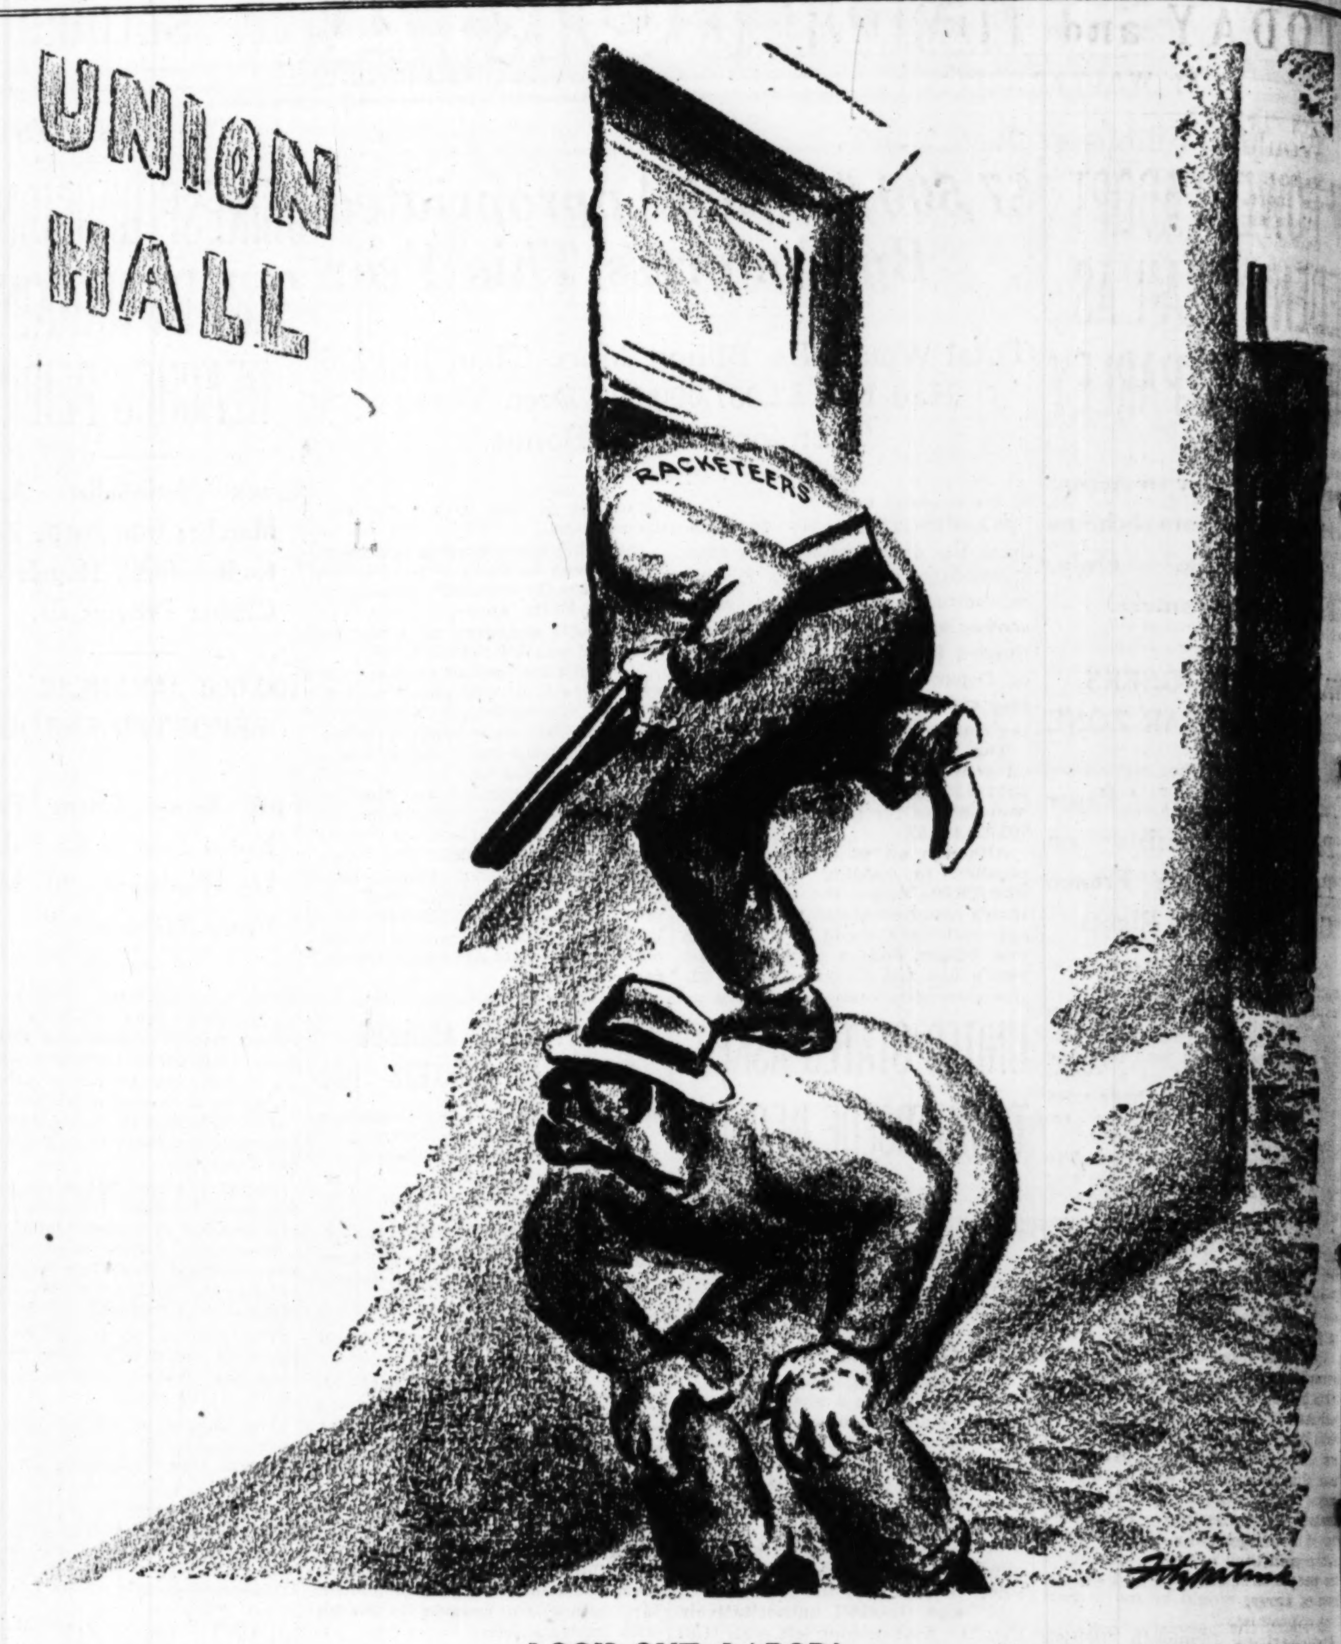
A SENATOR IS MARKED FOR PUNISHMENT.

From a talk which Gov. Townsend of Indiana had with reporters at Washington yesterday, it appears that the Indiana State Democratic organization, of which the Governor is the head, has its knife out for Senator Van Nuys because of his opposition to the court-packing plan. The Governor indicated, in the language of the news dispatches, that the organization would not "forgive" Senator Van Nuys, but would withhold its support when he comes up for renomination next year.

This is the frankest avowal we have heard, from a responsible political source, of an intention on the part of a Democratic organization to punish a Democratic Senator for refusing to scrap his convictions against the packing scheme and go along with the President.

What price the Democratic party if reprisals of this character become the rule?



LOOK OUT, LABOR!

Labor's Responsibility

Good record of older unions offers lesson to newer ones against a mushroom growth without seasoned leaders to hold undisciplined ranks to their contracts, says Pennsylvania paper; Railroad Brotherhoods and printing trade groups are cited as examples in which sound expansion has made for peaceful relations with employer.

From the Pittsburgh Press.

LABOR, the newspaper of the Standard Railroad Brotherhoods, angrily answers charges about the "irresponsibility" of organized labor by declaring:

"The regular labor movement is about the most responsible institution in this country. Take the 21 Standard Railroad Labor Organizations, as an example. Some of them have been doing business with the carriers for between 50 and 60 years.

"In all that time, not one of them has violated an agreement entered into with its employers, and not one of them has been convicted of violating a state or Federal law.

"Can any considerable group in the business world equal that record? Why, Uncle Sam maintains one agency here in Washington—and it's a big agency—which devotes all its time to 'policing industry.' That's the Federal Trade Commission, and the members will tell you that even when they work overtime, they are unable to handle the cases pouring in on them, involving all kinds of corrupt and criminal practices by business men and business organizations.

"In addition, many other Government agencies, to say nothing of the courts and the Department of Justice, devote much of their time to tracking down dishonest business."

We are glad to reprint these statements from Labor because they are true—both as regards what is said about the railroad unions and what is said about dishonesty in business.

In the outcry caused by sit-down strikes, sympathetic strikes, jurisdictional strikes and violations of contracts, it is well to remember that the conditions which they reveal do not apply to all organized labor. It is also well to remember that business shouldn't get too self-righteous, because it has had its full quota of disturbers and contract-breakers and law violators.

The Railroad Brotherhoods have long enjoyed the respect of business men and the public at large. And so have many other unions.

In our own business—publishing—the printing trades unions have had a close relationship with employers for about as long a time as the Railroad Brotherhoods, and the principal crafts in this industry have established an enviable record for fair dealing. True, there have been some illegal strikes and unpleasant incidents—but in such cases contract obligations have usually been promptly recognized and strictly upheld by the international organizations of the unions, even though occasionally flouted by local hot-heads.

There are many other unions' with good records. And it is well, in a time like this, to separate the sheep from the goats, to guard against condemning a class because of the derelictions of a part of it.

Just as the extremists in business—the minority of chiselers who run sweatshops, lie in their advertisements, break contracts and violate the law—have been a tremendous embarrassment to the majority of honest business men, so are extremists in labor today menacing the entire union movement.

Two things have lately been happening, we believe, which are responsible for much anti-union sentiment. Some of the mushroom unions of the past few years have developed so rapidly that they have got ahead of the supply of experienced and capable leaders available for the job of directing them.

Lacking union experience, inflamed by abuses to which their members have been subjected, without the help of an adequate number of trained organizers, and yielding to the very human impulse to grow overconfident because of early successes, new organizations have in some instances been running wild—to the great embarrassment of their older and more capable brethren.

* * *

Then, too, some of the older unions have yielded to the promises and lures of young, impatient rank-and-filers, and have turned out old and experienced officers in favor of youngsters who promised to get the millennium by fast and furious action. These new administrations, lacking training and heedless of the lessons learned by their former leaders through years of struggle, have often led old organizations into trouble.

It is extremists—chiefly in new unions, but sometimes in old ones—who lately have been bringing embarrassment to organized labor. In the same way, extremists have long brought embarrassment to business.

It would be a tragedy were responsible bodies like the railroad unions, the printing crafts and other old, established labor bodies to suffer from hostility aroused by a portion of the labor movement. Incidentally, it is significant that the railroads have long practiced collective bargaining. So has the publishing industry. So have many other industries in which the greatest union responsibility exists—a fact which indicates that those business men most willing to deal with organized labor have the least complaint about "irresponsibility."

A BILLION A YEAR FOR SPOILS.

From Forbes Magazine.

THE spoils system in government costs the taxpayer an estimated one billion dollars a year. Unnecessary jobs, padded payrolls, waste due to inefficient and extravagant jobholders each year amount to more than the entire cost of the army and navy for 1936. It is more than the estimated total of all Federal income taxes to be collected this year.

Government—Federal, state, local—is the largest employer in the world. It has the largest payroll in the world. It is the largest of all businesses. But it is not run by business methods!

There are 931,000 employes in the Federal Government, but only 60.5 per cent are under the merit system. Only six of the 48 states have a merit system worthy of the name. Only 350 of the 2500 cities of 20,000 population and over have any kind of merit system.

"To the victor belong the spoils." The vast majority of these government jobholders are "political spoilsmen." They are jobholders because they support the winning party. They get the political plums, but they do not serve the country efficiently.

How can we get efficient, responsible government employes? The merit system is the only answer. To the victor do not belong the spoils. To the victor belongs the responsibility of good government.

Splitting the Party

From the Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News.

ADMINISTRATION leaders are, it seems, agreed that the Supreme Court reform shall be demanded as an act of loyalty to the party. Failure to vote this desire of the President, they assert, will split the party, and the blame for the schism will rest squarely upon the shoulders of those who refused to take orders.

In other words, to be a Democrat now means that one subordinates his views of what is constitutional or even what is best for the nation to those of the titular leader and those whose advice he is accepting for the nonce.

If that course is persisted in, the party will be split, all right. Indeed, it looks rather riven already. Some of the statesmen who oppose the Supreme Court reform have gone too far to come back. Perhaps the President has, too. But it has not yet been determined whose limb will be sawed off first.

There were (or were there?) certain Democratic fundamentals before Woodrow Wilson or Franklin D. Roosevelt came along. In fact, fundamentals were about the sum total of Democratic possessions. Being a Democrat was a simple matter so long as one was in the minority and had to accept no responsibility for the country's management. It is more difficult now that differing with the administration is considered blasphemy instead of patriotism.

But there is some reason to doubt whether those at present in charge of the party are Democrats. We are acquainted with several old-liners who insist that the New Dealers are radicals who took the advantage of the conservative South in one of its weakest moments and that the time for that recurrence to fundamental principles aforetime deemed so desirable is close upon us.

ST. LOUIS FEARS A FILM.

From the Des Moines Tribune.

IT was the St. Louis Post-Dispatch which first revealed in its news columns the story told on the moving-picture screen by news reels filmed during the Memorial day battle between police and strikers at a Chicago steel mill. Vivid reporting of the incidents in that news drama was probably read by every St. Louis citizen interested in the event.

Subsequently, the films themselves, which had first been withheld from theater exhibition by their owners, were released for general distribution.

The Post-Dispatch, and probably other St. Louis newspapers, as did the Register and Tribune and newspapers throughout the country, published photographic "stills" developed from the films, and again they had wide circulation.

Yet St. Louis theater-goers are not to be given an opportunity to witness a showing in that city of the action pictures themselves. Last week they had to cross the Mississippi River to Belleville, Ill., to see them.

The ban on public exhibition was first decreed by the Paramount company. Later it was lifted. There is no municipal or official prohibition against them now in St. Louis. Local theater managers there have rejected them.

Des Moines saw the films without any outbreak of violent reaction, whatever the impression may have been upon individual theater patrons. The St. Louis suppression is obviously poor showmanship, poor business and not even good sociology.

SENATOR ROBINSON'S friends were more numerous than his partisan supporters. For he had the capacity, so essential to the working of representative government, to be a stanch partisan without injecting into his political struggles the poison of hatred and irreconcilability. He fought cleanly, and he passes away leaving a multitude of opponents who are still his friends.

It is a tragic pity that he had to die when he did, as the leader of a cause that he would never have espoused on his own personal convictions alone. No doubt he was doing his duty as he saw it. And though the last acts of his life are associated with a cause that is discredited, he will be remembered for the essential honesty and good will which marked his leadership.

A commentator who supports the judiciary bill said the other day that "the filibuster is the negation of democracy." His theory is that 51 per cent of any quorum is entitled at any time to override the other 49 per cent. That is not my conception of democracy, and I am prepared to argue that, given the circumstances surrounding the judiciary bill, a filibuster will be fully justified if it is necessary to prevent enactment of the bill at this session of Congress.

The American conception of democracy is not, as some few seem to think, based on the rule of an arithmetical majority. The inner principle of the American Constitution is derived from the conviction of the Founding Fathers that in great matters, the true majority must be much greater than a bare majority, and that convinced minorities must not be easily overridden. Thus the President may veto the acts of a bare majority of both houses, and only a two-thirds vote can prevail against his veto. I have yet to hear a New Dealer say that the veto power of one man is the negation of democracy.

The legislative branch of the Government is not designed to establish the rule of arithmetical majorities. For the Senators represent very unequal numbers of voters. I have heard no argument that this is the negation of democracy. The Senate cannot ratify treaties by an arithmetical majority. The Congress cannot even submit constitutional amendments to the people unless two-thirds of both houses agree.

In short, the pervasive principle of American democracy is not the sovereignty of any transient 51 per cent. Its principle is government by consent of the preponderant mass of the people, and the whole system is designed to make it as certain as anything can be made in public life that the final decision in great matters shall be that, not of a passing and excited majority, but of a large, informed and considered majority.

Would a Filibuster Be Undemocratic?

SENATOR ROBINSON'S friends were more numerous than his partisan supporters. For he had the capacity, so essential to the working of representative government, to be a stanch partisan without injecting into his political struggles the poison of hatred and irreconcilability. He fought cleanly, and he passes away leaving a multitude of opponents who are still his friends.

His theory is that 51 per cent of any quorum is entitled at any time to override the other 49 per cent. That is not my conception of democracy, and I am prepared to argue that, given the circumstances surrounding the judiciary bill, a filibuster will be fully justified if it is necessary to prevent enactment of the bill at this session of Congress.

The American conception of democracy is not, as some few seem to think, based on the rule of an arithmetical majority. The inner principle of the American Constitution is derived from the conviction of the Founding Fathers that in great matters, the true majority must be much greater than a bare majority, and that convinced minorities must not be easily overridden. Thus the President may veto the acts of a bare majority of both houses, and only a two-thirds vote can prevail against his veto. I have yet to hear a New Dealer say that the veto power of one man is the negation of democracy.

The legislative branch of the Government is not designed to establish the rule of arithmetical majorities. For the Senators represent very unequal numbers of voters. I have heard no argument that this is the negation of democracy. The Senate cannot ratify treaties by an arithmetical majority. The Congress cannot even submit constitutional amendments to the people unless two-thirds of both houses agree.

In short, the pervasive principle of American democracy is not the sovereignty of any transient 51 per cent. Its principle is government by consent of the preponderant mass of the people, and the whole system is designed to make it as certain as anything can be made in public life that the final decision in great matters shall be that, not of a passing and excited majority, but of a large, informed and considered majority.

In the Senate today, out of 96 members, there are at least 40 who are deeply opposed to the judiciary bill. There are no more than 40 who have declared themselves in favor of it, and it is common and indubitable knowledge that a fair number of this 40 are for it only because of partisan loyalty. It is no less evident to all competent observers that the leaders of the opposition are moved by a deep conviction whereas the advocates, with astonishingly few exceptions, have no heart for the work they are doing.

There remains a group of uncommitted Senators. One of them, Senator Robert Wagner of New York, is particularly interesting and significant. Senator Wagner has been a Judge. So there can be no doubt of his capacity to understand the bill. He is a fervent New Dealer, a most effective supporter of the President. Five months have passed since the judiciary bill was proposed. Yet Senator Wagner has not yet declared his position. What can this mean except that he is torn between dislike of the measure and loyalty to the administration?

Yet the New Dealers think they are acting with loyalty to the spirit of democracy when, by conscripting the votes of reluctant Senators like Mr. Wagner, they propose to override the passionate convictions of 40 Senators. My view is that the true defenders of democracy are the Senators who wish to prevent such an insincere vote, who ask that the bill be re-committed to the committee and that the decision be postponed until the people have had a chance to clarify their will on this controversial issue.

I am quite prepared to admit that there are emergencies when decisions must be made promptly and reluctant minorities must be overridden. Such an emergency existed in 1933, and I was one of those who held then that the President must exercise extraordinary powers. But no honest man can say that there exists a judicial crisis which calls for summary action at this time. No honest man can say that the will of the people is being thwarted if, on an issue on which the people are at least evenly divided, time is taken to find out what the people really want.

On the contrary, to obstruct a decision by a bare majority of unconvinced and reluctant Senators is to vindicate the right of the people to make great decisions deliberately. A filibuster under these circumstances is the use of a power carefully reserved for the protection of minorities and of majorities alike against haste or dictation. The Senate has preserved the right to filibuster because that right is one of the essential safeguards of its existence as a truly deliberative assembly.

Why is it that, under the rules of the Senate, debate cannot be shut off except by cloture which requires a vote of two-thirds? Because the Senate has recognized that on great issues where there is a substantial minority in opposition, it is not consistent with the American idea of government by consent of the governed to force decisions by a bare 51 per cent of a quorum. If the administration wants to shut off debate and force a vote, let it produce 64 Senators who will vote for cloture.

* * *

That rule of the Senate, maintained to prevent the dictation of transient majorities, is a true reflection of the spirit of democracy as we have known it in this country. No man need have the slightest doubt that in defying the dictation of a transient, unconvinced, reluctant arithmetical majority, he is representing the true genius of American institutions.

OPINION AGAINST WAGE RULE IN SCHOOL BIDS

Board's Attorney Thinks Clause in Coal Contracts Would Be Invalid.

A requirement that contractors' employes engaged in production, transportation and delivery of coal for the Board of Education shall be paid standard prevailing wages for their work would be invalid, in the opinion of Emmet T. Carter, attorney for the board.

The request for his opinion arose in the discussion of the recent annual coal contracts occasioned by the complaint of one board member, Mark D. Eagleton, that some bidders paid "starvation wages" to their haulers bringing coal from Illinois mines.

The attorney's finding may have a broader effect, however, in view of the current consideration by the board of the possibility of enforcing labor standards in its various contracts for supplies.

Committee to Make Study.

Another board member, Mrs. Haymer Lowenhaupt, recently wrote President Francis C. Sullivan, requesting appointment of a committee to consider whether it was desirable and expedient for the board to enforce labor standards, and, if so, whether definite standards could be established or the right merely reserved to reject bids when the board considered working conditions unsatisfactory.

She presented a motion for creation of the committee last Tuesday, after Carter's opinion had been rendered. The motion, adopted unanimously, called on the committee only to work out means for rejection of bids where working conditions did not meet satisfactory standards. She was made chairman of the committee, which may not meet for a time, as she has gone to California for six weeks.

Supreme Court Wage Ruling.

Carter, in his opinion, called attention to the State law requiring the board to award all contracts to the lowest responsible bidders and to a Supreme Court decision in 1935 knocking out a St. Louis ordinance which sought to prescribe minimum wages to be paid under public works contracts.

In that case, the Supreme Court said: "Our courts hold in general that where, in the letting of contracts for public work, restrictions or conditions are imposed upon bidders which tend to increase the cost of the work, such conditions and restrictions are violative of charter provisions requiring that the contract for the work be let to the lowest responsible bidder. . . . Since the ordinance in question requires all bidders for public work to pay a stipulated minimum wage to their employes, it is clear that the ordinance imposes a limitation other than responsibility upon all bidders, and hence the free competition prescribed by the charter is excluded and stifled."

The Supreme Court dealt with the city's contention that it was empowered to make certain specifications, although they might exclude competition and increase costs, by saying that principle could not be applied in the case of the wage requirement. The principle, the Court added, lent no support of the minimum wage rule and, "there is no essential or necessary connection between the hourly wages paid by a contractor and the intrinsic quality and character of work done."

While Carter did not wish to elaborate on his opinion, it was apparent that this court decision was of broad application. Whether the proposal to reject bids because of unsatisfactory labor conditions would furnish a way around the ruling doubtless would require further interpretation by the courts.

JEFFERSON MEMORIAL MUSEUM RECEIVES CIVIL WAR SABER

A highly decorated dress sabre used during the Civil War by a Missouri Captain attached to the personal staff of Gen. J. C. Fremont has been presented to the Jefferson Memorial Museum, officers of the Missouri Historical Society announced today.

The saber originally belonged to Capt. Aug. H. Borchert, who received it from fellow officers of Company I in the First Regiment of the Missouri Mounted Volunteers. The scabbard is banded with gold and the hilt is surmounted with a setting of garnets. On the blade Capt. Borchert's Civil War associates had inscribed the Latin motto, "Semper Paratus"—"Always Ready."

R. W. Borchert, 5819 Cates avenue, a nephew of Capt. Borchert, who presented the sword to the museum, explained that his uncle left his home in Waterloo, Ill., in 1861 to join Gen. Fremont's staff. The weapon will be placed on display in the sword room of the Jefferson Memorial.

ANTI-STRIKE MEETING CRITICISES OFFICIALS

Johnstown Resolution Says Some in 'High Places' Refuse to Protect Workers.

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 16.—A national conference of citizens' committees, in a resolution adopted yesterday, charged that "certain public officials in high places" had refused to protect American citizens in their right to work.

Two hundred ministers, college professors and business men attending the convention from 70 communities pledged themselves to "restore and protect those constitutional rights that have been taken from citizens by unworthy officials."

The delegates met at the call of the Johnstown Citizens' Committee, which directed a back-to-work movement after a strike was called at the Cambria works of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

In the resolution, adopted after stormy debate, the conference deplored violence in strikes and advocated equal legal responsibility for labor unions and employers.

"We believe it the duty of the Government to guarantee, by the impartial enforcement of the law, the right of every citizen to work or strike, as he may choose, and to join or abstain from joining any labor organization," said the resolution. "We will oppose activities which are un-American, communistic and destructive to the welfare of our nation."

Parts of the resolution charging public officials with failure to protect workers aroused protests from several delegates.

George Fay, a member of the American Legion post at Altoona, Pa., stood up and declared: "I couldn't stay with an organization which adopted anything like that."

Earlier, J. G. Lester of Massillon, O., was cheered when he said:

"The citizens' groups assembled here should tender a vote of thanks to Tom Girdler for smoking out the Communistic activities brought on by Lewis (Chairman John L. Lewis of the C I O), Secretary Perkins and Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Future activities of the conference will be directed by a five-man committee scheduled to meet July 23 in New York.

Members are the Rev. John M. Stanton of Johnstown, chairman; W. L. Woodward, retired engineer, South Yarmouth, Mass.; Ormsby McHarg, New York; the Rev. Rembert Gilman Smith, Afton, Ok., who described himself as founder of the Methodist League Against Communism, and Donald Kirkley, editor of the National Farm News, Washington, D. C.

WILLIAM ANDERSON'S TERM EXTENDED 5 YEARS BY UNION

Members Vote 175 to 8 for Business Agent, Acquitted June 3 of P W A Fraud Charge.

Members of Operative and Cement Finishers Union No. 3 last night voted to extend for five years the term of its business agent, William Anderson, one of four labor leaders, who, with five plastering contractors, were acquitted June 3 in Federal Court of a charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States on P W A contracts. The extension was voted at a meeting in Plasterers' Hall, Marcus and Easton avenues, and was termed a "vote of confidence."

The action is tantamount to re-election in advance of expiration of Anderson's present term, which has two years yet to run. The vote was 175 to 8. Anderson and his fellow defendants in Federal Court were charged with combining to control the plastering industry here and increase prices by coercive methods.

PROTECTIVE ZONE SET UP IN BROOKLYN SHIPYARD STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Police established a two-mile protective zone along the month-old Brooklyn shipyard strike front today to maintain order at the Robins Drydock & Repair Co.

Company officials said 1300 men out of the normally employed 1700 went to work on the 7 a. m. shift. Police estimated the number at 1000, with about 200 pickets lining the route. Jeers and catcalls greeted non-strikers as they entered the company gates, but there was no recorded instance of violence. Yesterday three workmen were stoned.

Quiet prevailed at the three other strike-bound shipyards in the Brooklyn area—the Crane, Morse and Wheeler companies, while a move for peace went forward at the nearby Staten Island plant of United Shipyards at Mariners' Harbor. Charles Honey, union official, said he had arranged a conference for today with Joseph Powell, president of United.

of the truce was removal of the Thirty-seventh Division, commanded by Gen. Feng Chih-an, southward to Paoting, 75 miles away on the strategic railway to Hankow.

The bridge area southwest of Peiping where the Thirty-seventh clashed with the Japanese would be garrisoned by a "peace preservation corps" and the strategic barracks at Nanyuan, just south of Peiping, would be taken over by units of the Twenty-ninth army which are commanded by Mayor Chang Tse-chung of Tientsin. These units are considered pro-Japanese.

Heavy reinforcements for the Japanese positions continued moving into the area. Foreign military observers considered the operations the prelude to an attempt to seize possession of Tientsin and Peiping and the strategic railway that links the two principal North China cities.

Comparative Strength.

Japan was understood to have the equivalent of a war strength division in the Peiping-Tientsin area—a force of some 15,000. About 3000 of these were already operating from a new base at Fengtai, five miles southwest of Peiping. Another 3500 were said to be marching with full field equipment to reinforce the army at the front. Chinese troops were placed at 12,000. The bulk of the Twenty-ninth army is in South Hopeh.

Under cover of darkness last night the Japanese troops from Tientsin were brought up in all available trucks. The overflow regiments marched.

Other units, including heavy artillery, were started up the Hai River into the Grand Canal towards Tung-chow on lighters. It was the first movement of troops to that area indicating possible operations east of Peiping.

100,000 Japanese Troops Said to Be En Route to China.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, July 16.—A Chinese Government spokesman declared today the Government had "unimpeachable information" that five Japanese divisions, "totaling 100,000 men," are now en route to China.

This force, the spokesman said, is being carried aboard 31 transports and merchant vessels. Most of it will be landed in North China. The rest, the spokesman declared, will be landed in Korea "to await developments."

Japanese Get Reports of Chinese Advance on Peiping.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 16.—The Japanese War Office, mobilizing for war on a national scale, announced today it had received reports that the main forces of the Chinese Army, were advancing on both Peiping and Tientsin to support the Twenty-ninth Route Army.

The War Office estimated that more than 30 divisions—350,000 troops—were concentrated on the border of Shansi Province just south of Hopeh Province.

Japan began calling reserves to the colors. Many of them were employes of American firms in Japan. Police reserves were called out and the guards about munitions plants, navy yards and public buildings were trebled.

The Government announced that troops from Japan's homeland divisions were being sent to North China.

Directors' meetings of scores of banking, commercial, industrial and economic organizations, including the Japan Economic Federation, the Tokio Clearing House and the Tokio and Osaka Chambers of Commerce, pledged support of the Government's China policy and especially aid in maintaining Japanese credit and currency abroad.

BETTER DIET FOR PIGS URGED

U. S. Public Health Service Criticises Feeding of Garbage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 16. — The United States Public Health Service is urging pork producers to put their pigs on a better diet and keep them well-groomed.

"The pig industry is not showing the business sagacity that might be expected of an industry of such magnitude when it continues to produce swine under conditions that justify the ancient and still current use of the term 'filthy swine,'" the service said. The practice of allowing porkers to feed on garbage drew particular criticism from Government health officials.

MUNICIPAL BRIDGE RAILROAD APPROACHES READY IN FALL

Completion of approaches to the railroad deck of the Municipal Bridge, enabling the bridge to be put to full use by the railroads, is expected by October, A. R. Ross, associate to the President of the Board of Public Service, said today.

The three approaches on the Illinois side of the bridge are completed except for the laying of additional track. These include the eastern approach, which has been used by the Alton & Southern Railroad and Manufacturers' Railway, on which new track is being laid; the East St. Louis Union Station approach, on which 60 per cent of the track work is complete, and the South Valley Junction approach, connecting with the eastern approach, which is completed.

On the west side, work remaining to be done includes the construction of connections between the bridge and the tracks of the Terminal Railroad Association and the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Twelfth and Gratiot streets, and a connection with the Terminal elevated lines on Gratiot street between Seventh and Eighth streets. The southern approach has been completed for several years.

Total cost of the work was estimated by Ross at $4,500,000, of which the Terminal contributed $1,300,000; the Federal Public Works Administration, $307,000, and the city the balance from bond issue funds.

LABOR ORGANIZER CHASED FROM TOWN

Federal Conciliator Says He Also Was Forced to Leave Cleveland, Tenn.

By the Associated Press.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 16.—Noel Beddow, regional steel workers' organizing committee director, and L. J. Smith, United States Department of Labor conciliator, both of Birmingham, said they were forced to leave Cleveland, Tenn., by "12 or 15 men" yesterday.

Beddow said he and Smith were in the office of the Brown Stove Works when the men entered and ordered them to "load up and get going."

"They followed us through the town and about three miles down the highway," he said.

A five-week strike of 2000 steel and iron workers employed at four plants in Cleveland ended Thursday. The men were divided in union affiliations between the C I O, whom Beddow represents, and the American Federation of Labor.

Beddow said he and Smith had gone to Cleveland at "the telephoned request of officers of the Brown Stove Works in an effort to complete an agreement for the workers."

Beddow added that the Brown executives "had nothing to do with our being expelled from Cleveland."

"Caused Enough Trouble."

"As the men approached us in the office," Beddow said, "a spokesman asked 'which is Beddow.' I replied that I was and he said 'we think the C I O and you fellows have caused enough trouble and I think you better get out. The business men of Cleveland have been knocked out of some $200,000 in trade and workers out of four or five weeks work.'

"I told them that we were up there to try to settle this trouble. They told us when they first approached us that they represented the best people of Cleveland.

"Smith told them he was a representative of the United States Department of Labor. They said that didn't make any difference and that 'we are tired of these Government agencies butting into our affairs in Cleveland—load up and get going.'"

Police Begin Inquiry.

Gover Brown, president of the Brown Stove Works, said he was at the office of his attorney at the time of the incident.

H. M. Fullbright, another officer of the plant, said, "I saw some men talking with Beddow and Smith outside the office, but I paid no attention to them. Beddow and Smith got in their car and left, but I didn't even notice who had been talking to them."

Chief of Police A. M. Trotter said he "started an investigation as soon as the affair was reported to me."

"All we know about this business," said Sheriff Anderson Barger, "is what we read in a local paper. No report has been turned in to us."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ELDORADO, Ill., July 16.—Water pumped from coal mines in Saline and Gallatin counties between Equality and Shawneetown that were flooded last winter is killing thousands of fish in Saline River.

As the water comes from the mines it is laden with copperas, which is fatal to the fish. The situation is made worse by the shallowness of the river. The scanty flow of the stream is the more quickly and completely poisoned. Riffles also interfere with the movement of the fish to unpolluted waters. The dying and dead fish float on the surface and lodge in the shallows or against snags.

It has been observed that the fish, when the poison begins to take effect, are dazed, and many of them have been caught at the riffles with nets and pitchforks and even with bare hands.

AINTED BACKDROPS AGAIN IN STUDIO USE

pecial to the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 16.—William McConnell occupies the nly penthouse on the Warner rothers' studio lot. It towers high bove the roof line of the new building which houses all the mechanical departments of picture-making. It is lofty and narrow and is lighted by a uge window on the north, through hich comes a nearly shadowless ight.

In this penthouse the scenic artsts work, spreading color paint on muslin stretched in large frames. The frames can be raised or lowered hrough slots in the concrete floor o that the painter may always ork from a standing position withut the use of ladders or swinging affolds.

The day your correspondent visited the workshop only two men ere in evidence, McConnell and ne assistant. But this was because he strike of painters and other federated crafts had reduced his usual taff of seven to one. McConnell is a member of the union, but as foreman in charge of his department e had not been called out.

He was busy at the moment outlining the Lincoln Memorial in charcoal on a stretch of muslin 50 feet wide and 30 feet high. When finished this would be, he said, a part of the long-range background for certain scenes in the picture, "First Lady," in which Kay Francis was already at work. Buckets of green, gray, pink and white watercolor stood nearby to serve as substitutes for the actual scenery of the national capital.

Painted backdrops are coming into general use in Hollywood again, and all studios have learned that for certain purposes they serve as well if not better than actually constructed sets. And they are much cheaper, but to serve effectively they must be carefully made and the exact position of the camera must be fixed before the work is done, so that the perspective is not distorted in the final picture.

Pantheon for "Zola."

McConnell had recently finished a big job for the picture "The Life of Emile Zola," in which a threesome of especially particular persons, Director William Dieterle, Associate Producer Henry Blanke and Art Director Anton Grot, had to be satisfied with results as well as Paul Muni playing the title role.

McConnell's task in this instance was to reproduce on muslin the upper part of the elaborately carved and frescoed walls of the French Pantheon. He did it so well that he defies any future audience to tell where the actual plaster work stops and the painted drop begins.

For "That Certain Woman," in which Bette Davis is starred, McConnell and his men, not yet on strike, provided an expert copy of a famous coastline viewed from a hotel room window. The window supposed to look out over Monte Carlo and a section of the French

ELDORADO, Ill., July 16.—Water pumped from coal mines in Saline and Gallatin counties between Equality and Shawneetown that were flooded last winter is killing thousands of fish in Saline River.

As the water comes from the mines it is laden with copperas, which is fatal to the fish. The situation is made worse by the shallowness of the river. The scanty flow of the stream is the more quickly and completely poisoned. Riffles also interfere with the movement of the fish to unpolluted waters. INTED BACKDROPS AGAIN IN STUDIO USE

Lincoln Memorial, French Pantheon, Grand Canyon Among New Subjects.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 16.—William McConnell occupies the only penthouse on the Warner Brothers' studio lot. It towers high above the roof line of the new building which houses all the mechanical departments of picture-making. It is lofty and narrow and is lighted by a huge window on the north, through which comes a nearly shadowless light.

In this penthouse the scenic artists work, spreading color paint on muslin stretched in large frames. The frames can be raised or lowered through slots in the concrete floor so that the painter may always work from a standing position without the use of ladders or swinging scaffolds.

The day your correspondent visited the workshop only two men were in evidence, McConnell and one assistant. But this was because the strike of painters and other federated crafts had reduced his usual staff of seven to one. McConnell is a member of the union, but as foreman in charge of his department he had not been called out.

He was busy at the moment outlining the Lincoln Memorial in charcoal on a stretch of muslin 50 feet wide and 30 feet high. When finished this would be, he said, a part of the long-range background for certain scenes in the picture, "First Lady," in which Kay Francis was already at work. Buckets of green, gray, pink and white watercolor stood nearby to serve as substitutes for the actual scenery of the national capital.

Painted backdrops are coming in general use in Hollywood again, and all studios have learned that for certain purposes they serve as well if not better than actually constructed sets. And they are much cheaper, but to serve effectively they must be carefully made and the exact position of the camera must be fixed before the work is done, so that the perspective is not distorted in the final picture.

Pantheon for "Zola."

McConnell had recently finished a big job for the picture, "The Life of Emile Zola," in which a threesome of especially particular persons, Director William Dieterle, Associate Producer Henry Blanke and Art Director Anton Grot, had to be satisfied with results as well as Paul Muni playing the title role.

McConnell's task in this instance was to reproduce on muslin the upper part of the elaborately carved and frescoed walls of the French Pantheon. He did it so well that that he defies any future audience to tell where the actual plaster work stops and the painted drop begins.

For "That Certain Woman," in which Bette Davis is starred, McConnell and his men, not yet on strike, provided an expert copy of a famous coastline viewed from a hotel room window. The window is supposed to look out over Monte Carlo and a section of the French Riviera. The handiwork of these same men was seen but not detected in the coronation sequences of "The Prince and the Pauper." A whole section of Westminster Abbey was actually built for this and occupied the largest sound stage in Hollywood, but the upper half of it all was a painted canvas drop.

At this moment, according to McConnnell, another studio has scenic artists busy reproducing the Grand Canyon of the Colorado with paint and muslin. This, like the Washington backgrounds for "First Lady," must be so expertly done that it will match imperceptibly with the actual photographs made on the spot for process photography.

Absolute Accuracy the Aim.

Such accuracy as this has eliminated all but the more expert scene painters who flocked to Hollywood when the legitimate drama faded more or less completely from the smaller cities. The theatrical scene painter, McConnell says—and, having been one, he should know—is inclined to be more imaginative than accurate, but the camera can't be fooled. Absolute mathematical accuracy is essential if painted backgrounds are to be used in a picture.

Altogether McConnell used 70,000 yards of cloth for his painted backgrounds last year, and he figures these saved his studio almost $100,000 in cost of sets alone.

Until recently almost all this work was done in black and white and gray, but McConnell has been experimenting and is using color on his drops now for what he terms "psychological" effect. It is the same desired effect that long ago led set-dressers to use colors in the interior trim and furnishing of sets, even though the camera translates it all in various shades of black and white. McConnell gets around the difficulty of photographing certain colors by mixing them all over a basic black or gray pigment which will register even if the color will not.

Nearly 150 pounds of watercolor pigment will be spread on the 30 by 50 foot painted reproduction of the Lincoln Memorial. The muslin comes in seven-and-a-half-foot widths and is stitched together in horizontal strips, so that in rolling it the double thickness at the seams will not pull the whole out of shape.

Just now McConnell is looking forward to what he believes may be the most interesting job of his career—the backgrounds for the sets being planned for "Robin Hood." He has been studying English countryside scenes and fairly itches to try his hand at old castles on green hilltops. That job alone should keep his "penthouse" busy for many weeks.

Producer and Director as Extras.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 16.—Walter Wanger, producer, and Frank Borzage, director, turned from a game of polo the other day to become actors. The executive duo was in the midst of a fast chukker on the Will Rogers Polo Field, when King Vidor, photographing atmosphere roles in "Stella Dallas," discovered he needed close-to-the-camera faces. Wanger and Borzage were called into the picture and obliged with alacrity. "Stella Dallas," which teams Barbara Stanwyck and John Boles, is the picturization of the widely read novel by Olive Higgins Prouty.

65 PER CENT OF WORLD'S MOVIES MADE IN HOLLYWOOD

NEW YORK, July 16.—Despite the increasing motion picture consciousness of men in high places in other countries, with economists and politicians alike seeing in the film a powerful aid to national income and propagandist outpourings, productions from Hollywood represent 65 per cent of the world output in volume and 85 per cent in value, according to the 1937-38 edition of the International Motion Picture Almanac.

The growth of Hollywood's big industry is shown in figures which report a 9500 increase in the number of employes of the motion picture business in the past year, a $10,000,000 expansion in production costs and a $7,800,000 rise in the Hollywood payroll.

Theater construction made great strides, with 465 new houses added in the country between April, 1936, and June, 1937. Between 83,000,000 and 88,000,000 tickets were bought per week, with the average price about 22 cents, or a cent and a half higher than the previous year.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 16.—The battle of a century is on. Spencer Tracy and Critic George Jean Nathan are in the midst of a feud that's more heated than the weather. It's Broadway vs. Hollywood. Nathan says Hollywood is no place for Tracy. That he should return to the stage. Tracy says he likes Hollywood and plans to stay. Nathan retorts: "Another good actor gone wrong." And so it goes.

ARCHBISHOP SPEAKS ON RIGHTS OF LABOR

Cincinnati Churchman Criticises Capitalists for Belief in "Economic Slavery."

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., July 16.—Archbishop John T. McNicholas of the Cincinnati Catholic archdiocese said in a pastoral letter yesterday that "some sitting in our courts of justice, even the supreme tribunal of the United States, reject the very idea of a natural law," and "we are becoming, without realizing it, a totalitarian state."

The letter, sent to pastors to be read in all churches Sunday, said:

"Forty-six years ago Pope Leo XIII, addressing the world on the condition of labor, said: 'Every minister of holy religion must throw into the conflict all the energy of his mind and all the strength of his endurance. Ministers of religion must never cease to urge upon all men of every class, upon the high as well as the lowly, the gospel doctrines of the Christian life; by every means in their power they must strive for the good of the people; and above all they must earnestly cherish in themselves and try to arouse in others charity, the mistress and queen of virtues.'

"Forty years later Pope Pius XI said: 'Let all men of good will stand united, let all those who, under the pastors of the Church wish to fight this good and peaceful fight of Christ's as far as talents, powers and station allow, strive to play their part in the Christian renewal of human society.'

"Fair Return, Nothing More."

"A great struggle is going on in our country today and it seems next to impossible to change the outlook on life of industrialists and capitalists who have believed in economic slavery. They cannot understand that capital is entitled to a fair return on its investment, and nothing more; to speak of fundamental justice, and of the dignity of human nature and of human labor, is simply to speak a language they do not understand. ARCHBISHOP SPEAKS ON RIGHTS OF LABOR

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., July 16.—Archbishop John T. McNicholas of the Cincinnati Catholic archdiocese said in a pastoral letter yesterday that "some sitting in our courts of justice, even the supreme tribunal of the United States, reject the very idea of a natural law," and "we are becoming, without realizing it, a totalitarian state."

The letter, sent to pastors to be read in all churches Sunday, said:

"Forty-six years ago Pope Leo XIII, addressing the world on the condition of labor, said: 'Every minister of holy religion must throw into the conflict all the energy of his mind and all the strength of his endurance. Ministers of religion must never cease to urge upon men of every class, upon the high as well as the lowly, the gospel doctrines of the Christian life; by every means in their power they must strive for the good of the people; and above all they must earnestly cherish in themselves and try to arouse in others charity, the mistress and queen of virtues.'

"Forty years later Pope Pius XI said: 'Let all men for good will stand united, let all those who, under the pastors of the Church wish to fight this good and peaceful fight of Christ's as far as talents, powers and station allow, strive to play their part in the Christian renewal of human society.'

"Fair Return, Nothing More."

"A great struggle is going on in our country today and it seems next to impossible to change the outlook on life of industrialists and capitalists who have believed in economic slavery. They cannot understand that capital is entitled to a fair return on its investment, and nothing more; to speak of fundamental justice, and of the dignity of human nature and of human labor, is simply to speak a language they do not understand. They do not accept fixed and immutable principles of justice; good business to them means accumulating as much money as one can and the acquiring of that power which comes with money. All of this must be done in such a way as to avoid the penalties of the law.

"Some sitting in our courts of justice, even in the supreme tribunal of the United States, reject the very idea of the natural law, which is founded on the divine and eternal law of God and which means unchanging standards of morality governing society.

"Labor is beginning to gain strength. It lacks, however, that leadership which can inspire a general confidence in its objectives and in its conduct. It must be realized that public opinion is too slow in condemning tactics and abuses of labor organizations which must ultimately hurt the cause of the working man.

Warns Against Totalitarianism.

"It is most important that labor organizations be everywhere formed and that men who toil should be guided by informed, honest and sane leaders who are disinterestedly working for the common good of laboring groups in their respective localities.

"All who have the good of society at heart should do what is humanly possible to form a sane public opinion on the functions of government. We are becoming without realizing it a totalitarian state. We are talking much about the liberties of men while at the same time Government is stealing the freedom of the sons of God that is their inalienable right by nature and by nature's laws. Pope Pius XI has stated the case with great clarity and force:

Would Join Capital and Labor.

"The state, which should be the supreme arbiter, ruling in kingly fashion far above all party contention, intent only upon justice and the common good, has become, instead, a slave bound over to the service of human passion and greed.

"Capital and labor should resolve to become friends. They should insist that there be no totalitarian state in America, and that governmental extravagance in city, state and nation should cease. Taxation has now become a moral question. It is borne almost entirely by the poor man and laboring man, who is literally betrayed by legislators and executives who are imposing invisible taxes upon him.

He should recognize the ever-mounting costs of Government and also his duty of becoming tax-conscious, and of giving a mandate of economy to the officials of Government.

Names Priests to Aid Labor.

"It is our special duty to assist in whatever measure we can the poor and laboring classes. We ask all our priests to take a special interest in them. We hereby appoint the following priests to stand by, ready at any call to assist labor, to be helpful in industrial disputes, in a word, to do all they can in giving sane directions to laboring groups:

"Other priests will be appointed at a later date.

"These priests are entirely disinterested. They will accept no remuneration at any time for their services. They will in no way seek any personal advantage in the discharge of their duties. They will be ready whenever there is a violation of justice, if given the opportunity, to defend the laboring and poor man. Their services will be offered to all groups, regardless of creed, color or race."

DIESEL ELECTRIC ENGINES IN USE AT MO. PAC. YARDS

Four 600-Power Motors, First of Kind in St. Louis, Cost $72,500 Each.

Four Diesel-electric switch engines of 600-horsepower, equipped with most of the driver conveniences of a pleasure automobile, have been purchased by the Missouri Pacific Railroad and are being operated in company yards. The engines, which cost $72,500 each, are the first to be used in St. Louis.

The operator sits on the right side of the cab with safety glass on all sides. The cab is roomy and uncluttered with the variety of gadgets found on a steam locomotive. To the operator's left are the controls. Behind and in front of him are automatic windshield wipers. The spacious cab has an ice water container and a heater and fan for heat in winter.

A company representative said the engines burn four gallons of 6-cent distillate oil an hour and can travel 150,000 miles without a general overhaul. Two other engines of similar design but of 900 horsepower will be delivered to the railroad this week to be used in road service on Western divisions.

SISTER OF MURDERED GIRLS SAYS SHE, TOO, WAS ATTACKED

Play Director Held After 11-Year-Old Tells Grand Jury Four Men Molested Her in Los Angeles Park.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 16. — Investigators disclosed today that Olive Everett, 11-year-old sister of two of three girls allegedly murdered by Albert Dyer, W P A crossing watchman, told the grand jury that four men had attacked her at various times in Centinela Park, from which the girls were lured to their death June 26.

District Attorney Buron Fitts ordered Haskell Wright, park recreation supervisor, held on Olive's charges that he had "molested" her.

Wright has insisted that a man named "Eddie the Sailor" not Dyer, had killed and attacked them. Olive previously had identified three men as "Eddie the Sailor."

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Lawyers' Club investigated the case and charged that the District Attorney's and Sheriff's offices had violated Dyer's constitutional rights in obtaining his confession that he killed Madeline and Melba Everett and Jeanette Stephens.

Several lawyers said they had learned the confession was obtained by force.

Pay Rise for Hosiery Workers.

NEW YORK, July 16. — Representatives of the Full Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers of America signed a one-year agreement yesterday with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, granting 30,000 employes in 45 mills average wage increases of 12½ per cent.

LOW BIDS ON FOUR ELEEMOSYNARY JOBS

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16.—Low bidders on four contracts in connection with power plant construction work at two of the State eleemosynary institutions were announced yesterday by members of the State Building Commission. The bids were gone over at a joint meeting of the commission and the bipartisan advisory board yesterday.

Low bidder on the electrical distribution contract at the State Hospital at Nevada was the Koeneman Electric Company, St. Louis, at $36,515. Low bidder on the power plant piping at Nevada was the Lynn-Bowman Heating and Equipment Co., Kansas City, at $69,718.

The low bid on electrical distribution work for the State school at Marshall was Sam Ellis, Fulton, at $30,550, and on the power plant piping to the Groeschel Plumbing and Heating Co., Marshall, at $90,795.

The State Building Commissions' Bi-Partisan Advisory Board had recommended trimming of other appropriations so to provide for a new power plant at the State prison here.

Among recommendations are that a proposed prison wall around new structures be eliminated at an estimated saving of $50,000. This project will be financed from other sources, commission members said.

A $15,000 balance from construction work at Algoa reformatory also would be applied to the power plant project. Some features of the new plant itself would be eliminated at a saving of about $40,000.

Additional savings recommended include $74,000 from construction and repair work previously scheduled at the training school for boys at Boonville. This would include $50,000 for officers' quarters there, and $24,000 for repairs to three cottages. The money saved by elimination of these projects would be applied to the power plant.

MEMORIAL TREE PLANTATION IN SHAWNEE FOREST PLANNED

HARRISBURG, Ill., July 16.—A check for $400 to be used in planting 100 acres of trees near High Knob in the Shawnee Forest as an American Legion memorial plantation will be presented with ceremonies to Forest Supervisor Galen Pike, Aug. 4.

Mrs. H. L. Hamilton of Bridgeport, community service chairman in the Illinois Department of the Legion Auxiliary, has sponsored the establishment of the memorial plantation, which will be similar to that sponsored by the Conservation Department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Invitations to attend have been accepted by Mrs. Josephine Soliday, Wood River, State president; Mrs. Mildred Knowles, department secretary; Mrs. Marie Southers, national community service chairman; Mrs. Fern McCormick, Flora, district director; H. L. Hamilton, Bridgeport, commander of the Fifth division of the Legion, and Otis La Mar, Rosiclare, district commander of the Legion. A motor trip to the vicinity of High Knob will be made.

MAN SUED FOR $510,000 OVER RAID TO FIND SON

Thomas Warner Sr. Instigated Call by Officers, Hollywood Woman Charges.

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—Thomas Warner Sr., automobile accessory manufacturer, is being sued for $510,000 damages by Mrs. Pearl Antibus, Hollywood detective, who charges he instigated a raid on her home to "rescue" his son, Thomas Warner Jr. Twelve investigators of the District Attorney's office, who are alleged to have participated in the raid, also are named as defendants.

District Attorney Buron Fitts declared the raid, which Mrs. Antibus claims was illegal, was requested by Warner. Both Fitts and Chief Investigator Eugene Williams said the elder Warner claimed his son was being held against his will.

Mrs. Antibus alleged she was roughly handled in the raid. Investigator Williams said young Warner was found and taken, biting and kicking, from the home.

Fitts said young Warner had been meeting a young woman, a prospective divorcee, in the home of Mrs. Antibus against his father's wishes. After the raid, a "peace parley" was held, Fitts said, at which "all was forgiven."

ARCHBISHOP TO END EXILE AND RETURN TO MEXICO

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 16.—With peace declared between the Mexican Government and the Catholic Church, the Most Rev. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, Archbishop of Morelia and apostolic delegate to Mexico, will leave here in September, ending a five-year exile.

The Archbishop said he and Bishop Jose Manriquez of Huejetlan, are the only religious exiles who came to San Antonio five years ago that have not returned.

MORE THAN 5C RISE IN WHEAT ON CHICAGO BOARD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—More than 5 cents a bushel jumps of wheat prices today followed official announcement that Canada will have little wheat for export from this year's crop.

In addition to wholesale drouth damage to Canadian wheat, reports at hand told of spread of black rust both sides of the Canadian border. In Chicago, assertions were current that wheat commercially is now worth $1.50 a bushel, and would be selling there if low-grade arrivals were not choking consumer channels.

July wheat in Chicago reached a peak of $1.29⅞, up 5⅜c overnight. At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 2¼@3½c advanced compared with yesterday's finish; July, $1.27⅞@1.28; Sept., $1.28¼@⅜; corn, ¼@1½c up, Sept. $1.13⅝@¾; Dec., 81@81⅛c, and oats showing ⅜@⅞c gain.

More than 2 cents a bushel swift advance wheat values took place early today after moderate earlier setbacks.

Concentrated buying of wheat quickly developed when prices dipped. In the rally that ensued, overnight losses were soon more than wiped out and the market rose approximately 3 cents above the day's bottom level. Rapid changes at this time were apparent in the character of black rust reports, enlarged damage reported to spring wheat crop northwest being especially emphasized.

Adding momentum to the upward sweep of Chicago wheat prices was right-about-face action of the Liverpool market. Liverpool quotations, which at one stage today were down 1¼ cents a bushel, closed at ½@⅝ of a cent net advance. Meanwhile, a good deal of attention was given to official estmates admitting that Canada's 1937 wheat yield would probably not exceed 150,000,000 bushels, thus confirming crop loss estimates of 100,000,000 bushels.

Rye, corn and oats sympathized with wheat market upturns. Owing to favorable weather for the new domestic corn crop, however, December corn lagged on advances.

Provisions were responsive to bulges both of grains and of hog values.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 48,208,000 bushels, corn 8,514,000. Open interest in wheat was 95,699,000 bushels and in corn 33,882,000.

STOCKS MOVE IRREGULARLY WITH "STEEL" AS A LEADER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—U. S. Steel rallied the stock market in the final hour today but after getting up nearly 2 points, slipped just before the close. It emerged ⅛ of a point lower at 115⅞. Other leaders followed steel both up and down and many issues failed to go anywhere in particular.

"Big Steel" led an upswing in the first lap, but reacted when Chrysler dropped more than 2. It advanced and retreated at frequent intervals. Sloss-Sheffield Steel jumped more than 5 at one time, then yielded most of its gain.

Actual and prospective earnings reports for the second quarter were interpreted constructively. Decision of the administration to push its fight for the court bill, traders said, tended to chill buying sentiment in some instances on the belief the session of Congress might be long drawn-out.

Prices were uneven at the finish, with moderate losers plentiful. Dealings were quiet throughout. Transfers were around 750,000 shares.

Freight Movement Encourages.

Bonds were mixed. Wheat futures were up 2¼@3½ cents a bushel at Chicago and corn was ¼@1½ improved. A sharp break in French francs, reflecting doubts as to the republic's financial outlook, unsettled the foreign exchange market.

Utility stocks attained a degree of popularity, with small gains being registered for Consolidated Edison, American Telephone, North American and Public Service of New Jersey.

There was a flurry in the aircrafts, Douglas, Boeing, United and Curtiss-Wright leaning forward at one time. They failed to hold at the end.

Resistant were Standard Oil of New Jersey, Seaboard Oil, National Lead, St. Joseph Lead, International Harvester, Sears-Roebuck and Bethlehem.

Narrow to down a point or so were Wheeling Steel, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, Kennecott, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, du Pont, J. I. Case, Deere and Oliver Farm.

Inclined to edge upward were Motor Products, Worthington Pump, Gair Co., Sperry Corp. and Philip Morris.

At mid-afternoon the French franc was off .05 of a cent at 3.83 cents and sterling was up ⅜ of a cent at $4.97⅛.

News of the Day.

The Japanese-Chinese war crisis was a retarding element, analysts thought, but it was questionable whether it was responsible for much liquidation.

Although June net operating profits of class 1 railroads were up more than 4 per cent, the increase seemingly was not sufficient to overcome the feeling brought about by the deadlock in wage negotiations.

Figures of New York City banks disclosed their commercial loans in the past week jumped $37,000,000.

Mercantile Trade Summary.

Recent interest in merchandising issues was reflected in the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet, which reported a further expansion of retail sales, notwithstanding slight unevenness in the rising trends of some branches.

Most leading centers, it was said, stepped up distribution 2 to 5 per cent over the preceding week. While comparisons with a year ago were less favorable, it was found public spending topped the comparable 1936 period by 10 to 20 per cent.

It was also stressed that more headway was made in the acquisition of fall merchandise in the principal wholesale markets.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

Foreign bonds were somewhat heavy and gilt-edged securities sold slightly off. Home rails and Far Eastern bonds were in supply, while the mining list was mixed.

PARIS, July 16.—Government bonds continued weak, some issues showing losses of as much as 400 centimes at the close. Royal Dutch and Suez Canal shares finished with substantial advances and Bank of France stock was 15 francs up.

LIVERPOOL, July 16. — Wheat futures closed firm and ⅜d to ½d net higher. The market advanced on forecasts of smaller world shipments, reacted on reports of rains in Canada and rallied again following the strength in the Winnipeg market today. Weakness in overseas cotton market caused futures here to close 8 to 11 points lower. Traders were cautious, owing to reports of exceptionally favorable weather in the American cotton belt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The Federal Reserve Board reported today member bank excess reserves increased $80,000,000 during the week ended July 14.

It was the fourth successive weekly increase in these idle bank funds and brought the total supply to $960,000,000. For the four-week period, excess reserves have climbed $210,000,000.

The rise during the week ended July 14 was attributable in part to a $67,000,000 decline in money in circulation to $6,457,000,000. When money in circulation decreases, funds flow back into banks, increasing their supply of lendable money.

Another factor in the excess reserves increase was a $11,000,000 decrease in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks to $90,000,000. The $11,000,000 presumably was sent into channels of business and trade, moving thence into commercial banks.

Gold stocks increased $47,000,000 and brought the nation's hoard to $12,423,000,000 on July 14, the board said.

Statement by Board.

The board's statement follows:

"During the week ended July 14, member bank reserve balances increased $101,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from decreases of $67,000,000 in money in circulation, $7,000,000 in Treasury cash, other than inactive gold, $11,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, and $10,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and an increase of $7,000,000 in reserve bank credit. Excess reserves of member banks on July 14 were estimated to be approximately $960,000,000, an increase of $80,000,000 for the week. Inactive gold included in the gold stock and in Treasury cash amounted to $1,191,000,000 on July 14, an increase of $46,000,000 for the week."

Week's Auto Production.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—Ward's Reports, Inc., estimated today that the current week's output of automobile plants would reach 115,380 cars and trucks, compared with last week's 100,031 units. For the week ending July 18, 1936, it placed output at 97,768 assemblies.

A sharp drop is indicated next week when Ford suspends operations and certain makers complete their 1937 model production, the survey says.

FRENCH FRANC OFF SHARPLY WITH BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—A heavy decline in Government bonds on the Paris bourse brought a sharp break in the French franc today. The franc closed off .05¼ from yesterday, rallying slightly late in the date after dropping off .05½.

According to the view in French financial circles, the decline was due to pessimism over the financial outlook of the Chautemps Government, faced with prospects of a growing deficit in the Treasury.

As far as New York traders in foreign exchange could observe, there was little evidenec of support by the French Government's control fund.

The pound sterling was slightly strengthened, up 1-16 of a cent, indicating a flight of French francs into that currency.

The dollar, in London trading, gained 3-16 of a cent, closing at $4.96⅝ to the pound in contrast to the New York overnight rate of $4.96 11-16. It closed in Paris at the equivalent of 3.853 cents to the franc, in comparison with the New York overnight rate of 3.88 cents.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank reported the engagement of $270,000 in gold in England for shipment to New York. From Switzerland, $1,200,000 in gold arrived late yesterday, and the reserve bank was notified of $1,890,000 in gold from Australia, received in San Francisco.

ARMOUR & CO. DECLARES 20C ON COMMON STOCK

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Armour & Co. directors declared today a 20c per share dividend on the common stock, the same as was paid last quarter. This will be the third payment on the stock in the last 10 years.

R. H. Cabell, president, told the board indications were that livestock supplies would be short until well into autumn and that this would be reflected in market prices of all meats.

Cabell said June earnings continued at a satisfactory rate and that subsidiaries' and South America results are "quite satisfactory."

The common stock dividend will be paid Sept. 15 to stockholders of record Aug. 25. Directors also voted the regular quarterly payments of $1.75 on the Armour & Co. of Delaware 7 per cent guaranteed preferred and on the Armour of Illinois 7 per cent cumulative preferred and $1.50 on the prior preferred of Armour of Illinois, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 10.

WEEKLY WOOL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 16.—The "Commercial Bulletin" will say tomorrow:

"There is a better tone in the wool market and a slightly better business has resulted, following the settlement of the wool handlers' strike, especially in Australian Merinos, which are stronger. Domestic wools are firm on moderate demand, centered chiefly on the bright wools.

"The new lightweight season is delayed and spinners and combers find little to guide them for future operations. There is some business reported in women's wear, especially in cloakings and sports goods.

"Foreign markets are very firm and if anything against the buyer.

"In the West, buying is scattered with prices firm generally and in the territory and Texas sections there is more or less of a stand-off in the matter of prices.

"Mohair is firm though not especially active."

Week's Review of Business

Progress of Trade Meets Fewer Obstructions Even Though the Rising Trend Is Uneven, Dun & Bradstreet Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Progress of trade met fewer obstructions last week even though the rising trend was uneven in some branches, Dun & Bradstreet said in its weekly trade review today.

"In spite of the slower rate of advance, most of the leading centers of retail distribution were ahead of the previous week's sales by 2 to 5 per cent, with no indications, as yet, of a relaxation in the quest for all types of merchandise.

"Comparisons with a year ago were less favorable in some districts, narrowing the gain in the estimated volume of retail distribution over the corresponding 1936 week to 10 to 20 per cent.

"More headway was made in the acquisition of fall merchandise in the principal wholesale markets this week. Attendance was large and buying heavy at the trade shows devoted to housewares, draperies, curtains and furniture.

"Interest in coats and suits spread from the sports types to expensive dressy models, with no resistance to the price advance, following the wage increase to workers.

"With the gain distributed over almost all divisions, estimated wholesale volume ranged from 15 to 32 per cent larger than in the 1936 week.

Detailed reports from city areas. Summaries are made up from reports covering period inclusive of Monday of week of issuance.

St. Louis, Kansas City, Louisville.

ST. LOUIS—Torrid temperatures benefited most retail branches, sales of summer apparel, sporting goods and vacation supplies running 20 to 25 per cent larger than last year's. Wholesale orders increased, as more crops were marketed at high prices. Factories less hampered by strikes; employment total rising. Building permits up from June, 1936.

KANSAS CITY—High prices for wheat and livestock pouring millions of dollars into trade channels in this district. Official estimates place wheat crop at largest since 1930, and corn yield up 25 per cent from last year's. Retail sales, despite holiday, exceeded 1936 total by 8 to 12 per cent. Wholesale volume ahead by 6 to 10 per cent, with hardware and farm implements leading. Labor situation improved.

LOUISVILLE—Buying of summer apparel and other hot-weather merchandise kept retail sales 15 to 20 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1936 week. Dollar volume of goods moved at wholesale 10 to 20 per cent larger than year ago, due chiefly to sustained orders for hardware, dry goods, food products and electrical appliances. Crop prospects excellent; farm income expected to be largest since 1929.

PITTSBURGH—Steel operations to start week at 88 per cent of capacity, off 5 points, but one of the highest mid-July rates on record; last year it was at 62 per cent. Other major industries holding previous high schedules. Electrical plants still have substantial backlogs, but plate glass shipments are running ahead of new orders. Upswing in retail sales carried total 18 to 30 per cent over last year's.

YOUNGSTOWN—Despite hottest weather in years, retail sales continued to broaden; up 8 to 15 per cent from corresponding 1936 week. Nearly all men made idle by the strike have returned to work. Preliminary steel schedules for start of week set at 80 per cent of capacity. This would be the fastest pace since the last week of April, and the highest mid-July rate in the history of the district.

BALTIMORE—Little evidence, as yet, of the usual summer let-down in trade. Retail sales continued to rise, under the stimulus of hot weather, with apparel and vacation merchandise in foreground. In line with increased consumer buying, wholesale orders went 10 to 16 per cent over last year's. June building permits under 1936 comparative. Maryland factory employment for May at the highest level since November, 1929.

Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

CHICAGO—Impetus given to almost all wholesale divisions by influx of visitors to various house furnishing and allied shows at furniture and merchandise marts; attendance close to peak record. Despite short week, retail sales ran 15 to 22 per cent over 1936 total. Building permits still under last year's. Trend of industrial operations upward. Reopening of more plants lifted steel rate to 78 per cent of capacity.

CLEVELAND—Virtual termination of strikes enabled most industries to reopen at higher schedules, following shutdowns over July Fourth. Steel rate to rise from current rate at 70 per cent of capacity to 83 next week. Retail sales responded to hot weather and quieter labor conditions, going 10 to 18 per cent over last year's. Except for off-standard merchandise, inventories not burdensome.

DETROIT—Closing of assembly lines over Independence day cut automobile production to 100,031 units, which was under last year's total at 100,648, and the previous week's at 122,890. Retail sales were helped by heat wave, the uneven gains over 1936 ranging from 10 to 16 per cent. Wholesale volume about even with year ago; orders from factory localities reflected the seasonal lay-off period.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Raw sugar was quiet early today and while local refiners showed no interest above 3.40, there was nothing offered below 3.45.

It was revealed that late yesterday an outport refiner bought 5000 bags of Cubas for prompt shipment at 3.45, an advance of 3 points from the previous sale in nearby sugar.

Futures were fairly active and price movements irregular. Old crop deliveries in No. 3 contract held fairly steady on covering against sales of actuals, but new crop months were easier under liquidation and commission house and producer selling.

No. 4 contract, after declining ½ to 1 point on scattered local selling, rallied later on increased trade and commission house buying. July No. 3 sold up to 2.47, or 1 point net higher, while May declined to 2.33, or a loss of 2 points. No. 4 Sept., after selling at 1.21, rallied to 1.22 while March recovered from 1.29½ to 1.31, leaving the list at midday ½ to 1 point net higher.

Refined was unchanged at 4.70 for fine granulated.

By the Associated Press.

Rails presented a fairly steady front with a few weak spots showing. Great Northern 4s improved a major fraction to 126 and Illinois Central 4¾s ended at 67¼, up ¼. Southern Pacific 4s and Santa Fe 4s worked lower.

STOCK OFFERINGS FEATURE WEEK'S NEW FINANCING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—After approximating the low ebb for the year in the previous week, new financing revived moderately this week, augmented by a $45,000,000 offering of American Rolling Mill preferred stock.

The total was $74,948,635 against $14,132,185 the preceding week and $123,355,854 in the comparable week last year, a compilation by Poor's Publishing Co. showed today.

The preponderance of stock offerings was a contrast with most weekly totals the last two years, in which large corporate refunding operations accounted for most of the money.

Industrial	3,500,000	150,000

SWISS BANKERS PARTICIPATE IN I. T. & T. FINANCING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation announced today that an agreement had been made with Swiss bankers to underwrite $9,150,000 of an issue of approximately $30,000,000 of debentures of an Argentine subsidiary, the United River Plate Telephone Co.

The financing program contemplates that the balance of the $30,000,000 will be subsequently offered for sale and any unsold portion will be retained by International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation in settlement of its receivables from the United River Plate Telephone Co.

The net proceeds from the program will be used by International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation to pay off a portion of its bank loans and used or set aside to retire part of its 4½ per cent convertible debentures due Jan. 1, 1939.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 16.—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. has called for redemption on Aug. 25 of all of its 3½ per cent convertible debentures still remaining outstanding, amounting to approximately $5,200,000, at par and accrued interest plus a premium of 4 per cent. The debentures called by be converted into common shares of the company on or before Aug. 25, on the basis of 16 common shares for each $1000 debenture, subject to adjustment for dividends and interest. The debentures are the last of a $30,000,000 issue made Feb. 1, 1936, as part of refinancing program of the company.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 3 TO 9 POINTS LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Yesterday's cotton losses were extended a few points early today under Wall Street liquidation, but with the trade taking more cotton below the 12c level prices steadied on covering and a little reactionary buying.

October recovered from 11.98 to 12.14 and in mid-afternoon sold at 12.12. The market generally was 3 points higher to 1 lower.

Futures closed steady, 3 to 9 lower; Oct. 12.02, Dec. 11.97, Jan. 11.97, March 12.05, May 12.08. Spot quiet; middling 12.52.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 6 to 18 lower, under Wall Street liquidation owing to favorable and crop advices.

July opened 11.94, October 12.02, December 11.92, January 11.94, March 12.03, May 12.05.

Trading was active owing to a continuation of stale long liquidation which had been pronounced late yesterday. Additional pressure developed in the July position under selling against 27 notices on last trading day for this delivery.

There were foreign offerings and a decline below 12 cents for October uncovered additional stop orders. However, there was sufficient covering or rebuying and trade price fixing at the new lows for the movement to cause slight rallies from the lows shortly after the first half hour.

October recovered from 11.98c to 12.05c leaving prices generally 5 to 11 points net lower, except July, which was 23 points lower.

There was a run-up in July from 11.80 to 12.00 before the delivery went off the board at midday at 11.89 ar 19 points net lower.

The market was quiet as October advanced on moderate demand to 12.07 and prices generally were 2 to 6 points net lower at midday.

TOLLS ON MUNICIPAL BRIDGE TOTAL $4,492,911 SINCE 1932

29,208,304 Passenger Cars and 10,480,539 Commercial Machines Have Crossed.

Receipts from tolls on the vehicular deck of Municipal Bridge in the five-year period from July 21, 1932, when collection of tolls began, to June 30 were $4,492,911, Comptroller Louis Nolte announced today.

The revenue from the tolls has been devoted to paying interest and principal of the $8,200,000 in public relief bonds, all of the proceeds of which have been expended. The last of the bonds will mature in 1946, but they may be retired earlier if funds from the tolls suffice.

In the current fiscal year the requirement for interest will be $196,475, while in the year 1941,42 it will be only $85,912. Doubtless, if toll income continues at about the same level as in the past, at least some of the bonds may be paid off a few years ahead of maturity.

During the five-year period of tolls, 29,208,304 passenger cars and 10,480,539 commercial machines have crossed the bridge, a total of 39,688,843. The tolls are 10 cents for passenger vehicles and 15 cents for commercial.

Letter of Michigan Fugitive Asking Friends to Engineer Jail Delivery Discovered.

By the Associated Press.

ONEIDA, N. Y., July 16.—Additional guards have been placed around the Madison County jail following the discovery of a plot by Joe Scofic, Michigan convict, to escape.

Sheriff T. D. Thomas said Scofic, who escaped from jail in Michigan last winter, sought to mail a letter to Boston in which he asked several friends to engineer a delivery plot. The Sheriff said Scofic attempted to get another prisoner to effect delivery of the letter. He quoted the prisoner as saying Scofic had asked if a pistol and hacksaw could be smuggled into the jail. Thomas said the prisoner told him Scofic had promised him $1000.

Scofic was arrested at Canandaigua by State police on a motor vehicle law violation charge and an investigation was begun when several hundred dollars in $10 bills were found on him. His sister, Helen, and William Krantz are held with him.

CALLS OLD-AGE BENEFIT PLAN CONSERVATIVE THRIFT IDEAL

Social Security Official Tells Public Affairs Institute System Might Be Improved.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 16.—Dr. John J. Corson, assistant executive director of the Social Security Board, told the Institute of Public Affairs today that the fundamental basis of the Federal old-age benefits program was "the conservative ideal of thrift."

"If that system has flaws, and if it is limited," he said, "it is not because the main concept is wrong. Rather, in working out a system to apply to millions of persons, it is impossible to achieve universal justice, efficient administration and complete coverage all at one stroke."

Operating experience may indicate need of many changes, he said, "but if the contributory system is at all impaired, it will be all the more necessary later to take special steps to indicate how heavy the cost is and who is meeting it."

EAST SIDE BUS LINE REPORT

After Losing for Years, Company Cleared $3587 in 1936.

The new East St. Louis bus line, East St. Louis City Lines, Inc., which replaced the city's street cars a year and a half ago, showed a gross operating income of $93,442 and net income of $3587 in 1936, according to a report filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The street car company had not shown a profit for many years and had been losing about $10,000 a month. Operating revenues for the bus company totaled $521,565 during 1936 and expenses were $431,452. Thirteen new coaches have recently been added to the company's fleet, making a total of 55 now operating on 37 miles of streets.

Many of the most desirable rental properties now available are advertised extensively in the Post-Dispatch want pages.

BIG GAME HUNTER FILLS MUSEUM IN CALIFORNIA

Donates $150,000 for Building to House Trophies of African Expeditions.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—One man's gun has filled an entire museum here with African game.

The hunter is Leslie Simson of Oakland, born the heir to a Spanish land grant in California. Later he became a mining engineer in South Africa.

In 1910 Simson retired from business and for more than two decades roamed Africa. His trophies constitute one of the finest personal collection of African fauna in the world.

To house a part of them he gave $150,000 toward erecting the Simson African hall for the California Academy of Sciences here, now open to the public. Enough game to fill two similar halls awaits suitable housing.

Proposes Anthracite Regulation.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania, asked Congress yesterday to provide for regulation of the anthracite coal industry in the same manner as the bituminous industry already is governed by the Guffey Act. He introduced a proposed "National Anthracite Act," providing for a commission of five to establish codes of fair practices and fix prices.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

OF ALL living things, man is the most complicated. You can get expert advice on how to raise pretty near anything else, because there's a set rule that governs each one of 'em, but you'll find that each man is an individual case. My Aunt Dutty was an expert housekeeper and always dreamed of makin' a good home for some man, but she married a bachelor who had a habit of runnin' out with the boys every night. He stayed home for a little while and then he started runnin' out again. One day Aunt Dutty called in a neighbor and says, "I don't understand why he don't stay home when I keep my home so neat!" And the neighbor says, "Well, that's the trouble with you—you want'ta fix your house so he'll feel at home in it." Two months later Aunt Dutty saw the neighbor and said, "Well, I've followed your advice—I tried to make the place seem like home to him. I took up the parlor rug and sprinkled sawdust on the floor, and put a beer barrel in the corner, but it didn't do no good!"

A Defense De Luxe

By Ely Culbertson

IF contract were played with all 52 cards exposed, there would be less wailing and moaning from those players who claim that they never can guess a finesse. But this would be a slight boon indeed because the game would die out in a month. Not that I wish to imply that the fascination of contract lies in "guesses." Far from it! Guessing the location of an honor means little, or nothing, in terms of skill. If the following hand, for instance, were played at double dummy (with all hands exposed), how could East put up the brilliant defense that he actually did?

East, dealer.

	NORTH
	♠ 9 8 5 ♥ A K J 10 ♦ 7 5 4 2 ♣ A K
WEST ♠ 7 ♥ 9 8 6 4 3 2 ♦ J 9 3 ♣ J 6		EAST ♠ A K 3 ♥ Q ♦ A Q 10 8 ♣ 9 8 5 4 3
	SOUTH ♠ Q J 10 6 4 2 ♥ 7 5 ♦ K 6 ♣ 10 7

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 diamond	1 spade	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

North's double jump was unconventional, based as it was on only three spades to the nine, but probably was the best bid available. South had found a vulnerable overcall. With North's great strength in hearts and clubs, it was a safe bet that South's spade suit could stand less than adequate trump support. The alternative bid of three hearts by North would have been ambiguous in that it would convey a picture of at least five and, probably, six hearts.

West dutifully opened the diamond jack, and East carefully studied the dummy before he followed suit. The prospect of defeating the hand was none too good, he saw—two spades and one diamond appearing to be the defenders' only tricks.

There was a chance, of course, that South held three diamonds to the king, in which case East's diamond quota would be raised a trick. If this condition existed, well and good! But, meanwhile, East saw a definite hope for defeating the contract even if declarer had only the king and one diamond. (West could have no more than three diamonds, otherwise he would have opened his fourth highest.)

As preparation for his defensive coup, East carefully refrained from playing the ace of diamonds to the first trick, choosing the queen instead. Declarer won with the king and, as ninety-nine players in a hundred would, started to take out trumps. East captured dummy's eight with the king, and laid down the heart queen. Declarer had a presage of disaster, but the fat was in the fire and there was nothing he could do except go on drawing trumps. On a low trump lead from dummy, East hopped up with the ace, and now came the crucial play, the diamond eight! East had seen that declarer had started with six spades and this fact made it all the more unlikely that he had held three diamonds. If two diamond tricks could not be taken, there was only one chance to defeat the contract and that was to find West with the nine of diamonds—a heart ruff (plainly called for by East's previous defense) would save the day. Fate would have been decidedly lacking in a sense of art if it had placed the diamond nine in declarer's hand.

Referring back to the opening discourse of this article, East's play would have been spoiled if the hand had been played at double dummy and, as a matter of fact, if declarer had been acutely aware of all safety methods. An immediate diamond return by declarer, after winning the diamond king, would have thwarted East's defensive coup before it had even gotten under way. West never could have regained the lead for the vital heart ruff.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Saturday, July 17.

FIRST of three days with accent on the affections, relations with children and the development of personal talents; today and tomorrow best. Today: excellent for money matters and relations with superiors; make it count.

Less Obvious Factors.

Successful marriage is not merely a matter of choosing a partner who was born in a certain sign. Such nonsense is far from real astrology. We can see physical conditions to a large extent, and we use our vision and sense in choosing wisely in this department of love and marriage—at least more wisely than we do in some of the less obvious factors of married success.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead continues new elements in occupation, and suggests wisdom of making position sound for future tests. Same with partnerships and law. Emotions high. Danger; Oct. 22—Dec. 11; Feb. 27-April 11; and from June 28.

Tomorrow.

Young People Who Complain About Skins

All They Usually Need Is Enough Exercise and Proper Food.

By Angelo Patri

YOUNG people are good to look at, and they like to feel that they are. They like to know that people admire their bright eyes and clear skin, their fine, upstanding carriage. Youth and beauty are synonymous.

"Not always," sighs another. "I have to use all kinds of things to doctor myself so I can get by in a crowd, but nothing much happens. I hate to go out looking the way I do."

Cheer up. Almost all young people have a bit of trouble with their skins. It passes. All that is needed is careful hygiene. Skin is delicate. It cannot stand abuse, so don't rush off and buy a box of this and bottle of that, and don't rub and scrub and pat and pull and pack. Leave the skin to nature and give it only the necessary attention to keep it in health.

Use warm water and a soap that feels good. Rinse well. Dash cold water, ice water if you have it, over the face, pat dry with a soft towel and go your way, blithely. At luncheon time eat a double portion of vegetables—spinach is fine. Walk an hour, when you can get it in, after school, before school—any time, but walk. Swim if you can. Use as much fresh air, fresh vegetables, sleep, fun, work and good humor as you can manage to get, and never mind the cures that come in bottles and boxes.

If there is a condition that threatens to be serious, see your doctor. Let him order the things that are in the bottles and boxes if he must, but take orders for medicine from nobody else. What helps one person may not be right for you. Let the doctor decide. Taking medicine is risky unless it has been prescribed by a reliable physician.

Don't fret too much about such trifles. They pass, and if you treat them lightly, shake them off your mind, they will pass the sooner. Worry, overcare, wrong treatment, bad health habits prolong distresses. Get health and you win beauty.

People do admire nice-looking young people, but that is just the first impression, fleeting and faint. What is remembered is the manner and the manners of the young person. What he did and how he did it stays in the mind of the onlooker long after the memory of his appearance has faded.

If I were asked for a recipe for beauty for Youth, I would say, "Health. Mental and physical health. Win that. They are one and the same, and nothing else need be added to you. You have the world at your feet."

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "Crying Children," in which he tells parents how to cope with the crying habit in children. Send for it. Address your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

With Walter Winchell on vacation, his guest columnist for today is J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Crimes of violence are on the increase.

There is a death by violence in the United States every two minutes—a case of larceny every 44 seconds.

Crime costs the citizens of the United States the staggering sum of $475 per second; $28,500 per minute; $1,710,000 per hour; $41,095,890 per day; $15,000,000,000 per year, or $10 per month for each man, woman and child!

The greatest deterrent to crime is the knowledge by a prospective criminally inclined person that there will be sure detection, swift apprehension and certain and unfailing punishment.

The F B I was established in 1908, and investigates violations of over 90 different Federal statutes, covering a geographical area of 3,619,000 square miles.

It was not an offense under the laws of the United States to kill a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation until 1934. Prior to 1934 special agents were not authorized to carry firearms, or to make arrests.

A felony is committed in this country every 24 seconds.

The fingerprint collection of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was begun in 1924, and is the largest and most complete in the world.

Sir E. R. Henry, late Commissioner of Police of Scotland Yard, London, England, devised a system of classifying fingerprints which he introduced in England in 1901.

Sing Sing prison introduced fingerprinting for criminal identification in 1903. Fingerprinting was first used at the United States prison, Leavenworth, Kan., in 1904.

There are more than 7,500,000 fingerprints on file at the F B I in Washington, D. C. Over 11,000 law-enforcement organizations are submitting them from all sections of the United States. They are received at the rate of approximately 5000 daily. Eighty-one foreign countries, territories and American possessions are exchanging criminal identification data. Over 500 fugitives from justice are identified each month through the use of the F B I fingerprint file.

A fingerprint record of a criminal can be located by the F B I experts in the collection of 7,500,000 fingerprints within a period of 2 minutes.

There are 400,000 civil fingerprints on file in Washington, and 1000 citizens daily add their prints to this collection. Amnesia victims are identified and returned to their relatives through the use of these files.

Several school children killed in the explosion of the New London (Texas) school, in 1937 whose identity could not otherwise be determined were identified by their fingerprints which they had taken at the Texas Central Exposition at Dallas the previous summer and placed on file.

A "moniker," or nickname, file of criminals is kept at the F B I. Such names as "Gate Mouth," "Butterfly Billie," "Am I Blue," "Get Back Sallie," "Butcher Knife Liz," "Dago Rose" and many others are found in these files. Criminals are frequently caught by use of this "moniker" file.

We have an army of 200,000 persons in our nation who will take a human life before they die. Three hundred thousand persons going about their daily lives today believing themselves secure, will be their victims, and will be murdered at the rate of 36 every 24 hours.

In the last three years the Federal Bureau of Investigation has sent to penitentiaries over 12,000 enemies of society.

Special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at the time of their appointment must be between the ages of 25 and 35. They must be graduates of a recognized law school, expert accountants, or have had extensive law-enforcement experience. Only one out of each 1000 applicants is appointed.

There are at this time 636 special agents in the F B I who are assigned to 47 field divisions located at strategic points in the United States, in Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

A 14 weeks' intensive training course is given each special agent when he is appointed. He must qualify as a marksman in the use of all types of guns. Eighty-four per cent are experts. A special agent must be able to take and classifly fingerprints. He also must be able to search the prints of a suspect through the bureau's files, containing over 7,500,000 fingerprints. He can determine if a spot on a man's clothes is blood. He can tell which side the blow came from that broke a window. He can tell whether a shot came from a particular gun. He can tell the number of a gun which has been filed away. He can sometimes read "invisible" writing. He can pick out the typewriter that wrote the ransom note. He can identify the handwriting of an extortionist. He can tell what is in a box before it is opened. He can reproduce his hand or face in lifelike appearance by the use of moulage. He can tell what type of bullet killed a man. He can tell what kind of tire left the track at the scene of a crime. He can take guns apart and assemble them in the dark.

Sixty-seven per cent of the special agents hold one or more university degrees. They speak fluently one or more of 21 foreign languages. They have had experience in over 100 different trades, industries, businesses, sciences and professions. One hundred and ninety-three special agents have two college degrees or more.

Wearing Clothes To Fit Your Job

By Marjorie Hillis

ONE of the things that is constantly surprising me is to see how many girls and women don't look as they should for their particular jobs. How many women, that is, who work in dress shops, urging chic little models on their customers and telling how much the dresses will 'do for them," wear unbecoming or frankly dowdy clothes themselves. How many girls who work in beauty shops need to have their hair set, and how many manicurists have badly cared for hands. Or how many secretaries wear clothes that give an impression that is the opposite of capable or efficient.

This seems to me poor business, both because of the effect it gives, and because of what it does to the individual herself. The manicurist with badly cared for hands, for instance, will never get to be the head of the establishment, and she is not the girl who will invent a new preparation for the hands or nails. She hasn't enough real interest in the subject. If she had, she'd be trying out every preparation in the place, seeing which worked the best and trying to find out why. She might even (like some young women I have known) take courses in cosmetics or chemistry in the evening. The same thing applies to the girl who shampoos your hair or gives you any kind of a treatment. It's even truer in the field of clothes. You can't have a real "feeling for clothes" unless you feel how they look on you and take the trouble to analyze the reason.

The principle may not seem so obvious in the field of business or in a secretarial position, but the truth is that your appearance is pretty tell-tale in any field. The girl who isn't capable of making herself look reasonably well-dressed is seldom very capable anyway. One who doesn't look trim isn't apt to be neat or accurate. And one who dresses inappropriately, in too fancy clothes, hasn't very good judgment. There may be a good many exceptions to these rules, but when you're looking for a job, the employer will be fairly certain to judge more by general rules than by the exceptions. Even when you have a job, the impression you make by your appearance will have some influence, and usually the results are well deserved.

Incidentally, dressing to suit your job will really help you to do it well. When you are analyzing the kind of clothes you ought to wear and the general effect you want to give, you are analyzing the job itself. You will find that you are getting a mental picture of the kind of a business woman you want to be, and dressing up to the role will help you to accomplish your ambition.

Nishi System To Aid Health Is Explained

But Doctor Doubts it Will do as Much as Founder Claims.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

AN INQUIRY about the Nishi system of "health engineering" is before us. It is a fairly simple set of procedures, and while we do not feel that it will do as much as its founder claims for it, it certainly will do no harm.

The first item, as explained by Katsuzo Nishi in the Health Digest, is the use of a flat bed—flat and hard, with light bedclothes. On such a bed, if you lie flat on it the weight will be most evenly distributed and the muscles given the maximum relaxation. The spine also tends to straighten out if it has any tendency to curvature. There is no question that you sleep better and more refreshingly on a hard bed than on a soft one.

The other claims made for the hard bed strike me as rather fanciful. The hardness of the bed, it is said, stimulates the veins on the surface of the body and sends the blood back to the heart in better order. This leads to better functioning of the liver and promotes the elimination of waste. The proper elimination of waste is a subject that the Nishi system considers all important.

The second item is the solid pillow cure. This is made of a wooden roll seven inches in diameter, using one semicircular half. You lie flat and put your neck over this. At first somewhat uncomfortable, you soon get used to it and it gives far more relaxation than an ordinary pillow.

Two novel kinds of exercise make up the rest of the Nishi system.

One is the goldfish exercise. Lie flat on the floor on your face and place both hands behind your neck. Bend the toes toward the body as far as possible. Then oscillate the body from side to side as a swimming goldfish moves. Then turn over and do it a while on your back.

The other exercise is called the capillary exercise. Lie flat on the floor with a cushion under your head. Stretch arms and legs out as straight as possible with the feet as nearly parallel to the floor as you can make them, and then let both legs and arms make vibratory movements. This is said to improve the capillary circulation and also the valves of the veins. If it does, it should be good for those who have a tendency to varicose veins.

The founder of this system gives a great deal of emphasis to the capillary circulation, and says it is the motive power of blood circulation. To this it is impossible to subscribe. He also makes a great point of spinal adjustment. There is no doubt that proper spinal relaxation makes you feel better.

Undoubtedly this system will be very good for a number of people who are highly tensed and worried about their health and feeling of fatigue.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 14 years old. I hope you can help me with my problem. Every time I meet a boy, whom I know, on the street, I just stand and don't know what to say. Sometimes this happens even when I meet a girl. I become so embarrassed, I cannot speak. Can you tell me how to remove freckles without using the different creams recommended for freckles?

ROSEMARY.

Can't you find out what hobbies these boys have? That's all you need do. Just give them a start by showing an interest or asking a question about the things they are crazy about, and you will not have to do any of the talking except to prod them on, every little while. Dancing, baseball, fishing, radio, collecting things from bugs to boats. Just go on a still hunt for the fads of each boy; then you will be nicely equipped for conversation. And DON'T talk about other boys or any dates you have. Look lost in wonder and admiration; be wide-eyed with amazement at their achievements.

Better let your freckles alone; you have lots of company, especially if you are a red-haired girl. I can send you a little help, though if you will mail me self-addressed, stamped envelope.

* * *

My dear Martha Carr:

I WANT to thank you with all my heart for helping me find someone to give those glass jars to. But, my dear, the books I offered are not suitable for a boy of 14 years. I thought some hospital or some shut-in people might enjoy them. Thanking you again, my dear, for your wonderful work.

MRS. C. A. T.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ your column the first thing every evening and find it to be a great help to me and, in consequence, I should like to help one of your correspondents—the one signing himself "Red A."

The boy in this letter has been, like myself, deeply hurt. I felt as if I had nothing to live for and I sat down and wrote a poem which has since then been a great help to me. Since then, I have found a new love and have taken a new lease on life. I think a new search and new faith will help.

MRS. M. W.

I am sorry but I have not the space to use your poem; however, the last lines of your letter may help.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY trouble is not one bit new—but I should like to have your expert advice about something which means everything in this world to me. Here is my problem.

My husband and I have been married for a little over a year. We are both employed and have a very comfortable home in which I do all my own housework and cooking. We have a new car and as far as material things are concerned, we are not left wanting. Until a month or so ago my husband was everything a girl could ask for—considerate and loving—never going any place without me and always including me in all his plans. Suddenly he changed seemingly over night—I cannot imagine why. He started going out at night without me—drinking and staying out until the wee hours of the morning. When I questioned him about such actions all he will say is something evasive like "so what" or "when you get ready to go out just go on." This is so unlike him and it has sort of dazzled me. I am getting to be a nervous wreck on account of this thing and I really cannot do justice to anything anymore, my home nor my position.

My husband tells me at times that he still loves me and wants me but how can I believe someone who seems so insincere. My question is this: Should I try it for a little time longer to see if he will change or do you think it would be best for both of us just to forget about each other (which as far as I am concerned would take years—if at all, as I am still madly in love with him)? What shall I do?

A FAITHFUL WIFE.

You are both young and perhaps this is just a species of "temporary aberration" on your husband's part. You might try ignoring it for a while, especially if, until now, you have been saying very much about it. He may notice the change and, his curiosity and perhaps apprehension being aroused, come to himself. If he grows worse steadily, you should have a serious understanding and require him to lay his cards on the table. Say what the alternative will be if he does not change. Try to improvise some home interests and a little entertaining with congenial friends in your own home, so that he may not have too many free evenings.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Number of New Magazines to Make Bow Soon

At Least Three New Fashion Publications Among Those Promised by September.

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, July 16.

NEVER knew a time when more new magazines were a-borning. By September there are promised at least three new fashion publications, one baby and children magazine and two on the beauty business. In the last group is one imposing quarterly, based on the format of Fortune, to be priced at $1 the copy, and edited by Eleanor Choate Hill and Jean Spadea, the former an advertising woman, the latter an artist.

Three editors who wear they gray-white hair in the fashionable mauve-blue tint, which makes them look far younger than their years, are Carmel Snow of Harper's Bazaar, Ethel Holland Little of Woman's Home Companion and Wilhella Cushman of Ladies' Home Journal.

Sidney Fox is now enjoying the role of Katharine Locke in "Having Wonderful Time," and doing well at it, too. Nothing a movie star likes better, in order to bolster her belief in her own acting ability, than to get a part to play in the legitimate theater.

After lunching with Dawn Powell, the authoress, at the Brevoort outdoor cafe the other noon, I now order my lettuce salads as she does: heart of lettuce, shredded, with roquefort dressing. Too much of a nuisance to cut lettuce with a fork.

A charm and personality authority, Renee Long, told me that the only reason foreign women are always called more charming than American women, is because they always light up as soon as they are addressed. Particularly if it's a man addressing them. They spring at once into an animation which makes a man feel he is the only thing on her mind. Renee knows quite a lot about what helps women put themselves across. She says most women consider their eyes their best feature, and that usually they are wrong. Must be a great satisfaction to sit and criticise other women openly, be carefully listened to, and even paid for making the criticism! So many of us do it for nothing.

Get ready for a velvet fall. Velveteen, too, in black, brown and lovely olive green shades. If, as a little girl you never wore enough ribbons, this is the time to indulge that fancy. And plenty of embroidery, sequins and jet beads. Looks like a real fancy fall.

Whenever in doubt as to how the public feels about this or that, I go to one of the Translux newsreel theaters, usually the one on Madison avenue, because it is across the street from my favorite ice cream parlor. In the past six months I've noted a complete turnabout of emotional reaction toward half a dozen of the most important people in the world. Our President, for example, was always given a hissing salute up to last election. Now he and Mrs. Roosevelt, too, come in for sincere applause. Postmaster Farley still has a few sibilant enemies who provide the sound effects for his screen appearances. John (C I O) Lewis is hissed in my particular newsreel theater, but in the Broadway Embassy, he wins rounds of applause.

The change in attitude toward the British royal family is plain to hear. By far the most popular member—in fact, the only popular member, is Queen Mary, the Mother Queen. The present King has not yet put himself across with newsreel audiences, who view him with challenging doubt. Queen Elizabeth is frankly not a popular figure. I never fail to hear women in the newsreel audience criticising her clothes. "Too much fur about the elbows," and "She's got everything on but the kitchen stove" give a rough idea of how they feel about her. The little Princesses have yet to make their mark. The ducal Windsors are favorites in two theaters. But not any longer in mine. Both he and she took a royal hissing and not a few titters when their wedding pictures were shown. "Just another idol smashed," I heard someone say. I can't imagine what people used to do to indicate their feelings before newsreel theaters became prevalent.

SPANGLES FOR EUROPEANS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS.—Spangles sparkle on frocks which Molyneux designed recently for chic Europeans. The Duchess of Leeds chose a two-piece gray jersey sports dress having a wide belt covered with silver paillettes. Mme. Jacques Balsan selected a hose and black printed organdy evening gown worked on the black part of the pattern with flashing jet spangles.

Two Sisters

Even if one child happens to be more domestic than her sister, it is not fair to permit her to assume the duties in the home of both herself and her sister. It will only make the other child selfish and probably make a martyr of the little homebody. The children should each have an equal amount of work and responsibility.

BLORE IS BORED WITH BUTLER ROLES

So Movie Moguls Reluctantly Agree to Let Him Do Something Different—an Educated Englishman, He Has Been an Actor Since 1908.

By H. H. Niemeyer

THE COMEDIAN STUDIES HIS PART AT THE STUDIO.

HOLLYWOOD, July 16.

FOR some time now, whenever you have thought of a butler or a valet or a comedy head waiter in a motion picture you have thought of Eric Blore. But if you haven't the producers out here have. If a script called for some one to buttle or be a gentleman's gentleman, work was held up until Mr. Blore could be secured. Hollywood producers just don't believe any one else can really buttle.

But the worm—if you can call a character who appears to have stepped right out from between the covers of a P. G. Wodehouse book that—is about to turn. Eric Blore wants to play other kinds of parts, comedy parts to be sure, and the big wigs of the cinemas, with many shaking of heads, are going to let him have his way. This will leave the field of movie butlers pretty well deserted for Mr. Blore rather had it all sewed up.

We dare say that a good many movie fans rather believed that Blore was born into the serving class and that his father and his grandfather before him had been faithful retainers in staid old English families. No actor, they reasoned, could act well enough to play that sort of a part like Blore plays it without having had actual experience.

But it isn't so. Far from it. Eric Blore has had lots of experiences but he's never really been a butler and his father, Henry Blore, was one of England's most famous classical scholars. How did he get that way? Well, he began his stage career playing a butler in the musical comedy, "The Girl from Kays" in 1908 and he's been playing 'em, with few exceptions ever since.

Well educated at Mills School, Finchley, Blore seemed destined to spend 20 or 30 years in the Government's Civil Service in India, for at his father's prompting, he passed the examination with high grades. But again, he explained his perverseness asserted itself, and instead, he became a clerk in a London insurance office. He wrote policies for a year and a half and then, having secretly cherished a desire to become an actor, proceeded to do so by way of the butler bit in "The Girl from Kays." This was in 1908—and he was 20 years old at the time.

BLORE AND HIS FRIEND, LESLIE HOWARD, LISTEN TO A NEWS BROADCAST FROM THEIR NATIVE ENGLAND.

His natural equipment consisted of a pleasing voice and willingness to work. These assets commended themselves to G. P. Huntley, one of England's greatest actor-producers, and he permitted young Blore to accompany his troupe, putting on "The Merrymakers," on a tour of Australia. When the company returned to London, Blore was an actor.

* * *

DURING the next four or five years Blore became a well-known figure in the music halls about London, both as a singer and comedian.

One of his vivid recollections is the time he was virtually egged and ripe tomatoed from the stage of a theater near London's Limehouse district when he undertook to follow Sir Harry Lauder on a bill. The audience resented the newcomer following their favorite so closely and Blore relates that he failed to last even one performance.

When the German march on Paris began, and Lord Kitchener's "Contemptibles" went to France to help check the German advance, Blore enlisted in the Artist's Rifles. This was a traditional body of English fighting men, its members being actors, artists, sculptors, singers and the like.

Blore, who was then 27 years of age, enlisted as a Tommy. Soon, as the result of his service, he became a lance corporal and later he was gazetted to the South Wales Borderers as a Second Lieutenant.

"I was fed up with marching," he says, "so I applied for permission to enter the Royal Flying Corps. The Colonel who received my application asked me why I desired to join the air corps.

"I told him that I was weary of going along on the ground, that I wished to get into the air which gives scope and individuality of expression. 'Right,' said the Colonel, and I was in the Royal Air Corps."

There was a six weeks training period during which the fledgling flyers were required to learn the intricacies of six airplane engines, the principles of observation, flying, the Morse code and other difficult matters, and Blore says that he did not believe he could possibly learn it all in six weeks time.

"So I passed this observation along to my Adjutant," he said, "and he asked me if I would like to become a balloon observer. I told him that since a balloon would at least keep up in the air without any assistance from me, that I would gladly become one.

"We trained for the balloon service at Roehampton, near London. Before being sent to France, each observer was required to make six trips in a free balloon, the last one being a solo ascent. On this final solo trip one had to remain in the air for an hour. The idea was that although in France the small balloons were attached to cables the crew would be able to handle them and land safely if enemy airplanes caused trouble.

"On the morning I was scheduled to make my solo flight, they gave me a 28,000 cubic foot balloon, which sounds big, but it really wasn't a large one. Then it started to rain, making the balloon extremely heavy. It was filled with gas, and my captain, a witless individual, whom we shall call 'Captain X', told me to pull the cord, which opened the neck of the balloon and I entered.

"'Hands off!'" Captain X ordered the ground crew.

"They took their hands off, all right, but the balloon stayed on the ground. Then Captain X shouted, 'Hands on!' and the crew took hold of the ropes again. The captain noted my three bags of sand ballast and shouted to me to take out one of them.

"Still nothing happened. The captain ordered me to remove half a bag of the ballast, and now the balloon showed an anemic desire to soar. It rose about one foot, then sogged back again. Meanwhile, the rain was beating down, making the balloon even heavier.

"Now Captain X had another brilliant thought. 'You'd better take off your grapnel and your grapnel rope,' he ordered. The grapnel is the anchor of the balloon, and weighs 56 pounds. I obeyed his command.

"'Hands off!' he shouted to the ground crew, and this time the balloon rose quickly from the ground. In fact, it went up so fast that it started perpendicularly up, and directly at a large chimney which was belching sparks, any one of which could easily have ignited the balloon.

"'Rip the balloon!' Captain X shouted, seeing my danger, but since I was now up in the air, technically I was under no obligations to take any more of his stupid orders, so I took a remaining bag of ballast, which weighed 28 pounds, and hurled it out. I tried to hit him with it, but missed by about a foot, unfortunately. Now that the big bag had been lightened it shot up so quickly that we passed over the chimney and started to go skyward like a rocket.

"I looked at my anemometer, which gauges the speed of ascent, and it was fluttering as violently as a bride's heart."

* * *

THEN Blore had time to take stock of his situation. Instead of having three bags of ballast and the grapnel with which to control the flight, he only had a half bag of the sand left. Moreover, he was shooting through a dense mass of clouds and couldn't see the ground below.

"The anemometer slackened its fluctuations and by tossing out cigarette papers, which went up with increasing rapidity," Blore says "I knew that we were going down with increasing rapidity. I then doled out that remaining half bag of sand, weighing 14 pounds, but it had practically no effect on my descent.

"Knowing now that I was going to have to land, very soon, I looked down through the clouds and saw a cemetery on my right. On my left was a railroad track. In between was a patch of green grass. I resolved to land there. I let out the gas, then cut the rip cord so that the 400 feet of landing rope fell out. This would break the force of my fall. But as I sped quickly down to earth I saw two mice on the green, who turned out to be men.

"When the trail rope hit the ground, the men grabbed hold of it, and after being dragged for some distance I found myself lying on the ground covered by the envelope of the balloon, which now, of course, was deflated of gas. After I came to, I climbed out from under it to find an irascible and red faced Major looking down at me.

"'What on earth are you doing here, sir,' he asked me.

"Grateful to be back on terra firma, I smiled beatifically up at him, and asked him where I was. He told me that I had gone a distance of about four miles. So he invited me over to the quarters of the Royal Naval Air Service for a drink, after which I made a report, and that passed me into the aerial observation corps."

Blore then was sent to the Somme, where he spent a year observing the results of British artillery fire on the German lines. He also watched the approach of enemy aircraft. He developed a special sixth sense soon, he says, which enabled him to feel the approach of German planes before he could hear or see them. The work was extremely hazardous, because Blore and a few others were 1000 feet aloft and virtually helpless to protect themselves against hostile planes which continually sought to bag an observation balloon because of their military importance.

Later, he returned to service in the infantry as an officer, being detailed on the Armentieres front, and in 1917 he was allowed to run a concert party for troops of his division. This led to his assignment to the entertainment unit until he was mustered out of the service.

* * *

WHEN the war was over, Blore really began to make forward strides as an actor. He appeared in many of the leading musical shows produced in London over a six-year span, and then came to New York, where he was seen in numerous Broadway productions. Among them were "Little Miss Bluebeard," "The Ghost Train" and "The Gay Divorcee."

Blore has been in Hollywood four years, having been brought out here by R-K-O studios to duplicate his stage role in the film "The Gay Divorcee."

At the moment he has just finished a role, a butler role, in "It's Love I'm After" with Leslie Howard on the Warner lot. He is really under contract to R-K-O, but the Howard piece called for a butler or a valet or something of the sort, so Blore was borrowed for the occasion just as he has been borrowed by every major studio since he was the head waiter in "The Gay Divorcee." He's been kept busy, too, ever since that first film. A lot of pictures centering around English life are made in Hollywood and every well regulated English piece has to have a butler or a valet or a head waiter. That meant the director called for Blore—and waited until he could get him.

But after "It's Love I'm After," or whatever they finally decide to call it, Blore says he is going in for different roles. Doesn't want to play butlers all his life. Any actor, any good actor, that is, can be a good screen butler, he insists, although they may not look as funny as he does. The other night at a preview of ""Topper," one of the best farces ever turned out for the cinemas, the audience was rather startled at the outburst of applause, coming from one spot in the theater, when Alan Mowbray stepped into the picture. It turned out that it was Blore applauding. Mowbray was playing a butler.

Mr. Blore describes himself as 5 feet 9, weight 170 pounds and slightly bald. That last is something of an understatement.

He is married and lives down at Santa Monica, where his 10-year-old son has no buttling ambitions. Wants to be a writer, a wish which he comes by honestly enough, for Papa Blore wrote several successful plays and musical comedies for the legitimate theater before he came to Hollywood.

GAY DOINGS IN NEWPORT

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Any week-end guest can make himself popular by using the last half of his round-trip ticket.

It is very difficult to be a good guest in an exclusive home where the butler dresses better than you do, has neater table manners and can bow without losing his bridgework.

Whenever we are invited to Newport we always accept by postcard and wire ahead for reservations, and never do we carry our picnic lunch by the string.

We nod frigidly to the frapped hostess at the depot. In fact the depot at Newport is known as the icehouse.

The hostess' mother looks at us through her lorgnette like a gold fish that has outgrown its bowl.

We never get into the host's farm wagon at the station. First of all, we ain't a load of hay; and second, the cellophane curtains make us feel that we have been wrapped up in the first bloom of youth.

We always take a yellow taxicab. If we can't get a yellow one right away we wait until a green one fades. This is a reminder to your hostess that, victorious or defeated, you always limp into port under your own power.

When you get to the baronial wigwam, the butler takes your baggage and the valet shows you to your room. Your indestructible luggage is always shown to another room. Everybody loves to play games. Your section of the castle is haunted with the kind of ghosts that are invulnerable to anything but a flit gun.

In the center of the supper table is a primeval shrub that puts everybody in ambush. Nobody talks to anybody at a Newport dinner. A guest will starve before he will ask for anything. And the hostess will choke before passing it.

Everything is served in homeopathic portions. You get so little of anything that an attack of indigestion would be a pleasure.

If you arrive Friday night, bow to your hostess on Saturday and she responds hospitably with a stingy nod on Sunday, then your homeward journey on Monday is a social success.

No host talks to a guest in Newport. And the reason you wear full dress tails is so you can wag them when the butler whistles to you.

NEVER NEGLECT YOUR FEET

Simply go to your druggist and get some Ice Mint. Use it for one day and see if this isn't the greatest little package of foot joy you ever saw.

Ice Mint prevents foot odors, keeps the feet cool and comfortable, relieves the stinging pain of corns and callouses and every person who has to walk or stand very much, surely will appreciate how good it makes the feet feel. Try it just once and give your poor, tired, aching feet the treat of their lives.

You will like the way Ice Mint works and the cooling comfort it brings to your feet even a new pair of shoes won't bother you. Just one day's use will prove it.

An Occasion When Presents Are Returned

If Engagement Is Broken, Attempt Should Be Made to Send Them Back.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

WILL you kindly explain to me what I should have done about returning presents when my engagement was broken? I wanted to give back all the personal items, of wearing apparel and household linen that my friends had given me but did not because they were marked with my initials. Also there were other pieces: kitchen utensils for example, all of one color since I had planned to have my kitchen in red and white. None of the kitchens of those who gave these presents is in that color. So, I decided that it would be better to keep the presents. Indirectly, I now hear that some of these friends thought I lacked proper feeling in not giving back presents that I no longer deserved.

Answer: It seems to me that you should have at least attempted to return the presents, explaining briefly to each giver your reason for regretfully sending whatever it was back. As you say the things marked with your own name would probably be inappropriate for any one else, but even so I think it would have been better to return them. If certain friends prefer that you keep their presents, then they could tell you so and give them back to you.

Dear Mrs. Post: Sometime ago, upon arriving at a very fashionable hotel, I found that a beautiful bouquet of flowers on the dresser had been put there expressly for me with a card of greetings from the management. I was really quite overcome and wanted to write a note of thinks but didn't know just whom to address and let it slide from day to day. After 10 days I left and said nothing to any one and now that I'm home I feel that I have been rude. Are such courtesies to be taken for granted or treated as personal kindnesses?

Answer: I think it is always better to treat every courtesy as a personal kindness. If this was an especial courtesy shown you, the manager (or some one in his place) probably came up to your room when you arrived to see that you were made comfortable. This was the time when you would have thanked him for the flowers. If he did not come, and the flowers bore a card addressed to you by name, you should, so it seems to me, have called the manager's office to tell him that you were very comfortable and to thank him for the flowers. If the flowers were not personally addressed to you then it was not necessary for you to do anything.

TAX CASE NO. 32345.

Government agents whose happy task it is to run down tax dodgers are nervously waiting for a chance to expose the record of Haverhill B. Haverhill, multi-millionaire salmon canner, whose tactics have annoyed the Treasury Department. Instead of frankly paying the Government a tax of $346,782.23 a year, Haverhill increased operation costs until he had exemptions which made him technically tax free. Instead of canning thousands of salmon in one plant, Haverhill last year built thousands of plants and canned only one salmon. This automatically forced the price of canned salmon to fantastic heights, and permitted vast deductions for operation costs. But what annoyed agents more than anything else was the fact that Multi-Millionaire Haverhill bought a diving suit, and has been sitting on the bottom of the Pacific off the coast of Alaska for 17 months and refused to answer his telephone. In reply to questions he merely sends up bubbles.

PLAYGIRL

A Serial of Park Avenue Romance

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

Sandra's Parents Quarrel—Her Brother, David, Who Had Been Drinking, Hits a Man With His Automobile.

Chapter Four.

THAT night after Stephen had gone, Sandra lay awake for hours, her whole body tense, thinking of those few words she had said to Stephen: "Yes, darling, we're going to be Mr. and Mrs. Eddy and I am happy about it." That was a definite promise.

"All right, it's a promise—and I am happy about it!" The words were spoken into the blackness of the room, but they failed to carry conviction. She could not get away from the memory of Ronny MacAllister's deep troubled voice as she had heard it in that moment before he left her in Emily Stewart's garden. It came to her in snatches, again and again: ". . . something I've wanted to do for years and years . . . and will want to do again . . . very often . . . and never will . . ." She shut her teeth, hard. She thought, "Well, that's all right. That's as it should be. He not only called me a snob, he insulted me. At the very moment when he could have taken me in his arms and—and kept me there, forever, he suspected me of promising to meet that drunken Bryant in the garden." And then with fresh resolve, she told herself, "I won't think of him again."

SYNOPSIS

Sandra Brooke, now 21, and Stephen Eddy, five years older, reared in the Park avenue atmosphere, have grown up together and their families expect them to marry. Their fathers formed the Eddy & Brooke law firm of which the brilliant Anthony Ancell has become the third member. Sandra knows Ancell is in love with her mother Enid. When Sandra is just out of school Stephen tells her he loves her but that no doubt she will want to be "dragged around a bit by the gang" before marrying. She agrees, and is kept in a whirl. At a hockey game at Madison Square Garden her eyes and those of Ronny MacAllister, popular radio announcer, are mutually attracted and she asks her brother David, home for a week-end from school at New Haven where he made Ronny's acquaintance, to ask him to her party that night at home. She announces Ronny to her father, Chet, and her guests as a special attraction. But when Ronny arrives he first refuses a drink, then says he must get some sleep as tomorrow he broadcasts a fight from Chicago, explains he's a pretty poor "monkey-on-a-stick" anyhow, and bids everybody a smiling good night. Sandra is furious. She has forgotten the shy redheaded boy she met eight years ago at the home of Emily Stewart. Ronny hasn't and has his cousin Emily arrange a party. He recalls their meeting, they are still at swords' points but she relents and he takes her in his arms and kisses her but leaves abruptly when Bryant Wilson appears. Chet is in trouble. Sandra promises to marry Stephen.

Not knowing, of course, that Ronny MacAllister, just settled in the plane that would bring him back to New York from Cleveland, was telling himself at almost the same moment, "Shes a snob and a two-timer, and if Stephen Eddy doesnt get wise to himself, thats his misfortune—but heres one baby she wont add to her collection of saps.

Perhaps David had been sensitive to the charged atmosphere all along, for since that brief truce immediately after his arrival, Chet and Enid had been engaged almost continuously in what amounted to quiet, indirect bickering. But it was not until David heard them quareling openly Friday afternoon in the living room that he strolled into Sandra's room and announced drolly, "The daily brawl is now getting under way. Hold your own tickets, folks."

"Talk sense, David," Sandra said over her magazine. She was stretched out on the chaise-lounge, making a pretense of reading, but thinking: "There's no sense in his getting into this. He'll be going back to school very soon and before summer everything will be normal again."

Enid's voice was rising now, and suddenly Sandra got to her feet, stepped into a pair of purple mules and said to David, "Come on, we'll break this up. That's all they need—something to bring them to."

But David held back. "Nothing doing," he said, firmly, and with cheerful inspiration added "Let's get out and give 'em the place. There's a new joint on Fifty-fourth street."

Enid and Chet were standing by a front window, Chet with his back to the room, Enid beside him, glaring up at him, her lovely face curiously distorted.

Sandra said, lightly, "David complains we haven't had a game of rummy since he came home, folks. How about it—going back to the office, Chet?"

Chet turned and faced them. "No," he said, "and a game of rummy would be in order. "His voice was even and his smile reassuring. It was as if he had said, "Your mother and I were having a little fun."

But there was nothing of this in Enid's manner. Eyes blazing, she turned on her daughter. "Your intrusion is rather obvious, Sandra," she said, harshly. There was a moment's silence, then: "Go to your rooms, both of you!"

* * *

"MY DEAR," saaid Chet, putting a hand on Enid's arm, "they aren't infants any longer, you know.'

And then it happened, so suddenly that save for the print of Enid's small hand on Chet's crimson cheek, Sandra could not have been sure it had happened at all.

A strange dizziness came over Sandra. Clinging to David's arm, she thought: "Something I've always felt for Enid has gone out of me." And it had, some gentle quality of her love for her mother which she would never feel again.

"Let go, San," David said with an embarrassed scowl. "I've got a date." Slowly she took her arm from his and followed him across the room and into the foyer. She watched him pull on his coat and snatch up his hat. David faced her. "Coming?"

David slammed the door after him. After a moment Sandra went to her room, threw herself across the bed and buried her wet face in the covers.

Ronny had written his mother: "Here's the big broadcast of 1936—Ronny MacAllister, that superb radio announcer, leaves New York early Wednesday evening for a nonstop drive to your kitchen door. Can't predict the exact hour of arrival. And he stays right through Christmas day. Four whole days to sit around and gab with the grandest gal in the world. I'm crazy to see you, Mom!" And closing, "With your last letter I received one from Lucille Baldwin saying they were planning an old-fashioned breakdown and would I call the sets. Will I! If you see Lucille, tell her I will be there with my best mike manners."

He mailed that letter Monday and was waving good-bye to the office force late Wednesday afternoon when a girl came out of the small office where he had his desk and said he was wanted on the telephone.

Ronny said, grinning, "Tell 'em I'm dead and you're sorry, but that's the way it is." And moved on toward the door.

But the girl was suddenly at his elbow. "She says it's very important, Ronny."

"Who says it's very important?"

"Miss Brooke," the girl said; "Miss Sandra Brooke."

Sandra did not know how long she had been in her room when she heard a knock on her door. She sat up and rubbed her eyes and called out, "Who is it?' thinking it was perhaps Chet or Enid.

"Are mother and father still in the living-room?" Sandra asked, a hand over the mouthpiece. "No, miss; they went out about 20 minutes ago."

Sandra nodded, quickly. "Thank you," and waited until the maid had gone out and closed the door. She spoke into the mouthpiece, heard David talking, thickly. It was David's voice and yet it seemed not to be David's voice at all. She could not understand what he was saying. She broke in: "Again now, darling—and take the mush out of your mouth."

There was a silence. She thought: "He's gone to—that Fifty-fourth street dive and tanked up, and now he wants me to join him."

Then David was talking again and she understood at last that he was trying to give her an address. She took a pencil from the table drawer and wrote the address across the linen cover.

"All right, David," she said, "I've got it—so what?"

And now David spoke distinctly. "Get hold of Ronny MacAllister, San. Tell him I'll be waiting on the corner in front of the drug store. Come along, too, if you want, but don't say anything to Dad or Mother. Ronny'll know what to do. Hurry, San, hurry, hurry!"

She sensed the very real urgency in his voice now and she was suddenly cold all over. "Listen, David, take it easy now—tell me what's happened."

"I can't talk any more now, San. I'm in a spot. Get Ronny . . ."

She heard the line go dead and sat back staring at the address on the table cover. What had happened? What could have happened? . . . A logical answer came: speeding! David had been arrested for speeding and he thought Ronny MacAllister could fix it with the police. David thought Ronny could do anything . . . Well, she would call Ronny because David had asked her to, but she would call Stephen first. Stephen was a lawyer; he'd know how to manage, whatever it was.

Two minutes after she came out of Central Park on Lenox avenue, Sandra saw David—and Stephen. They were standing on the curb in front of the drug store. David had talked as if he were pretty well saturated, but he looked sober enough now.

Stephen and David looked at her gravely. "It's all right, Sandra," Stephen said, quietly. "David had a little accident, but everything has been taken care of, I think. If you'll take David along with you, I'll drive his car in and send back for mine."

David stood with one foot on the running board. His arms rested on the top of the door and his fingers were so tightly interlocked that his knuckles were white.

"Where's Ronny, San?" His voice was not steady and his lower lip quivered ever so little. "Did you call Ronny?"

"Yes, I called him, David. He said he would have to get his car out of the garage but would come on immediately." She looked at Stephen, then back at David. "What was the accident? Any one hurt?"

David's head rocked. "Yes, I—" His voice faded out and his head dropped. Then his eyes came up again. "San—I killed a man! I was coming through the park and he ran out and threw himself in front of the car and—" He broke off, suddenly clutched her arm. "Do you know what it means if they catch me, San? Do you know. . .!"

"Many Things In World God Did Not Wish"

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

"PLEASE tell me one thing," asks a lovely woman. "I'm utterly in the dark, crushed and broken of heart. My daughter was killed suddenly in an auto accident, and I cannot bear it.

"She was on her honeymoon. Her husband had been warned about driving too fast, especially at night. But he seemed to forget caution, and on a foggy night she was killed and he injured.

"She was so young, so beautiful; she loved life. She won honors in her studies at school—so gay and full of life. She heard you preach about God, and said you made it all so plain.

"My husband died three years ago. We lost our business and our home. The girls faced reverses with their heads up. Now my baby is gone, and I do not see how I can go on much longer.

"How would you feel? Do you believe that God willed that my little girl should come to such an end? In my state of mind I cannot think straight, and I try to keep malice out of my heart."

No, good reader; God did not will such a thing, else He would not be God at all, but something too awful to think about. Indeed, it would be an act of worship to despise such a Being.

God wills good, only good, always, everywhere, to everybody, to the just and the unjust alike, as Jesus taught us. But there are many things in the world which God does not wish, must less will.

It could not be otherwise. If man is to be man, if he is to have a personality and a moral life, he must be free in some degree. That is a risk, which God was willing to take.

Alas, it involves the risk of sin, folly, stupidity—even the folly of fast driving on a foggy night. It is dangerous, costly, sometimes tragic, but God must think it worth all risks.

Ah, good reader, it is a bitter, blinding bereavement, and words cannot tell my feeling for you and with you. Do not be angry; be patient and brave; the love of God will not let you go.

At a banquet in honor of the new crop of Mosel wine, the Lord of Ehrenbreitstein offered the estate of Bockelheim to him among his guests who could empty a particularly large riding boot full of wine in a single draft. Looking around among his terrified guests, the Lord noticed that Bos of Waldeck, one of the invited, was missing. He was sent for immediately and when he arrived, accepted the challenge and emptied the riding boot full of wine in a single breath. The estate was awarded to him. When Bos was asked where he had been, he confessed he had gone outside to practice. During this practice, he admitted, he had emptied first one and then the other of his own riding boots filled with wine in a single draft by way of rehearsal.

Eyebrows Are Vital Part of Facial Beauty

By Helen Jameson

(Copyright, 1937.)

WHEN the seeker after beauty laurels gets out her tweezers and starts to weed her eyebrows she observes only the upper portion of her face. Though she may not have much information on this form of feature remodeling she does know that the shape of her eyes must be taken into consideration. Whether she does consider them or not depends upon the state of her mind. Lots of girls don't. They take an eye pattern from some favorite movie star, trust to luck and frequently lose out.

She may believe this suggestion or laugh scornfully, but the shape of her mouth is a factor in successful eyebrow grooming. With a straight-across, thin-lipped mouth it is not desirable to have eyebrows that do a high jump in the center and slither down at both ends. Instead, there should be a short slant upward at the inner end, a longer gradual decline toward the temples. Such a design makes the mouth more attractive.

She of the small rosebud mouth can give her eyebrows more of a curve when styling them. The facial lines will be harmonious.

To delete the eyebrows to a marching line of single hairs is to rob the face of character and softness. It's a trick that makes a girl look hard and brittle. Plenty of them are finding that fact out right now. We're not an advocate of pirate eyebrows, or forehead shrubbery, and we are not numbered among the world's old dodos, but we do believe that the sisters will look more human when they allow those little fuzzers a little more liberty. Eyebrows have been weeded to death. Not only that, they have been zigzagged, distorted, twisted and murderously mutilated.

Brushing with mineral oil will coax back some of the plucked ones. At first they'll look like small thorns, but in time they will line up with the home crowd. Then a new pattern can be designed, and there's no telling how flattering it will be.

When eyebrows are faint of color, have to be darkened, it is worth the price to have the work done at a beauty shop so that the correct shade of pencil or mascara can be selected. The only way to find out what is the happy choice is to experiment. Beauty shops have open containers, operators are happy to make tests.

Eyebrows play an important role in the drama of facial beauty. They've been doing comedy roles long enough. They should go romantic, which means that they should be as nature intended them—with modern improvements.

FIGHT FOR HIS POST CONTINUES ON ROBINSON'S FUNERAL TRAIN

Opponents of Court Plan Say They Have 30 Votes for Harrison — 16 First-Term Senators Lined Up for Barkley.

CAUCUS WEDNESDAY TO DECIDE LEADER

Roosevelt Says Neither He Nor Administration Aids Will Take Sides — Has Talk With Mississippi Candidate.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD ROBINSON FUNERAL TRAIN, July 17.—This crowded special train carrying the body of Senator Joseph T. Robinson to his Little Rock home for burial, hummed today with a thinly veiled struggle for the succession to Robinson's post as Democratic leader of the Senate.

Out of respect, the two principal candidates, Alben W. Barkely of Kentucky and Pat Harrison of Mississippi, held carefully aloof, but their supporters circulated from car to car, soliciting votes among the 33 Senators who are on the train.

Preliminary canvasses indicated that neither candidate could be confident of victory Wednesday when Robinson's successor will be chosen in a secret party caucus at Washington.

Opponents of the President's court bill rallied almost solidly behind Harrison in the belief that he would find a way to bring the bitter fight over that measure to a speedy end. They said they had about 30 votes already pledged for him.

If Harrison Gets Post.

In dozens of subdued conversations, these young Senators argued that selection of Harrison as leader would be a serious blow to the administration, since he would have to turn over the chairmanship of the powerful Finance Committee to Senator William H. King (Dem.), Utah, an opponent of many New Deal policies.

The finance chairmanship will be particularly important next session, they contended, since Congress then is expected to revise the entire Federal tax structure.

Harrison proponents replied that there was ample precedent for Senate leaders to retain their committee chairmanships. They conceded, however, that Robinson had not headed any important standing committees during his service as leader.

Farley "Not Interested."

Postmaster-General Farley, the only Cabinet member aboard the train, steadfastly refused to take any part in the leadership controversy.

"I am not in any way interested," he declared. "That is a matter for the Senators to determine among themselves."

A few Senators suggested that if the leadership race proves a close and bitter contest, the caucus might choose a temporary leader for the rest of this session. They mentioned Senator Thomas (Dem.), Utah, as candidate who might be acceptable to both factions. He is a staunch administration supporter, but has not been particularly active in the court fight.

Developments Yesterday.

1. President Roosevelt indicated his neutrality by conferring with Harrison. Barkley previously had been at the White House.

3. Harrison and Barkley agreed on a Democratic caucus Wednesday, in order to settle the issue as soon as possible.

Harrison Called In.

Harrison and Byrnes were called to the White House yesterday, less than a day after President Roosevelt had written to Barkley urging passage of a court reorganization bill at this session.

"The President had heard," Harrison said afterward, "that some had interpreted the letter to mean that he was thereby injecting himself into the leadership contest.

"He wanted to give me the abso-
